THE ELEMENTS OF NEW TESTAMENT GREEK

BY THE REV. J. W. WENHAM

Vice-Principal of Tyndale Hall, Bristol

H. P. V. Nunn's Elements of New Testament Greek has long been the standard introduction to New Testament Greek for theological students and many others. Mr Wenham's simple and thorough introduction will replace it. It is based on Nunn's book and Mr Wenham's own experience of teaching theological students. He includes everything that a beginner needs to know and leaves out everything of secondary importance. There are forty-four lessons and many exercises.

Mr Wenham has paid particular attention to the clarity of presentation, and to the choice of vocabulary and grammar which will be the most helpful in reading the New Testament. Those who have used Nunn's book will find that Mr Wenham has left out a few of the reading exercises and the rare forms and constructions, but that the main change is the omission of accents, which hinder the easy mastery of the language, and are only really necessary to distinguish between a few pairs of words (and here they are retained). The additions are mainly the making good of certain deficiencies. Mr Wenham has also revised the vocabulary so that it includes almost every word which appears more than 30 times in the New Testament.

A key to the exercises in the book is also available.

PREFACE

This started as a radical revision, it ended as a new book. The author has long been impressed with the fundamental soundness of Nunn's Elements as a book for beginners, regarding it as incomparably the best book of its type published in this country. The subject is introduced gently and unhurriedly. The ground to be covered is sensibly chosen, representing a good year's work for the average student. Nunn's discursive lucidity is admirably suited to those who have to work on their own, and the exercises are well conceived. Yet thirteen years of teaching from this book have revealed many possibilities of improvement. The owners and publishers have kindly given me permission to revise it completely, using what material I like and omitting or changing what I like. I have been in the happy position of being allowed, if necessary, to write a new book, leaning heavily on Nunn, yet without risking the charge of plagiarism.

As work on the book progressed, so the possibilities of improvement seemed to multiply. The result in the end has been literally thousands of changes, many very small but many quite considerable. The guiding principle throughout the work of rewriting has been to try to conform the book as closely as possible to its title. That is to say, to try to present the elements (and only the elements) of New Testament Greek as simply and completely as possible. The learning of a language is an enormous task. The secret of success is to gain a thorough grasp of the elements. If the elements are known, the rest will come bit by bit easily enough. But if the elements are not known, the student will flounder and make no progress. The student should be protected from all avoidable toil which does not directly further this end.

In the case of the New Testament it is possible to discover with remarkable precision just what the elements are. We are dealing with a limited body of literature containing about 137,500 words, of which the vocabulary has been statistically analysed and the grammar has been minutely examined. I have taken a great deal of trouble so to select the material that the student may know that everything he is learning is really useful, and that if he can learn all that the book contains he will have mastered the complete elements of New Testament Greek. I have also tried to simplify the presentation in every possible way.

The results may be summarised under the headings of omissions, additions and rearrangements.

Omissions include the Reading Exercises from the Shepherd of Hermas and the Second Epistle of Clement (the student needs rather the encouragement of actual New Testament study); most of the references to Latin and Classical Greek; various points of overlapping; and a number of rare (or non-existent!) forms and constructions. These include future participles, most of the optative, several comparatives and superlatives, ἡμετερος, γνωθι, προς with genitive and dative, μειζω. These, though useful in their place, are relatively unimportant and should not load the beginner's memory. They may of course be met at an early stage in the study of a New Testament book and will be sought for in vain in the Elements. But this work is not intended as a reference book from which to elucidate unusual points of Greek grammar, but as a textbook of the elements, which is to be systematically learnt. A great saving of labour has been effected by a radical simplification of the third declension, of conditional sentences, and of the -μι verbs. I shall consider that I have done the student a great service if I have succeeded in robbing the -μι verbs of their terror. I have omitted altogether about 170 of the less common words from the vocabularies and have reduced the number of principal parts from 73 to 42.

The most obvious omission to strike the eye is the disappearance of accents. We are indebted to D. F. Hudson's Teach Yourself New Testament Greek for pioneering this revolution. The accentual tradition is so deeply rooted in the minds of classical scholars and of reputable publishers that the sight of a naked unaccented text seems almost indecent. Yet from the point of view of academic integrity, the case against their use is overwhelming. The oldest literary texts regularly using accents of any sort date from the first century B.C. The early uncial manuscripts of the New Testament had no accents at all. The accentual system now in use dates only from the ninth century A.D. It is not suggested that the modern editor should slavishly copy first-century practices. By all means let us use every possible device that will make the text easier and pleasanter to read; but the accentual system is emphatically not such a device. Accurate accentuation is in fact difficult. Most good scholars will admit that they sometimes have to look their accents up. To learn them properly consumes a great deal of time and effort with no corresponding reward in the understanding of the language. When ingrained prejudice has been overcome, the clean unaccented text becomes very pleasant to the eye. In Hellenistic Greek the value of accents is confined to the distinguishing of pairs of words otherwise the same. In this whole book it means only four groups of words: $\epsilon\acute{\iota}$ and $\epsilon\grave{\iota}$; the indefinite and interrogative pronouns; parts of the article and the relative pronoun; and parts of the present and future indicative active of liquid verbs. I have adopted the practice of retaining the circumflex in $\mu\epsilon\nu\hat{\omega}$, $-\epsilon\hat{\iota}\varsigma$, $-\epsilon\hat{\iota}$, $-\omicron\hat{\upsilon}\sigma\iota\nu$ and in $\epsilon\hat{\iota}$; of always using a grave accent for the relatives $\eta\grave{\iota}$, $\delta\grave{\iota}$, $\omicron\grave{\iota}$ and $\alpha\grave{\iota}$, and an acute for the first syllable of the interrogative pronoun ($\tau\acute{\iota}\varsigma$, $\tau\acute{\iota}\nu\alpha$, etc.). These forms are then at once self-explanatory, and the complications of enclitics are avoided. All other accents have been omitted.

I should dearly love to take the reform one stage further, by the abolition of the useless smooth breathing. Judged by the criterion of antiquity, breathings have no right to inclusion. Judged by the criterion of utility, ' should be used as an indication of elision or crasis, and nothing else, and the rough breathing would then stand out clearly as the equivalent of h. The fear that examinees might be penalised for the omission of the smooth breathing has alone deterred me from trying to effect this reform. I should like to know if other examiners would support this proposal.

As far as additions are concerned, I have steadily resisted the temptation to add much, believing the old Elements to err if anything on the side of over-fulness. I have made good certain deficiencies, e.g. guidance in writing the script, expressions for time, the forms of the Second Future Passive, the use of $\tau\omicron\upsilon$ with the infinitive, the use of $\acute{\iota}\nu\alpha$ in noun clauses and the use of $\omicron\upsilon$ and $\mu\eta$ in questions. The vocabulary I have completely revised with the help of Morgenthauer's Statistik des Neutestamentlichen Wortschatzes, replacing the 170 uncommon words by about 110 very common ones. The number of New Testament occurrences of each word is now given in the vocabularies. There are now very few words included which occur less than 20 times in the New Testament and very few omitted which occur more than 30 times. This will make the systematic memorising of the vocabularies more rewarding. If the words in the vocabularies are learnt, nearly 85 per cent of the words of the New Testament will be familiar and many of the rest will be within reach of an intelligent guess. In order to facilitate the mastery of this basic word list, considerable care has been taken to see that the words are used not only in the exercises in which they first appear, but also in later exercises and tests.

Most of the other additions contain no new material, but are simply aids to assimilation; e.g. in the vocabularies there is a great increase in the number of English words derived from the Greek. In this I acknowledge considerable help from B. M. Metzger's Lexical Aids for Students of New Testament Greek. I have included periodical revision test papers. (These come usually two at a time and have been composed with a certain cunning so as to hold an even balance between student and teacher! The student knows exactly the possible range of questions to prepare for, but he does not know which paper the teacher will set, and so must cover the whole ground when revising.) It is believed that the summaries of morphology and syntax will be a great help in revision. As a further aid to assimilation I have adopted various visual devices, e.g. the use of heavy type to emphasise new forms, tables of contractions, and a graphic representation of the notion of tense. The lessons contain many new illustrative examples, taken from the New Testament and as far as possible containing only grammatical forms already known. I have also provided some guidance on further reading, and fuller indices.

Most important of all are the rearrangements. The English grammar has been completely revised and co-ordinated with the rest of the book. In the interest of those who have never been taught English grammar properly and who have never tackled a foreign language, I have retained the elementary grammatical explanations in the early lessons. Nevertheless, the student is advised to study some such work as R. B. Morgan's Junior English Grammar (Methuen)—to which I am much indebted in the revision—in addition to this summary statement. The student who has some Latin will find little to learn in the first dozen lessons, except alphabet and vocabulary.

The vocabularies have been entirely rearranged, so that all the words of one type are now grouped together in one (or at most two) vocabularies. Much material has been moved from one part of the book to another, so that each subject can be systematically mastered, e.g. the scattered references to prepositions have been concentrated into two lessons and the two lessons on the infinitive have been brought together. Matter in footnotes has been transferred to the proper place in the text. (See, for example, the article.) The verbal system now has a logical arrangement, being built up progressively in the order of the six principal parts. All of this of course has meant an almost complete rewriting of the exercises. (The author will be most grateful for corrections to the Elements or to the Key,¹ and for suggestions for improving later editions.) All in all it may be said that the present book represents a slightly more limited field, sown with more carefully selected seed and cultivated more intensively. It is confidently expected to give a heavier yield.

This book may be criticised for its incompleteness. Some fairly common forms which were not included in the old Nunn will still be looked for in vain, and some rare forms which could be tracked down are now no longer to be found at all. But this is the price (and a very small one) which has to be paid for limiting the book to the elements of the language. Suggestions are given on pp. 191–2 for further reading. It will be noted that the author is at work on a short Second Book of New Testament Greek, which it is hoped will compensate for these slight losses many times over.

Stress has been laid on the need for mastering the elements before beginning serious work on the New Testament text. This is self-evidently true, but there is no reason at all why, for interest's sake, translation should not be attempted long before the whole book has been learnt. An acquaintance with all the important forms can be gained from the summaries.

A word on the vexed question of pronunciation. There is a considerable diversity of practice in this country. This is a pity, as it is a great help to learn by ear as well as by eye. The system recommended here is as close an approximation to the Revised Pronunciation advocated by the Classical Association as seems practicable for an English-speaking student, and corresponds fairly closely to that in general use on the Continent and in America.

Finally a word of thanks to the many who have helped in the production of this book, only a few of whom I can mention by name. I owe much of course to many previous writers. I am particularly indebted to J. G. Machen's New Testament Greek for Beginners and to E. G. Jay's New Testament Greek, and most of all to A. T. Robertson's A Grammar of the Greek of the New Testament in the Light of Historical Research and A New Short Grammar of the Greek Testament. I should like to thank the Dean and Chapter of Ely (who are the proprietors of the book) and the syndics and staff of the Cambridge University Press for their help and encouragement. I should like to express my personal gratitude to Professor C. F. D. Moule, to Professor K. Grayston, to the Rev. I. H. Marshall and to my sons, Gordon, Peter and Michael, for valuable help at various stages, and to Mr H. C. Oakley, whose scrutiny of almost the whole manuscript has been invaluable. Last, but not least, I owe a great debt to the generations of students at the London College of Divinity and Tyndale Hall, who have kept alive my zest for elementary Greek and who have continually provoked me to strive for forcefulness and simplicity of presentation.

J. W. W.

INTRODUCTION: ENGLISH GRAMMAR

I. SENTENCES, CLAUSES AND PHRASES

A sentence is a group of words which makes complete sense. Clauses and phrases make sense, but not complete sense.

A clause is a group of words which has a finite verb (see Section 15), but is only part of a sentence, e.g. 'We do not know where they have laid him'.

A phrase is a group of words without a finite verb, e.g. 'under the fig-tree'.

2. SUBJECT AND PREDICATE

Every sentence has two parts: the subject and the predicate. The subject names the person or thing uppermost in mind when the sentence is formed. The predicate makes an assertion about the subject.

Subject	Predicate
I	die
The glorious gospel	is sent into all the world

Or the predicate may take the form of a question, e.g. 'Must I die?', or a command, 'Go into the world'. In the latter case the subject is often 'understood', i.e. it is not expressed.

Subject	Predicate
I	must die
You (understood)	go into the world

3. PARTS OF SPEECH

By parts of speech we mean the various classes under which all words used in speaking and writing may be arranged. There are eight parts of speech:

(1) A noun is the name of anything (Latin nomen, 'name'), e.g. 'John', 'brother', 'love'.

(2) A pronoun is a word used instead of a noun (Latin pro, 'for'; nomen, 'name'), e.g. 'I', 'you', 'they', 'him', 'who'.

(3) An adjective is a word joined to a noun to qualify (that is, add something to) its meaning (Latin adjectum, 'a thing thrown to'), e.g. 'good', 'many'.

(4) A verb is a word by means of which we can make a statement, ask a question, or give a command about some person or thing (Latin verbum, 'word', so called as being the principal word in the sentence), e.g. 'I write', 'Do you see?', 'Depart'.

(5) An adverb is a word joined to a verb to qualify its meaning (Latin ad, 'to'), e.g. 'immediately', 'well', 'very'. (Adverbs sometimes qualify an adjective or another adverb: 'very good', 'very well'.)

(6) A preposition is a word joined to, and generally placed before, a noun (or pronoun) to show the relation of the person or thing denoted by the noun to something else (Latin praepositum, 'placed before'), e.g. 'of', 'with', 'by'.

(7) A conjunction is a word that joins together sentences, clauses or words (Latin conjungo, 'I join'), e.g. 'and', 'but', 'because'.

The article, which is in fact a kind of adjective, is also sometimes classed as a separate part of speech. In English we have both the definite article ('the') and the indefinite article ('a'), but in Greek there is no indefinite article.

The first principle to be remembered in determining the parts of speech is that a word must be carefully examined with reference to the function which it performs in the sentence. In English many words having exactly the same form must be regarded as entirely different parts of speech, according to the place which they occupy in the sentence, and must be translated by wholly different words in Greek, according to their meaning.

Many words may be nouns or verbs, according to the place which they occupy in the sentence, e.g. 'judge', 'love', 'work', 'glory'.

Other words may be adjectives or verbs, e.g. 'clean', 'free'.

Others may be nouns, adjectives or verbs, e.g. 'last', 'stone'.

A more difficult example is 'that', which (as we shall see later) can be:

- (1) A demonstrative pronoun: That is the man.
- (2) A demonstrative adjective: Give me that book.
- (3) A relative pronoun: This is the book that I want.
- (4) A conjunction: He said that this was the book.

'Try your hand at determining the parts of speech of the word 'that' in the following sentence: 'He said that that "that" that that man used was incorrect.'

Remembering then always to consider the word in connection with its sentence, the student should ask himself the following questions to help him find out what part of speech a word is:

- (1) Is it the name of anything? If so, then it is a noun.
- (2) Can a noun which is mentioned or thought of before be substituted for the word without altering the sense? Then it is a pronoun.
- (3) Does it answer any of the questions: 'What kind?', 'How many?', 'Which?', with regard to some noun? Then is it an adjective.
- (4) Does it make a statement, ask a question, or give a command? Then it is a verb.
- (5) Does it answer the questions: 'How?', 'When?', 'Where?' Then it is an adverb. ('How?', 'When?' and 'Where?' are also themselves adverbs.)
- (6) Does it stand before a noun or pronoun to show its relation to something else? Then it is a preposition. (Another test of a preposition is that it is a word which is not a verb but which can stand before 'him' and 'them', but not before 'he' or 'they'.)
- (7) Does it join sentences, clauses or words? Then it is a conjunction.

Consider the following sentence: 'The man went quickly down the narrow street and did not stop, alas!'

THE	Adds something to the meaning of 'man', tells us which man it was, i.e. some man already known.	Therefore it is a kind of adjective. In this case of course the definite article.
MAN	Is the name of something.	Therefore it is a noun.
WENT	Makes a statement about the man.	Therefore it is a verb.

QUICKLY	Qualifies the verb 'went'; tells us how he went.	Therefore it is an adverb.
DOWN	Stands before the noun 'street', showing the relation between the street and the man's movement.	Therefore it is a preposition.
THE	See above.
NARROW	Adds something to the meaning of 'street'.	Therefore an adjective.
STREET	The name of something.	Therefore a noun.
AND	Joins together two clauses.	Therefore a conjunction.
DID STOP	Make a statement about the man.	Therefore verbs.
NOT	Qualifies the verb 'did stop' because it tells us how he stopped, i.e. not at all.	Therefore an adverb.
ALAS	Expression of a feeling.	Therefore an interjection.

4. NOUNS

There are four kinds of nouns:

(1) A proper noun is the name appropriated to any particular person, place or thing (Latin proprius, 'belonging to a person'), e.g. 'John', 'Jerusalem', 'Passover'.

(2) A common noun is the name which all things of the same kind have in common (Latin communis, 'belonging to all'), e.g. 'brother', 'town', 'country'.

(3) A collective noun is the name of a number of persons or things forming one body, e.g. 'crowd', 'church', 'flock'.

(4) An abstract noun is the name of some quality, state or action considered apart from the person or thing in which it is embodied (Latin abstractus, 'withdrawn'), e.g. 'wisdom', 'peace', 'baptism'.

5. PRONOUNS

There are nine kinds of pronouns:

(1) Personal pronouns: 'I', 'you', 'we', 'they'.

(2) Demonstrative pronouns: 'this', 'that'.

(3) Possessive pronouns: 'mine', 'yours', 'ours', 'theirs'.

(5) Indefinite pronouns: ‘anyone’, ‘someone’, ‘something’, ‘a certain one’, ‘some’.

(6) Reflexive pronouns are used when a pronoun in the predicate and the subject of the sentence refer to the same person or thing, e.g. 'The man hates himself', 'It did it by itself'.

(7) Emphasising pronouns simply mark emphasis, e.g. 'You yourself have heard', 'I saw the man himself'.

The emphasising pronoun and the word which it emphasises both belong to either subject or predicate, whereas the reflexive pronoun is always in the predicate and so is separated from the subject. The emphasising pronoun usually immediately follows the word emphasised, though there are sometimes words in between, as in 'John did it himself'. In this case 'himself' is still part of the subject.

(8) Reciprocal pronoun: 'one another'.

(9) Relative pronouns ('who', 'whom', 'whose', 'which', 'that') are used to connect a subordinate clause with the main clause in such sentences as: 'The Spirit who gives life is promised', 'He whom the Father promised is here', 'The words that I speak are life'. These pronouns refer (or 'relate') back to a noun or pronoun which is called the antecedent: 'The Spirit who...', 'He whom...', 'The words that...'.

6. ADJECTIVES

A. There are six kinds of adjectives:

(1) Adjectives of quality, which answer the question 'What kind of?', e.g. 'narrow street', 'good men'.

(2) Adjectives of quantity, which answer the questions 'How many?', 'How much?', e.g. 'two disciples', 'much fruit', 'no food'.

(3) Demonstrative adjectives, which answer the question 'Which?',
e.g. 'these women', 'that house'.

(4) Possessive adjectives, which indicate possession, e.g. ‘my master’, ‘our Father’.

(5) Interrogative adjectives, which ask questions, e.g. 'whose image is this?'

(6) The identical adjective: 'same', e.g. 'The same men came back.'

B. There are three degrees of comparison: positive, comparative and superlative. The regular forms of comparison are:

hard	harder	hardest
just	more just	most just

An example of irregular comparison is:

good	better	best
------	--------	------

The forms 'very hard', 'very just', 'very good' are called elative superlatives.

C. An adjective can be used either attributively or predicatively.

(1) Attributive use. In the phrase 'the blind beggar', the word 'blind' merely qualifies the word 'beggar'. That is to say, it defines him more exactly by mentioning one of his attributes. There is no complete sentence; nothing has yet been predicated of the man.

(2) Predicative use. 'The beggar is blind', however, predicates something of him. It constitutes a complete sentence.

7. VERBS

A. There are two kinds of verbs:

(1) Transitive verbs are so called because they denote an action which necessarily affects or passes over to some person or thing other than the subject of the verb (Latin transire, 'to pass over'), e.g. 'I throw', 'I take'. These statements are not complete; we ask immediately, 'What do you throw or take?' The name of the person or thing affected by the action must be supplied in order to make a complete sentence: 'I throw a ball', 'I take an apple'. The person or thing affected by the action of the verb is called the direct object.

(2) Intransitive verbs denote an action which does not affect any person or thing besides the subject of the verb, e.g. 'I remain', 'the sun shines'. These sentences are complete statements in themselves.

B. There are also verbs of incomplete predication. These verbs require another word to make a complete predicate. The commonest is the verb 'to be'. 'He is' by itself is incomplete. A sentence can be completed by the addition of:

- (a) a predicative noun: He is the shepherd;
- (b) a predicative pronoun: He is mine;
- (c) a predicative adjective: He is good.

The completing word or group of words is known as the complement.

Other verbs of incomplete predication, which can be either transitive or intransitive, include:

Intransitive	become, seem, appear
Transitive	declare, choose, call, think, consider

It is important to distinguish carefully between the object and the complement of a verb, because (as we shall see later) this will affect the case to be used. The complement always refers to the same person (or thing) as the subject, the object to someone (or something) different:¹

e.g. God became man (complement). I remain faithful (complement).
 God made man (object). I chose faithful men (object).

The difference in case can sometimes be seen quite clearly even in English. We say:

I am he (complement: nominative case).
 God made him (object: accusative case).

8. ADVERBS

A. There are five kinds of adverbs:

(1) Adverbs of manner, which answer the question 'How?', e.g. 'He thinks wisely, well, truly'.

(2) Adverbs of time, which answer the question 'When?', e.g. 'I went yesterday, later, afterwards'.

(3) Adverbs of place, which answer the question 'Where?', e.g. 'She goes here, there'.

(4) Adverbs of degree, which qualify an adjective or another adverb, e.g. 'quite quick', 'very slowly', 'almost at once'. (Some adverbs of degree can also qualify a verb, e.g. 'I quite like it'.)

(5) Interrogative adverbs: 'How?', 'Why?', 'Where?', 'When?'

B. Degrees of comparison are expressed thus:

(regular)	wisely	more wisely	most wisely
(irregular)	well	better	best

9. INFLECTION

Nouns, pronouns, adjectives, verbs and some adverbs are capable of undergoing certain changes in form. The part of the word which contains the basic idea is known as the stem. The stem remains unchanged, but modifications of this basic idea are introduced by means of changes of form, which are known as inflections.

The study of the form of words is known as morphology (or accidence). The study of the arrangement of words in the sentence is known as syntax.

Inflection is important in English, but it is far more important in Greek. English has comparatively few inflections, whereas in the early stages of Greek the learning of the inflections is the student's main task.

Nouns, pronouns and (in Greek) adjectives may have inflections for number, gender, and for case (see Section 10).

(1) Number, e.g.

Singular:	heart,	church,	child,	I
Plural:	hearts,	churches,	children,	we

(2) Gender. In English we distinguish four genders: masculine (to denote males), feminine (to denote females), neuter (to denote things), common (for words which can denote either males or females, e.g. 'child'). Sometimes the feminine may be formed from a masculine stem by inflection, e.g. 'priestess' from 'priest'.

In Greek, gender has to do with the form of the words and has little to do with sex. There are masculine, feminine and neuter forms, but 'bread' is masculine, 'head' is feminine, and 'child' is neuter.

10. CASES

Case is the form or function of a word which shows its relation to some other word in the sentence. Five cases are to be distinguished: nominative, vocative, accusative, genitive and dative. In English, case inflection is usual only in the genitive. 's in such phrases as 'the apostle's brother' is a case ending, and 'apostle's' is an inflected form. A somewhat fuller inflection survives in the pronoun 'he' (nominative), 'him' (accusative), 'his' (genitive). In New Testament Greek all five case forms are still to be found.

But although English virtually has only two case forms, the five case functions are still to be distinguished.

- (1) Nominative: (a) The subject of the verb is in the nominative case.
 (b) The complement to an intransitive verb is in the nominative case.

Note. When one noun follows another to explain or describe it more fully, the two words are said to be in apposition, and are in the same case. Thus in 'John the Baptist was fasting', 'John' (the subject) and 'the Baptist' (in apposition to 'John') are both nominative.

(2) Vocative is the case of address, e.g. 'Master, I am coming', 'O Lord, save me'.

(3) Accusative is the case of the direct object of a transitive verb.

(4) Genitive is the case of possession, e.g. 'The apostle's brother', 'the brother of the apostle'. (This account of the accusative and genitive will need some modification when we come to study their uses in Greek.)

(5) Dative is the case of the indirect object. Consider the sentence: 'The owner gave him the donkey.' That which is directly affected by the action of the verb is the donkey; it was the donkey that the owner gave. So 'the donkey' is the direct object and is accusative. 'Him' is the person to whom or for whom it was given. This is the indirect object and is dative. It could equally well have been expressed: 'The owner gave the donkey to him.'

11. INFLECTION OF THE VERB

Greek verbs are set out according to this pattern:

I loose
 Thou loosest (Modern English: You loose)
 He looses
 We loose
 You loose
 They loose

The first three are of course singular and the last three plural.

Person

'I' and 'we' denote that the person who is speaking is doing the action, and they are said to be in the first person.

'Thou' and 'you' denote that the person spoken to is doing the action, and they are said to be in the second person.

'He' (also 'she' and 'it') and 'they' denote that the person spoken about is doing the action, and they are said to be in the third person.

It will be observed that in the older English there were two inflected forms, 'loosest' and 'looses', whereas in modern English the separate forms for the second person singular have almost disappeared. In Greek there are usually six distinct forms.

Verbs which are not used in the first and second persons, but only in the third, are known as impersonal verbs, e.g. 'it is lawful', 'it is necessary'.

12. TENSE

Tense is concerned with two things:

- (1) The time at which an action takes place.
- (2) The state or nature of the action.

The English tenses may be set out as in Table 1 (opposite).

Except for the future tense, the tenses in Greek are concerned almost wholly with the nature and state of the action, and not with time.

It will be noticed that the English tense system is built up by the use of the verbs 'to be' and 'to have', which act as auxiliary verbs: 'I was loving', 'I had loved'. In Greek the verb 'to be' is used, but only for the comparatively uncommon periphrastic tenses. (See Lesson 37.)

Table 1. The English tenses

	Time
	Past	Present	Future
State		PRESENT	FUTURE
Continuous	IMPERFECT I was loving I used to love	CONTINUOUS I am loving	CONTINUOUS I shall be loving
Simple	PAST SIMPLE I loved	PRESENT SIMPLE I love	FUTURE SIMPLE I shall love
Complete	PLUPERFECT I had loved	PERFECT I have loved	FUTURE PERFECT I shall have loved
Continuous- complete	PLUPERFECT CONTINUOUS I had been loving	PERFECT CONTINUOUS I have been loving	FUTURE PERFECT CONTINUOUS I shall have been loving

13. VOICE

Voice is an inflection of the verb which denotes whether the subject does the action or is acted upon.

- Active: They loose the colt.
- Passive: The colt is loosed by them.

It will be observed that when a sentence in the active is put into the passive, the direct object of the active verb becomes the subject of the passive verb.

A complete table of tenses in the passive voice can of course be constructed to correspond with the table of active tenses in the previous section: 'I was being loved', 'I am being loved', etc.

14. MOOD

Mood is the form of the verb which indicates the mode or manner in which the action is to be regarded. There are four moods:

- (1) The indicative makes a statement or asks a question: 'He goes', 'were you listening?'

(2) The imperative gives a command, entreaty or exhortation: 'Go', 'make haste', 'let him come'.

(3) The subjunctive expresses a thought or wish rather than an actual fact. It is the mood of doubtful assertion, e.g. 'God save the king', 'thy will be done', 'if I were you, I would not go', 'so that I may arrive', 'in order that I might succeed'.

Contrast the Indicative: I shall be at home (certainty) with the Subjunctive: I should be at home (uncertainty).

(4) The infinitive expresses an action generally, i.e. without reference to a particular person or thing. It is normally prefaced by the word 'to', e.g. 'he wanted to stay'. Sometimes, however, 'to' is not found, e.g. 'he can stay (i.e. he is able to stay)', 'he saw me come'.

The infinitive is a verbal noun. As a verb it will have tense and voice, and it may have an object or a qualifying adverb, e.g. 'to love (Present Infinitive Active) animals (object) greatly (adverb)'.

As a noun it can itself be the subject or object of another verb, e.g.

As subject: To err is human ('to err' is virtually equivalent to the noun 'error').

As object: They desire to live (i.e. they desire 'survival').

'To err' and 'to live' are short noun phrases. Such phrases, which do the work of a noun, can be of any length, e.g. They desire to live in the castle happily ever after.

15. PARTICIPLES

Participles are verbal adjectives. Being verbs they have tense and voice and they may have an object. Being adjectives they can qualify nouns. There are two participles in English—the Active Participle ending in -ing and the Passive Participle which usually ends in -ed, e.g. 'loving', 'loved'.

Participles can be formed by the use of auxiliaries:

e.g. having loved (Past Participle Active) having been loved (Past Participle Passive), etc.

The principal use of the participles in English is to form (with the help of auxiliary verbs) the continuous and complete tenses of the verb, e.g. 'I am loving', 'I have loved'. Its simple adjectival use may be seen in an expression like 'his loving wife'. In Greek the participle has a wide range of uses which will be studied in due course.

The Indicative, Imperative and Subjunctive make up the finite verb, while the Infinitive and Participle belong to the verb infinite.

16. SIMPLE, MULTIPLE AND COMPLEX SENTENCES

A simple sentence is a sentence which contains a single subject and a single predicate.

A double (or multiple) sentence is a sentence which contains two (or more) statements of equal value; that is to say, neither is subordinate to, or dependent upon, the other, e.g. 'he went out and he wept'. In this case 'he went out' and 'he wept' are of equal status and are said to be co-ordinate.

A complex sentence is a sentence which contains a main clause and a subordinate clause which is dependent upon it, e.g. 'he wept (main clause), because he had been faithless (subordinate clause)'.

There are three classes of subordinate clauses: noun, adjective and adverb clauses.

17. NOUN CLAUSES

Noun clauses are subordinate clauses which do the work of a noun in relation to some part of another clause:

e.g. as subject:	That he is coming is certain.
as object:	He said that he was king . He asked how it happened . He told him that he must go .
as complement:	My hope is that you may succeed .
in apposition to a noun:	I had no idea that you would oppose me .

With verbs of saying, what is said may either be given in direct speech, i.e. the very words of the speaker are recorded and put within inverted commas, e.g. 'He said, "I am going away"', or they may be given in indirect speech, in which case the meaning is preserved but the form of the words is altered, e.g. 'He told them that he was going away'.

The same principle applies to a whole range of verbs of saying or thinking, and includes such verbs as 'to feel', 'to learn', 'to know', 'to see'.

The three examples of object clauses given above represent three types of indirect speech:

When a noun clause which is the object of a verb states a fact, it is called a dependent (or indirect) statement: 'He said that he was king.'

When it begins with an interrogatory word, it is called a dependent (or indirect) question: 'He asked how it happened.'

When it gives the words of a command, it is called a dependent (or indirect) command: 'He told him that he must go.'

18. ADJECTIVE CLAUSES

Adjective clauses are subordinate clauses which do the work of an adjective in relation to some part of another clause.

They are introduced either by a relative pronoun or by a word which is equivalent to a relative pronoun, e.g. 'when', 'where' in such expressions as: 'the time when (at which) we meet', 'the town where (in which) I was born'.

19. ADVERB CLAUSES

Adverb clauses are subordinate clauses which do the work of an adverb in relation to some part of another clause.

There are eight classes:

(1) Purpose (often called final) clauses: 'He ran that he might get home soon.'

(2) Time (or temporal) clauses: 'He ran when he reached the road.'

(3) Place (or local) clauses: 'He ran where the road was level.'

(4) Causal clauses: 'He ran because he was late.'

(5) Consequence (or consecutive) clauses: 'He ran so that (i.e. with the result that) he got home early.'

(6) Conditional clauses: 'He ran if he was late.'

(7) Concessive (or adversative) clauses, which denote contrast: 'He ran although he was early.'

(8) Comparative clauses: 'He ran faster than she could.'

20. PARSING

To parse a word completely is to say the following things about it.

If it is a noun, it is necessary to give its number, gender, case and part of speech:

e.g. He gave it to the women.

women: plural, feminine, dative, noun.

If it is a pronoun, the person must be added and the kind of pronoun:

e.g. He gave it to them.

them: third person, plural, feminine, dative, personal pronoun.

If it is a verb, it is necessary to give, person, number, tense, mood, voice and part of speech:

e.g. He gave it to the women.

gave: third person, singular, Past Simple, Indicative, Active of the verb 'to give'.

In the case of a participle which is a verbal adjective, gender and case will have to be given in addition to its characteristics as a verb. Thus:

λυων (luōn) 'loosing': singular, masculine, nominative of the Present Participle Active of the verb λυω, 'I loose'.

ENGLISH GRAMMAR TEST PAPER A

1. Set out the words of the following sentence in a vertical column and determine the part of speech of each, giving your reasons: 'Alas! You have never truly repented of your wicked sins because you are proud.'

2. Give examples of the four kinds of nouns.

3. Write two sentences illustrating the difference between the reflexive and the emphasising pronoun.

4. Explain the difference between the attributive and predicative uses of the adjective.

5. Explain the function of the four moods, illustrating by short sentences, using the verb 'to loose'.

6. Give the names of the tenses in past time which represent the following states: continuous, simple, complete, continuous-complete. What is the first person singular of the verb 'to loose' in each tense?
7. Give an example of a final, a consecutive and a concessive clause.
8. What do you understand by the following terms: syntax, impersonal verb, auxiliary verb, finite verb, dependent question?

ENGLISH GRAMMAR TEST PAPER B

1. What are the nine kinds of pronouns? Give one example of each.
2. Explain the terms transitive and intransitive, active and passive.
3. Describe the functions of the five cases.
4. Give the names of the tenses in present time which represent the following states: continuous, simple, complete, continuous-complete. What is the first person singular of the verb 'to loose' in each tense?
5. Give two examples of the verb infinite.
6. What are the characteristics of verbs of saying and thinking?
7. Give an example of a local, a conditional and an adversative clause.
8. What do you understand by the following terms: predicate, verb of incomplete predication, antecedent, relative superlative, morphology?

LESSON 1

The Greek Language

The alphabet, pronunciation and writing

Greek is a living language with an immensely long history. Its emergence from the parent stock of the Indo-European languages is lost in antiquity. But its written history may be traced from the time of Linear B (c. thirteenth century B.C.); through the period of the great classical writers, like Homer (c. eighth century B.C.), Plato (fourth century B.C.) and many others; through the Hellenistic Age, when the Old Testament was translated into Greek (the so-called Septuagint version comes probably from the second and third centuries B.C.) and the New Testament was written; through the Byzantine period (beginning c. sixth century A.D.), right into modern times. In spite of many changes Greek has been recognisably one language for more than 3000 years. In the classical period different dialects, such as Attic, Ionic and Doric, existed side by side. Of these, Attic became the foremost literary dialect, and it was adopted as the official language of the Macedonian Empire after the conquests of Alexander the Great. Alexander himself ardently desired to propagate Hellenistic culture throughout his domains, and in time Greek became the lingua franca of the civilised world. This 'common' (κοινή) language, the so-called Koiné or Hellenistic Greek, developed somewhat simpler (and sometimes less precise) forms than the purest Attic Greek and it incorporated some forms from other dialects. But in the days of St Paul it was a medium through which he could communicate his message freely throughout the length and breadth of the Mediterranean world. He wrote to the Christians in Rome, not in Latin, but in Koiné Greek.

THE ALPHABET

The Greek Alphabet consists of 24 letters, a good many of which are identical with the corresponding letters of the Latin alphabet which we still employ. Both alphabets were derived from the Phoenician alphabet, from which the Hebrew alphabet also took its origin.

The letters given in the second column on pages 18–19 are now used only as capital letters in printed Greek books, but originally letters like these were used in all Greek writing. They are generally called uncial letters, and all the earliest manuscripts of the New Testament are called uncial manuscripts, because they are written throughout in these letters.

About the tenth century A.D. another style of writing was perfected somewhat like the letters in the third column. These were called cursive or running letters, because, like our modern handwriting, they could be written without raising the pen from the paper. This type of writing has remained in use ever since, both in manuscripts and printed books.

Nowadays capitals are used in Greek for proper nouns and for the first letter of a paragraph, and to mark the beginning of a direct quotation, where English would use inverted commas. They are not generally used at the beginning of each new sentence. The small letters are, therefore, of far greater importance than the capitals and should be mastered first. The capitals will be left till Lesson 2.

The student should learn by heart the list of the names of the letters down the first column, so that he may be able, when the time comes, to find the words in a lexicon as quickly as possible. ('Lexicon' is the term generally used for a Greek-English dictionary.)

The alphabet

Name of letter	Capital letters	Small letters	English equivalent	Pronunciation	Notes
Alpha	A	α	a	like a in French 'à la'

Pī	Π	π	p	like English p
Rhō	P	ρ	r	like English r
Sigma	Σ	σ, s	s	like s in 'house'	(5)

Tau	T	τ	t	like English t	(6)
Upsilon	Υ	υ	u	like oo in 'book'	(7)
Phi	Φ	φ	ph	like English ph or f
Chi	Χ	χ	ch	like ch in 'loch'	(8)
Psi	Ψ	ψ	ps	like ps in 'lips'
Omega	Ω	ω	ō	like o in 'tone'	(2)

Notes. (For illustration of the points made, see Vocabularies, pp. 193 ff.)

(1) Before another gamma, γ is sounded like n, hence: ἄγγελος, 'angel' (Vocab. 5); εὐαγγέλιον 'evangel', 'gospel' (Vocab. 7). (It is also pronounced n before κ, χ, ξ, but words of this type are rare.)

(2) Note that there are two letters to represent the English letter e, and two to represent the letter o. Epsilon and omicron ('little o') are short. Eta and omega ('big o') are long.

(3) ζ is properly dz, e.g. σωζω, 'I save' (Vocab. 3); but when it is the initial letter, it is usually pronounced z, e.g. ζητεω, 'I seek' (Vocab. 4).

(4) ι can also be used as a consonant, e.g. in proper nouns like Ἰησους, 'Jesus' (Vocab. 6) or Ἰουδαίος, 'Jew' (Vocab. 5), in which case it is pronounced like y in 'yes'.

(5) There are two forms of sigma. σ is used when the letter occurs at the beginning or in the middle of a word, ς when it is the final letter, e.g. Ἰησουςς.

(6) 'Tau' (the name of the letter) is pronounced as in 'taught'.

(7) In English words derived from Greek, υ becomes y, e.g. ὑποκριτής becomes 'hypocrite' (Vocab. 9). (Our capital Y has come from the Greek capital Υ through Latin.) ευ, however, sometimes becomes ev, e.g. εὐαγγέλιον, 'evangel'.

(8) It is worth making the effort to distinguish the pronunciation of κ and χ, even if one feels self-conscious in aspirating the ch, since it is a great help to correct spelling. 'Chi' (the name of the letter) is pronounced as in 'kite'.

THE PRONUNCIATION OF DIPHTHONGS

Diphthongs are sounds produced by two vowels being sounded together. Pronounce

αι	as	αι	in	aisle
ει		ει		veil
οι		οι		oil
αυ		αυ		Faust
ου		ου		route
ευ, ηυ		ευ		feud
υι		υι		quit

Note. No distinction in pronunciation is to be attempted between η and ει, or between ευ and ηυ.

WRITING THE SMALL LETTERS

Writing should be practised with the help of two lines. Most letters should be written without removing the pen from the paper. Copy the following example, noticing carefully what parts of the letter are written above and what parts are written below the line. The asterisk denotes the point at which to begin.

Distinguish carefully ν with the pointed base and υ with the rounded base. Note that ι is not dotted.

EXERCISE I

Having learnt the names of the letters in their proper order fluently:

(1) Write out the small letters of the Greek alphabet with the English equivalent for each letter.

(2) Write out the English alphabet and give the Greek small letter equivalent for each letter as far as possible.

These exercises should be repeated until perfect.

LESSON 2

Capital letters, breathings and other signs

CAPITAL LETTERS

Most of the capital letters are very like either their small equivalents, or the equivalent English capital. When the small letters have been mastered, there are only ten capital letters that require notice.

Δ can be easily remembered since a river delta is so called from its resemblance in shape to Δ.

Ρ and Χ are very like the small letters ρ and χ, but need to be distinguished from the English P and X.

Η and Υ are η and υ, not the English H and Y.

Γ Λ Ξ Σ Ω have forms unlike any English letters and different from their small equivalents.

Capital letters are all of the same height, and all rest upon the line.

BREATHINGS

It will be noticed that there is no sign for the letter h in the Greek alphabet. The want of such a sign is made up by the marks called breathings, one of which is written over every vowel or diphthong that begins a word. The rough breathing ' (turned like the opening comma in inverted commas) is sounded like our letter h; δ is pronounced hδ, α is pronounced ha. The smooth breathing ' (turned like the closing comma in inverted commas) indicates that the vowel is to be sounded without the h sound. If the word begins with a diphthong, the breathing is placed over the second vowel, and not over the first. Thus in Vocab. 3 it is εύρισκω, I find, not έυρισκω. ρ at the beginning of a word has a rough breathing, e.g. ῥήμα (Vocab. 29); cf. our English word 'rhododendron' (Vocab. 7). No attempt should be made to pronounce the rough breathing when used with ρ . With vowels, however, breathings must be written and the rough breathing pronounced carefully.¹

IOTA SUBSCRIPT

A small ι is often written under the letters α , η , ω , especially when one of these letters ends a word. It is called the iota subscript and is a relic of an ancient diphthong. It is not pronounced, but it must always be written. Several examples may be seen in the opening verses of St John's Gospel, which is used in Exercise 2.1 below, e.g.

$\acute{\alpha}\rho\chi\eta$ $\alpha\upsilon\tau\omega$ $\sigma\kappa\omicron\tau\iota\alpha$.

PUNCTUATION

The comma	,	as in English
The full-stop	.	as in English
The semi-colon	·	(above the line)
The question-mark	;

ELISION AND DIAERESIS

An apostrophe (the same sign as the smooth breathing) is used to show that a vowel has been elided, i.e. dropped out, before a vowel or diphthong at the beginning of the next word. In Exercise 2.1 (which is taken from John 1. 1-14) there are examples of $\delta\iota'$ written for $\delta\iota\alpha$ (verse 3)

and $\acute{\alpha}\lambda\lambda'$ written for $\acute{\alpha}\lambda\lambda\alpha$ (verse 8).

In both English and Greek a diaeresis (¨) is occasionally placed over the second of two vowels to show that they do not form a diphthong, but are to be pronounced separately, e.g. 'naïve'. There is an example in Exercise 2.2, where (at John 1. 23) the word $\text{'H}\sigma\alpha\acute{\iota}\alpha\varsigma$ (the Greek form of 'Isaiah') occurs. This is four syllables: $\text{'H}-\sigma\alpha-\iota-\alpha\varsigma$, not three: $\text{'H}-\sigma\alpha\iota-\alpha\varsigma$.

¹ In the case of words which begin with a capital letter, the breathing is placed in front of the word. Thus: $\text{'I}\eta\sigma\omicron\upsilon\varsigma$, 'Jesus'; $\text{'I}\omicron\upsilon\delta\alpha\iota\omicron\varsigma$, 'Jew'; $\text{'P}\omega\mu\eta$, 'Rome'. With a diphthong, the breathing is written over the second vowel as usual. Thus: $\text{'Y}\acute{\iota}\omicron\varsigma$, 'Son'.

ACCENTS

In modern printed texts the great majority of words have at least one accent; either acute (´), grave (`) or circumflex (˘ or ˆ). As stated in the preface, these are to be completely ignored, except on the rare occasions (which will be mentioned as they arise) when differences in accent are useful for distinguishing differences of meaning.

STRESS

There are different systems in use for deciding which syllable of a word is to be stressed. It is best simply to take care to pronounce each syllable clearly (particularly to be careful to distinguish the long and short vowels), and then let stress take care of itself.

EXERCISE 2

1. Write out the following in small Greek letters, inserting breathings where necessary. The English letter h at the beginning of a word denotes a rough breathing. The vowels e and o are marked with a stroke over the line when they are long; when not marked they are short. Care must be taken to use the proper Greek letter for them. The letter i in brackets denotes that an iota subscript is to be written under the preceding vowel. An apostrophe (denoting elision) should be reproduced by an apostrophe in Greek.

The student may correct his exercise by comparing it with John 1. 1-14 in the Bible Society's Greek Testament (2nd edn., Nestle-Kilpatrick text). There are a few capital letters in the Nestle-Kilpatrick text. In correcting the exercise the corresponding small letter may easily be checked from the alphabet table. This exercise should be done several times until perfect.

2. Write out the Greek of John 1. 19-28 in English characters. (Be careful to give the correct English equivalents of · and ;.)

3. Write out the following in small Greek letters. (Do not try to insert breathings.) The exercise may be corrected from Matthew 6. 21-4. (It will be seen that iota subscripts have also been ignored.)

ΟΠΟΥ ΓΑΡ ΕΣΤΙΝ Ο ΘΗΣΑΥΡΟΣ ΣΟΥ, ΕΚΕΙ ΕΣΤΑΙ ΚΑΙ Η ΚΑΡΔΙΑ ΣΟΥ. Ο ΛΥΧΝΟΣ ΤΟΥ ΣΩΜΑΤΟΣ ΕΣΤΙΝ Ο ΟΦΘΑΛΜΟΣ. ΕΑΝ ΟΥΝ Η Ο ΟΦΘΑΛΜΟΣ ΣΟΥ ΑΠΛΟΥΣ, ΟΛΟΝ ΤΟ ΣΩΜΑ ΣΟΥ ΦΩΤΕΙΝΟΝ ΕΣΤΑΙ. ΕΑΝ ΔΕ Ο ΟΦΘΑΛΜΟΣ ΣΟΥ ΠΟΝΗΡΟΣ Η, ΟΛΟΝ ΤΟ ΣΩΜΑ ΣΟΥ ΣΚΟΤΕΙΝΟΝ ΕΣΤΑΙ. ΕΙ ΟΥΝ ΤΟ ΦΩΣ ΤΟ ΕΝ ΣΟΙ ΣΚΟΤΟΣ ΕΣΤΙΝ, ΤΟ ΣΚΟΤΟΣ ΠΟΣΟΝ. ΟΥΔΕΙΣ ΔΥΝΑΤΑΙ ΔΥΣΙ ΚΥΡΙΟΙΣ ΔΟΥΛΕΥΕΙΝ· Η ΓΑΡ ΤΟΝ ΕΝΑ ΜΙΣΗΣΕΙ ΚΑΙ ΤΟΝ ΕΤΕΡΟΝ ΑΓΑΠΗΣΕΙ, Η ΕΝΟΣ ΑΝΘΕΞΕΤΑΙ ΚΑΙ ΤΟΥ ΕΤΕΡΟΥ ΚΑΤΑΦΡΟΝΗΣΕΙ· ΟΥ ΔΥΝΑΣΘΕ ΘΕΩ ΔΟΥΛΕΥΕΙΝ ΚΑΙ ΜΑΜΩΝΑ.

4. Read as much as possible of the Greek Testament aloud, paying great attention to the breathings and the length of the vowels. Students who are working alone and who have no one to whom they can read aloud are recommended to put portions of the Greek into English letters, and to put them back into Greek letters after an interval. It is most important to be able to read the characters accurately and quickly before proceeding further.

LESSON 3

The Present Indicative Active of λυω Questions

THE PRESENT INDICATIVE ACTIVE OF λυω

Re-read carefully Introduction: English Grammar, Sections 9, 11, 12, 13, 14.

The present indicative active of the verb λυω 'I loose' is as follows:

1st singular	λυω	I am loosing or I loose
2nd singular	λυεις	you are loosing or you loose
3rd singular	λυει	he, she or it is loosing or looses
1st plural	λυομεν	we are loosing or we loose
2nd plural	λυετε	you are loosing or you loose
3rd plural	λυουσι(ν)	they are loosing or they loose

Movable ν

The so-called 'movable ν' at the end of the third person plural is found as a termination of several Greek forms, which will be noticed as they are reached. The student is advised always to include it, though he will sometimes find it omitted in the New Testament.

Inflection

Each of the Greek words in the table above may be divided into two parts:

(1) A stem λυ, which never changes and which denotes the fundamental meaning of the verb, i.e. 'loose'.

(2) An ending ω, εις, ει, etc., which changes with every person. As nearly every Greek verb has the same endings in the present tense, it is easy to conjugate the present tense of any other verb by first taking off the final ω of the 1st person singular to find the stem, and then adding the endings to this stem.

The words in the table above, when compared with their English equivalents, furnish a good example of one of the principal differences between Greek and English, namely that one word may be sufficient to make a statement in Greek, where two or three words are necessary in English. This is because the endings of words are changed in Greek to denote changes in the meaning of the words, while in English these variable endings have almost entirely disappeared.

For example, in the English Present Simple tense the only form which retains its personal ending is the third person singular 'looses'. Consequently it is necessary to insert a personal pronoun 'I', 'you', 'they', etc., before the verb, to avoid confusion and to show the person and number of the subject of the verb. But in Greek the person and number of the subject of the verb are already made sufficiently clear by the variable ending, and so there is no need to add a personal pronoun unless special emphasis is required.

The second person singular

In spoken English we do not now use the old second person singular 'thou' in addressing a single person, but we use the form 'you'. In Greek the second person singular is always used in addressing a single person, and the second person plural is kept for addressing more than one person.

The old English use could make important distinctions very concisely. For example, at Luke 22. 31, 32 our Lord declared: 'Satan hath desired to have you (plural: the twelve disciples)... But I have prayed for thee (singular: Simon Peter).' But, as one of the purposes of learning Greek is to enable the student to get behind the well-known phraseology of his English version, it seems best to abandon 'thou' and 'thee' altogether. In the early exercises the distinction between singular and plural is always to be clearly indicated. Where 'you' is to be translated into Greek, the number required ('sing.' or 'pl.') will be shown. In rendering Greek into English, the student must similarly say whether 'you' is singular or plural. This practice will be followed as far as Exercise 6, after which the student may use, in ambiguous cases, whichever form he likes.

TRANSLATING THE PRESENT TENSE

It will be noticed that two English equivalents are given for one Greek form of the Present tense. This is because there are more tenses in English than in Greek, and one Greek tense has to do the work of two English tenses. The Greek Present corresponds more closely in meaning to the English Present Continuous than to the Present Simple.

The forms of the Present Continuous tense illustrate another difference between English and Greek, namely that in English we freely employ auxiliary verbs to form our tenses (in this case the Present tense of the verb 'to be' is used) while in Greek a single word is used. Another form of the English Present uses the verb 'to do' as an auxiliary, e.g. 'I do know'. In a statement this is emphatic, but in questions it is often the normal use, e.g. we say, 'Do I know?' not 'Am I knowing?' or 'Know I?' Similarly 'do' is frequently used with the negative, e.g. 'I do not know', 'he does not go'.

QUESTIONS

In Greek there is no difference whatever in the form of a statement and the form of an ordinary question. The existence of a question is indicated solely by the presence of the question-mark (;). The student will need therefore to look at the punctuation-mark at the end of a sentence before deciding how to translate it.

EXERCISE 3

Learn Vocabulary 3 on p. 193. The words given in this and the following vocabularies are words which occur frequently in the New Testament. The number written after each word is the approximate number of times that the word is used in the New Testament. It is hoped that the student will be encouraged to learn the words diligently by realising that when he has learnt the first vocabulary he will be familiar with about 4259 words in the Greek New Testament! The words given in brackets after the English meanings are memory aids. Most of them are derived directly from the Greek words.

For the sake of clarity and simplicity the English equivalents of the verb are given in their Present Simple form, despite the fact that the Present Continuous is nearer to the fundamental meaning of the Greek Present tense.

A

Translate into English: Λυει. λυομεν, λουουσιν, λυετε, λυεις. εϋρισκ-ομεν, γραφει, βαλλετε· βλεπεις, εγειρουσιν. λεγουσιν; κρινετε, βαλλομεν, εσθιω, πεμπουσιν, λαμβανετε, σωζομεν, μενει. εχεις; γνωσκω; θεραπευετε.

B

Give the Greek for: We loose, they loose, you loose (sing.), you loose (pl.), he looses, they are loosing, she is loosing. Do you have (pl.)? He is saving; are they healing? I am throwing; she raises, we judge, you remain (sing.), you judge (pl.); does he send? You are writing (pl.), you are eating (sing.), he finds, we are taking, they see. Do you say (sing.)?

LESSON 4

-εω verbs

There are many verbs whose stems end in ε. When endings are added to such stems, certain contractions take place:

ε combines with ε to give ει

ε combines with ο to give ου

ε coming before a long vowel or a diphthong drops out.

Thus the Present Indicative Active of φιλεω 'I love' is conjugated as follows:

φιλω	for	φιλεω	I am loving or I love
φιλεις		φιλεεις	you are loving or you love
φιλει		φιλεει	he, she or it is loving, loves φιλουμεν		φιλομεν	we are loving or we love
φιλειτε		φιλεετε	you are loving or you love
φιλουσι(ν)		φιλεουσι(ν)	they are loving or they love

These three very important rules of contraction of -εω verbs may be represented diagrammatically thus:

$$\epsilon + \epsilon \rightarrow \epsilon\iota$$

$$\epsilon + \omicron \rightarrow \omicron\upsilon$$

(ε)+long or diphthong.

EXERCISE 4

Learn Vocabulary 4 on pp. 193-4. Note. With verbs of this type the vocabularies (or a lexicon) will always give the first person singular in its uncontracted (-εω) form, so that its method of conjugation may be recognised at once. This is the form in which these verbs should be learnt. But in the New Testament the first person singular will of course always be found in its contracted (-ω) form.

Λαλουμεν, αἰτεῖς, τηρουνω, ποιειτε. μετανοει; μαρτυρουσιν, ζητειτε, καλω· θεωρουμεν, τηρεις, μισω. βλασφημει; εὐλογουσιν, φιλουμεν, βαλλετε, γινωσκω, ἐγειρεις. ἔχουσιν; θεραπευει, κρινετε, μενομεν, σωζουσιν.

B

They are seeking, he asks, you (sing.) call, we are bearing witness, I speak; you (pl.) keep, she makes. Do you (pl.) look at? We love, they are calling, she asks, they do, we are seeking, they bear witness, he is looking at. Are they blaspheming? She is repenting. We hate; you (pl.) bless. I call. We write, they eat, she is finding, it judges, you (sing.) send.

LESSON 5

Second Declension nouns in -ος

The nominative, vocative and accusative cases

Re-read Introduction: English Grammar, Sections 2, 7, 9, 10.

SECOND DECLENSION NOUNS IN -ος

Nouns, like verbs, are much more fully inflected in Greek than in English. λογος (stem λογ), meaning 'word', is typical of a large class of nouns (mostly masculine) which make up the Second Declension in -ος. It is declined as follows:

Singular	Nominative	λογος	a word (subject)
	Vocative	λογε	O word
	Accusative	λογον	a word (object)
	Genitive	λογου	of a word
	Dative	λογῳ	to or for a word
Plural	Nominative	λογοι	words (subject)
	Vocative	λογοι	O words
	Accusative	λογους	words (object)
	Genitive	λογων	of words
	Dative	λογοις	to or for words

(Note the iota subscript which is always found in the dative singular of the first and second declension. It is not sounded.)

There is no indefinite article in Greek. When, therefore, a word like λογος stands alone, it usually means 'a word'. But it can mean simply 'word'. The right translation is nearly always obvious from the context.

NOMINATIVE AND ACCUSATIVE: SUBJECT AND DIRECT OBJECT

In English if we want to show that a word is the subject of a sentence, we nearly always put it before the verb, while the word which is the (direct) object of the sentence is placed after the verb. If we invert the order of the words, we invert the meaning of the sentence. In the sentence 'An angel finds a man', 'an angel' is the subject of the sentence, and 'a man' the object. On the other hand in the sentence 'A man finds an angel', 'a man' is the subject of the sentence, and 'an angel' the object. We have inverted the order of the words, and, in doing so, we have also inverted the meaning of the sentence.

The first of these two sentences would be, in Greek: ἄγγελος εὑρίσκει ἄνθρωπον. We show that ἄγγελος is the subject by putting it in the nominative case, and that ἄνθρωπον is the object by putting it in the accusative case.

In Greek the meaning of the sentence is still the same if we invert the order of the words and write ἄνθρωπον εὑρίσκει ἄγγελος, because in Greek it is not the order of the words, but the case form, which decides which word is the subject or the object. This means that a Greek writer is much freer than we are in the arrangement of words. He can put them down more or less in the order in which they come into his head. When a writer wishes to emphasise a word, he will often either bring it forward to the beginning of the sentence or leave it till the end of the sentence.

Before translating an English sentence into Greek it is necessary to know which word is the subject of the verb, and which is its direct object, if it has one.

The subject can always be found by putting 'who?' or 'what?' before the verb. In the first sentence given above—'An angel finds a man'—we ask, 'Who finds?' The answer is 'an angel'. 'An angel' is therefore the subject. In the same way we can easily see that 'a man' is the subject of the second sentence.

We can find the direct object by placing 'whom?' or 'what?' after the verb. In the case of the first sentence we say, 'An angel finds whom?' Answer: 'a man'. Therefore 'a man' is the object of the sentence.

Transitive and intransitive verbs

Many verbs, such as μένω 'I remain', cannot have a direct object. Verbs which cannot have a direct object are called intransitive verbs. Verbs which can have a direct object are called transitive verbs. Some verbs, such as λαλεω, can be used either transitively or intransitively:

e.g.	Transitive:	λαλουμεν λογους	We speak words
	Intransitive:	λαλουμεν	We talk

(It will be noticed that in the vocabulary only one English equivalent is normally given for each Greek word, e.g. λαλεω, 'I speak'. But in fact two words in different languages are seldom, if ever, precisely equivalent. A word may have several possible translations. λαλεω, for instance, can be translated 'speak', 'talk', 'say', 'utter'. In due course the student will have to learn to use his own judgement in choosing the best rendering. But in the meantime he should adhere to the equivalents given in the vocabularies, in order to impress upon his mind the most generally useful translation.)

Number

Verbs agree with their subject in number.

If the subject of the verb is a noun in the singular, the verb will be in the third person singular; if it is a noun in the plural, or two or more nouns joined together by 'and', the verb will be in the third person plural: e.g.

ἄνθρωπος ἐγείρει λιθον	A man raises a stone
ἄνθρωποι ἐγείρουσιν λιθον	Men raise a stone
ἄνθρωπος καὶ ἄγγελος ἐγείρουσιν λιθον	A man and an angel raise a stone

VOCATIVE

Vocative is the case of address. As in English, it may be preceded by ὦ, 'O!' (Whether ὦ is used or not is largely a matter of the writer's taste.)

Thus:

EXERCISE 5

Learn Vocabulary on p. 194. From now on, attention will not be called to the new vocabularies. The student should automatically look to see if there are any new words to learn as soon as he has completed the lesson.

A

1. Ὁ Ἰσραηλ, θανατον ζητεῖτε; 2. ἄγγελος λαον σωζει. 3. κυριος γραφει λογους. 4. τηρεῖτε νομους. 5. Φαρισαιοι φιλουσιν Χριστον; 6. θεωρεῖτε ἄγρους. 7. ἔχει θρονον. 8. μισεῖ κοσμον και ζητει φιλον. 9. λεπρε, βλασφημεις; 10. γνωσκουμεν θανατον. 11. βαλλω λιθους. 12. διακονοι μαρτυρουσιν. 13. εὐλογουμεν διδασκαλους. 14. ἀποστολος θεραπευει παραλυτικον; 15. Ἰουδαιοι και Φαρισαιοι αἰτουσιν φιλους. 16. ὀφθαλμοὺς θεραπευει. 17. φοβος λαμβανει ἀδελφους και λαον. 18. ζητεῖς πρεσβυτερον; 19. ποιουμεν ποταμον. 20. ἔχω ἐχθρους.

1. An angel calls a man. 2. A brother has a field. 3. Lords send messengers. 4. They are writing words. 5. Are you (pl.) finding a stone? 6. Christ judges men and angels. 7. Do you (sing.) keep laws? 8. A man and an angel seek a place. 9. We bear witness and a people repents. 10. Lord, you remain. 11. Apostles speak and servants have fear. 12. Do you (sing.) make a throne? 13. They hate Christ and love death. 14. An elder speaks. 15. He saves lepers and paralytics and heals eyes. 16. Do Pharisees write laws? 17. Jews, we know Christ. 18. Does she judge words? 19. I am looking at a river. 20. She looses a friend. 21. You (pl.) are seeking a world. 22. Israel says, 'Does Christ save?'¹

¹ There are no inverted commas in Greek. Simply use a capital letter after the comma.

LESSON 6

The genitive and dative cases

The definite article

Declension of Ἰησοῦς

THE GENITIVE CASE

The genitive case can generally be translated into English by the use of the preposition 'of', or by adding 's to the noun,

e.g. οἶκος ἀνθρώπου means a house of a man or a man's house.

THE DATIVE CASE

The commonest use of the dative case is to denote the person to or for whom anything is done, i.e. the indirect object, e.g. γράφει νόμους λαῷ. He writes laws for a people.

μαρτυρεῖ ἀνθρώπῳ. He bears witness to a man.

THE DEFINITE ARTICLE

The definite article ('the') is declined in Greek like a noun. The forms that go with words in the masculine gender are as follows:

Singular	N.	ὁ	Plural	N.	οἱ
	A.	τον		A.	τους
	G.	του		G.	των
	D.	τω		D.	τοις

It will be noticed that the endings, except the nominative singular, are the same as those of λόγος. There is, of course, no vocative.

The definite article is always in the same case and number and gender as the noun to which it is joined,

e.g. του ἀνθρώπου of the man τοις ἀνθρώποις to the men.

'The man's house' is sometimes written in the following order: ὁ του ἀνθρώπου οἶκος.

Special uses of the article

There are four examples of the use of the article in Greek where it is not used in English.

(1) Θεός usually has the article,

e.g. ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ the Son of God.

(2) ἄνθρωπος, when it refers to men as a whole class, usually has the article,

e.g. ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου the son of Man

οἱ υἱοὶ τῶν ἀνθρώπων the sons of men.

(3) Abstract nouns (e.g. love, truth, peace) often have the article, e.g. ἡ ἀγάπη μένει Love remains (for ἀγάπη, see Vocab. 8).

There is one important exception to this rule. It will be recalled that the function of a noun in Greek (unlike English) is indicated by case ending rather than by word order. When two nouns in the nominative are linked by the verb 'to be', it may not be clear which is subject and which is complement. Thus

ὁ Λόγος ἐστὶν ὁ Θεός could be either The Word is God or God is the Word.

In such cases the complement usually drops the article, and is usually placed before the verb.

Θεὸς ἐστὶν ὁ Λόγος can only be The Word is God.¹

So in the case of abstract nouns we have

ὁ Θεὸς ἀγάπη ἐστὶν God is love. (1 John 4. 8, 16)

¹ In ancient manuscripts which did not differentiate between capital and small letters, there would be no way of distinguishing between Θεός ('God') and θεός ('god'). Therefore as far as grammar alone is concerned, such a sentence could be printed: θεὸς ἐστὶν ὁ Λόγος, which would mean either, 'The Word is a god', or, 'The Word is the god'. The interpretation of John 1. 1 will depend upon whether or not the writer is held to believe in only one God or in more than one god. It will be noticed that the above rules for the special uses of the definite article are none of them rigid and without exceptions. It is wiser not to use them as a basis for theological argument until the student has reached an advanced stage in the knowledge of the language. For a full treatment, see Blass-Debrunner-Funk, A Greek Grammar of the New Testament, Part III, 8, especially para. 273; Moulton-Turner, A Grammar of New Testament Greek, III, 182 ff.

(4) The name Ἰησους prefers the article,

e.g. ὁ Ἰησους λαμβανει τον ἄρτον Jesus takes the bread.

With proper names in general, however, it seems to be largely a matter of the author's whim whether he uses the article or not. Sometimes the article is added, sometimes it is left out.

DECLENSION OF Ἰησους

Ἰησους follows a slightly modified form of the Second Declension, having no separate form for the vocative and dative, both of which follow the genitive:

N.	Ἰησους
A.	Ἰησουν
G.V.D.	Ἰησου

A

1. Γραφει τον νομον του Κυριου.
2. οἱ ἄνθρωποι ζητουσιν τους ἀγγελους.
3. οἱ δουλοι ποιουσιν ὁδον τῷ κυρίῳ.
4. ὁ ἀδελφος του δουλου βλεπει τον οἶκον.
5. τηρουσιν τον λογον του Θεου.
6. ὁ Ἰησους εὐλογει τον ἄρτον και τον οἶνον του ἔχθρου.
7. ὁ διαβολος μισε τον του Θεου ναον.
8. ἐσθιετε τον καρπον;
9. ὁ Κυριος σωζει ἁμαρτωλους.
10. οἱ Ἰουδαιοι ποιουσιν σταυρον τῷ Ἰησῷ.
11. παρθενοι γινωσκουσιν τους λογους του ὁχλου.
12. ὁ ἥλιος και ὁ ἄνεμος θεραπευουσιν.
13. ὁ νομος τῷ κοσμῷ ἐστιν.
14. μυσθος ἐστιν ὁ οἶνος.

B

1. Does time remain?
2. Are you (pl.) seeking heaven?
3. James has a reward for the son.
4. We see a desert.
5. The angel writes laws for the world.
6. The man's slave is making bread.
7. The devil seeks a time for Christ's temptations.
8. Sinners see the apostles' words and repent.
9. Jesus says to the crowd, 'Do you love God?'
10. The apostles know the Lord.
11. Does the Son of God seek heaven?
12. They hate temptation.
13. Have you (sing.) a house and fields, bread and wine? 14. We are finding the place for a temple. 15. A man and a servant take the elder's fruit. 16. God is the reward and the reward is God.

LESSON 7

Gender

Second Declension neuter nouns

Re-read Introduction: English Grammar, Section 9 (2).

In English all nouns denoting men or male animals are masculine; all nouns denoting women or female animals are feminine; all other nouns are neuter. But in Greek the rule is not so simple. Nearly all nouns denoting men or male animals are masculine, and nearly all those denoting women or female animals are feminine; but other nouns may be either masculine, feminine or neuter. The gender is usually to be inferred from the ending. As we have seen, most nouns ending in -ος in the Second Declension are masculine.

All nouns ending in -ον are neuter. This includes such words as παιδιον and τεκνον, both of which mean 'child'.

ἔργον 'work' is declined as follows:

Singular	N.	ἔργον	Plural	N.	ἔργα
	V.	ἔργον		V.	ἔργα
	A.	ἔργον		A.	ἔργα
	G.	ἐργου		G.	ἐργων
	D.	ἐργῳ		D.	ἐργοις

Note that the nominative, vocative and accusative cases have the same ending.

The definite article that goes with neuter nouns is declined as follows:

Singular	N.	το	Plural	N.	τα
	A.	το		A.	τα
	G.	του		G.	των
	D.	τω		D.	τοις

That is to say, the definite article follows the endings of ἔργον exactly, except for the nominative and accusative singular, which are το, not τον. (τον is accusative masculine.)

Neuter plural subjects

There is one exception to the rule that verbs agree with their subject in number. Neuter plural subjects are followed by singular verbs. In other words neuter plural subjects are treated as though they were singular collective nouns, e.g. τα παιδια εύρισκει τα βιβλια The children find the books.

This rule is not kept very strictly (especially when the subjects concerned are persons), but it should always be followed by a student when translating into Greek.

A

1. Οἱ Φαρισαῖοι τοῦ συνεδρίου μισοῦσιν τὸν Ἰησοῦν.
2. τὰ δαιμόνια γινώσκει τὸν Χριστὸν καὶ ἔχει φόβον.
3. οἱ ἀποστολοὶ λαλοῦσιν τὸ εὐαγγέλιον κυριοῖς καὶ δουλοῖς.
4. τηροῦμεν τὰ σαββάτα.
5. οἱ διδασκαλοὶ λαλοῦσιν τοῖς τέκνοις τὰ μυστήρια τῶν οὐρανῶν.
6. οἱ ἄνθρωποι ἔχουσιν πρόβατα καὶ πλοῖον.
7. θεωρεῖς τὸ τοῦ Ἰησοῦ πρόσωπον;
8. οἱ δούλοι λαμβανοῦσιν τὰ δένδρα τῷ Ἰακώβῳ.
9. ὁ ἀδελφὸς ζητεῖ τὸ τοῦ παιδιοῦ μνημεῖον.
10. ποιεῖτε τὰ ἔργα τοῦ διαβόλου.
11. οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι γραφοῦσιν βιβλία.
12. βλέπομεν τὰ σημεῖα τῶν καιρῶν.
13. εύρισκει ἀργυρίον.
14. οἱ διακονοὶ τηροῦσιν τὰ ποτήρια τοῦ ἱεροῦ Ἱεροσολύμων.
15. παρθένος ποιεῖ ἱμάτιον τῷ Ἰησοῦ;
16. τὸ μυστήριον εὐαγγέλιον ἐστίν.

B

In this and subsequent exercises, the student is free to translate 'you' as either singular or plural, unless the number is determined by the context.

1. Christ blesses the cup of wine and the bread.
2. Do you know the signs of the Son of Man?
3. The Lord saves men and children.
4. The children ask the elders for garments.
5. Do you see the sheep?
6. We bear witness to the gospel of God.
7. The Jews love the sabbath and Jerusalem.
8. Angels see the face of God.
9. Do the demons love the tombs?
10. The Sanhedrin judges sinners.
11. Children know the mysteries of heaven.
12. Jesus sends the boat.
13. We love the temple's books.
14. We see a place of trees.
15. God hates the works of the devil and of sinners.
16. Have the apostles money?
17. The Sabbath is the sign of God.

LESSON 8

First Declension feminine nouns in -η

There are three closely related forms of the First Declension feminine. An example of the first is ἀρχή 'beginning':

Singular	N.V.	ἀρχή	Plural	N.V.	ἀρχαι
	A.	ἀρχην		A.	ἀρχας
	G.	ἀρχης		G.	ἀρχων
	D.	ἀρχη		D.	ἀρχαίς

The definite article which goes with all feminine nouns is declined thus:

Singular	N.	ἡ	Plural	N.	αἱ
	A.	την		A.	τας
	G.	της		G.	των
	D.	τη		D.	ταις

That is to say, it follows the endings of ἀρχή exactly.

We have now had examples of nouns of all three genders and of the forms of the article which go with them. The full declension of the article is as follows:

		M.	F.	N.
Singular	N.	ὁ	ἡ	το
	A.	τον	την	το
	G.	του	της	του
	D.	τω	τη	τω
Plural	N.	οἱ	αἱ	τα
	A.	τους	τας	τα
	G.	των	των	των
	D.	τοις	ταις	τοις

The definite article, of course, agrees in number, gender and case with the noun with which it is connected.

A

1. Γινωσκουσιν οἱ ἀδελφοὶ τὴν ἀγάπην τοῦ Θεοῦ.
2. ἡ ἀρχὴ τοῦ εὐαγγελίου Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ, Υἱοῦ Θεοῦ.¹
3. οἱ ἀποστολοὶ γραφουσιν τὰς ἐπιστολάς.
4. οἱ Φαρισαῖοι τῆς συναγωγῆς ζητοῦσιν τὴν δικαιοσύνην.
5. εὐλογοῦμεν τὴν ὑπόμνην τοῦ Χριστοῦ.
6. αἱ γραφαὶ μαρτυροῦσιν τῷ Χριστῷ.
7. τηρεῖς τὰς ἐντολάς;
8. οἱ διδασκαλοὶ θεωροῦσιν τὴν νεφέλην.
9. ὁ Ἰησοῦς λαλεῖ τὰς παραβολὰς τῷ λαῷ τῆς κωμῆς.
10. γινωσκόμεν τὴν φωνὴν τοῦ ὄχλου.
11. φιλοῦμεν τὸν οἶκον τῆς προσευχῆς.
12. ἡ ὀργὴ τοῦ Θεοῦ μένει.

LESSON 9

First Declension feminine nouns in -α

The other two forms of the First Declension feminine are:

Singular	N.V.	ἡμερα	day	δοξα	glory
	A.	ἡμεραν		δοξαν
	G.	ἡμερας		δοξης
	D.	ἡμερα		δοξη
Plural	N.V.	ἡμεραι		δοξαι
	A.	ἡμερας		δοξας
	G.	ἡμερων		δοξων
	D.	ἡμεραις		δοξαις

Note. (1) The plural endings are identical with those of ἀρχη.

(2) The singular of ἡμερα is the same as that of ἀρχη, except that α replaces η.

(3) δοξα follows ἡμερα for nominative, vocative and accusative, and ἀρχη for genitive and dative singular.

(4) Nouns with stems ending in vowel or ρ follow ἡμερα, consonant other than ρ follow δοξα.

REVISION TEST 1

Allow yourself 20 minutes. The number of marks to award for each correct answer is shown in square brackets at the end of each question; total 25.

In writing out declensions and conjugations it is not necessary to repeat stems which do not change.

1. Give the Present Indicative Active of μισέω. [1 mark]
2. Decline the definite article in full. [2]
3. Give the Greek for: I do,¹ I eat, I find, I keep, I raise, I take. [3]
4. Give the Greek for: anger, boat, commandment, covenant, face, field, fruit, garment, honour, joy, people, place, prayer, promise, reward, sacrifice, sign, stone, temple (shrine), tomb, unrighteousness, village, widow, world. [12]
5. Give the Greek for: (1) for the sea, (2) of the desert, (3) of love, (4) for the cup, (5) of the tongue, (6) of the way, (7) for Jesus. [7]

LESSON 10

First Declension masculine nouns

Further uses of accusative, genitive and dative

FIRST DECLENSION MASCULINE NOUNS

Nouns of the First Declension ending in -ης or -ας in the nominative singular are masculine. They are declined as follows:

Singular	N.	προφήτης	prophet	νεανίας	young man
	V.	προφήτα		νεανία
	A.	προφήτην		νεανίαν
	G.	προφήτου		νεανίου
	D.	προφήτη		νεανία

Plural	N.	προφῆται	νεανιαί
	V.	προφῆται	νεανιαί
	A.	προφῆτας	νεανίας
	G.	προφῆτων	νεανίων
	D.	προφῆταις	νεανιαῖς

Note. The plural endings are identical with those of the feminine nouns; in the singular, only the vocatives and genitives need be noticed.

First Declension nouns in -ας are nearly all proper names. When such nouns have stems ending in ε, ι or ρ, they are declined precisely like νεανίας with the genitive ending -ου, e.g. Ἀνδρέας, -ου 'Andrew'; Ἠλείας, -ου 'Elijah'. Those with stems ending in other letters have an -α ending in the genitive singular, which is a form found in the Doric dialect. This 'Doric' Genitive is found in such words as Σατανας, -α 'Satan'; Ἰουδας, -α 'Judas'.

Note. Because these words in -ης and -ας are masculine, they will take the masculine form of the definite article.

Thus: ζῆτει τοὺς τελωνὰς He seeks the tax-collectors.
 Conversely: εὗρισκουσιν τὴν παρθένον They find the virgin.

FURTHER USES OF ACCUSATIVE, GENITIVE AND DATIVE

The accusative

(1) In Lesson 5 we saw how the accusative is used for the direct object.

(2) It is also used to express motion to. There are two prepositions meaning 'to', both of which are followed by the accusative: προς meaning 'to' or 'towards', and εἰς meaning 'to' or 'into'. They can be represented diagrammatically thus:

The root idea of the accusative is extension. προς and εἰς define more closely the degree of extension.

The genitive

(1) In Lesson 5 we saw the genitive used to translate 'of'. Frequently this indicates possession, e.g. 'the people of God' (that is, 'the people who belong to God'). But possession is only a particular instance of a more general idea. The genitive in fact expresses the genus (or kind) of the thing specified. Thus 'baptism of repentance', 'son of man', 'coming of Christ' are not possessive, but they all describe in some way the kind of thing specified—the kind of 'baptism', or 'son', or 'coming'. When the genitive expresses the genus of the thing specified we are dealing with an example of the genitive properly so called.

(2) It is also used to express a totally different idea, that of separation. This corresponds to the Latin *ablative*¹ (ablatus meaning 'carried away'). There are two prepositions meaning 'from', both followed by the genitive: ἀπο meaning 'from' or 'away from'; and ἐκ meaning 'from' or 'out of'. Thus:

The dative

(1) In Lesson 6 we saw the dative used to express the indirect object, the person to or for whom something is done. (Notice that the idea of 'to' here is not one of motion, which is accusative, but is one of personal interest.)

(2) The dative can also be used to indicate a place—the so-called locative use. So ἐν, meaning 'in', takes a dative.

¹ In the parent Indo-European language from which both Greek and Latin are derived there were separate genitive and ablative cases. The ablative has survived in Latin, but in Greek the separate case forms have disappeared, and the functions of the ablative have been taken over by the genitive. It is useful to retain the technical term 'ablative' as a means of pin-pointing these uses of the genitive. The locative and instrumental, referred to in the next section, were also separate cases, whose functions have been taken over by the dative. Interestingly, in the present-day Greek of popular speech, the dative itself has now disappeared.

(3) It can also be used for the instrument by which something is done. An example of the instrumental use (which requires no preposition) is:

ὁ ἄγγελος σωζει τον νεανιαν λογῳ.

The angel saves the young man by a word (or with a word).

1. Ὑποκριτα, τηρεις τας ἐντολας ἀλλ' οὐ φιλεῖς τον Θεον. 2. οἱ οὖν μαθηται μενουσιν ἐν τη οἰκίᾳ. 3. ὁ Ἰησους λεγει την παραβολην τοις μαθηταις και τῷ τελωνῇ. 4. ὁ ἀρα Χριστος κριτης ἐστιν των ἀνθρωπων ἐν τη ἡμερᾷ της ὀργης. 5. οἱ ἐργαται βαλλουσιν λιθους εἰς την θαλασσαν; 6. Do the sons of God keep the commandments from (i.e. out of) (the) heart? 4. Do the tax-collectors blaspheme? 5. The disciples then have the love of God. 6. The workmen do not find the way to the cross, and they do not see the sacrifice of Jesus. 7. And the hypocrites do not know life but remain in sin. 8. Christ speaks in parables to the young men; for they seek truth. 9. From the beginning of the world Christ is Lord. 10. The judge does not take the money from the elders of the church, nor does he hate the apostles. 11. The soldiers throw Andrew the apostle into prison. 12. You see with the eyes of love.¹ 13. John the Baptist calls the people to repentance. 14. The Pharisees seek signs from (i.e. out of) heaven. 15. Elijah does not love the sacrifices of sinners, the works of Satan.

LESSON 11

Second Declension adjectives

The attributive use of adjectives

Adjectives used as nouns

Re-read Introduction: English Grammar, Section 6c.

SECOND DECLENSION ADJECTIVES

Adjectives of the Second Declension have endings which we already know. They are of two kinds. Those with stems ending with a consonant other than ρ are declined as follows:

		ἀγαθος good
		M.	F.	N.
Singular	N.	ἀγαθος	ἀγαθη	ἀγαθον
	V.	ἀγαθε	ἀγαθη	ἀγαθον
	A.	ἀγαθον	ἀγαθην	ἀγαθον
	G.	ἀγαθου	ἀγαθης	ἀγαθου
	D.	ἀγαθῳ	ἀγαθῇ	ἀγαθῳ
Plural	N.V.	ἀγαθοι	ἀγαθαι	ἀγαθα
	A.	ἀγαθους	ἀγαθας	ἀγαθα
	G.	ἀγαθων	ἀγαθων	ἀγαθων
	D.	ἀγαθοις	ἀγαθαις	ἀγαθοις

It will be seen that the masculine endings are λογος endings, the feminine endings are ῥχη endings, the neuter endings are ἔργον endings.

Those with stems ending in a vowel or ρ are precisely the same, except that the feminine singular follows ἡμερα, giving:

	ἅγιος holy
	M.	F.	N.
N.	ἅγιος	ἅγια	ἅγιον
V.	ἅγιε	ἅγια	ἅγιον
A.	ἅγιον	ἅγיא	ἅγιον
G.	ἁγίου	ἁγίας	ἁγίου
D.	ἁγίῳ	ἁγίᾳ	ἁγίῳ

ATTRIBUTIVE USE OF ADJECTIVES

In cases where there is no definite article in English, the Greek adjective can come either before or after its noun.

'a good prophet' is either (1) ἀγαθος προφήτης or (2) προφήτης ἀγαθος.

(Adjectives, like the article, of course agree with the nouns which they qualify in number, gender and case.)

When there is a definite article, article and adjective are put in the so-called attributive position, which has two forms:

'the good prophet' is either (1) ὁ ἀγαθος προφήτης or (2) ὁ προφήτης ὁ ἀγαθος.

Note that in both forms of the attributive position the adjective is immediately preceded by the article.

ADJECTIVES USED AS NOUNS

In English we sometimes use an article and an adjective without a noun expressed, e.g. 'the deaf (people)'. In Greek this is quite a common use, giving such expressions as:

ὁ πρῶτος the first man	οἱ ἅγιοι the holy men, the saints
αἱ ἀγαθαί the good women	τα ἔσχατα the last things

Incidentally there is no Greek word for 'things' used in a general sense. Some such form as this must always be used.

EXERCISE II

A

1. Οἱ ἄπιστοι Ἰουδαῖοι οὐ μετανοοῦσιν. 2. ἐν ταῖς ἐσχάταις ἡμέραις ὀλίγοι ἔχουσιν τὴν ἀγάπην. 3. ὁ ἀποστολὸς ὁ ἀγαπητὸς πρῶτον γράφει καὶ νῦν ἐπιστολὴν τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ. 4. ὁ Ἰησοῦς θεραπεύει τοὺς τυφλοὺς καὶ τοὺς λεπροὺς. 5. οἱ μαθηταὶ ἰσθίουσιν τὸν καρπὸν τοῦ ἀκαθάρτου; 6. ὁ Θεὸς κρίνει ἕκαστον νεανίαν. 7. ὁ παραλυτικὸς ἐστὶν ἐν μέσῳ τοῦ ἱεροῦ καὶ εὐλογεῖ τὰ καλά ἔργα τοῦ Θεοῦ. 8. οἱ πτωχοὶ φιλοῦσιν τὸ εὐαγγέλιον.

In this exercise, whenever the definite article is used with an attributive adjective, give both the possible translations.

1. Wise virgins. 2. Sufficient steadfastness. 3. The new life. 4. Beautiful thrones. 5. Believing children. 6. Unbelieving prayers. 7. Bad times (accusative). 8. On (in) the third day. 9. The poor man's garment. 10. The first prayer. 11. The only God. 12. The sins of the unbelievers. 13. New books. 14. An unclean sheep and an unclean soul. 15. A good heart. 16. The last hour. 17. Eternal scriptures. 18. A beloved widow. 19. A few boats of the disciples. 20. Powerful angels. 21. In the midst of the river. 22. O blind hypocrite!

1. The rest find the only young man in the desert. 2. The bad prophets do not bear witness to the truth. 3. The soldiers first make a new cross for the Son of God. 4. Good words save men from death. 5. Does Paul alone remain faithful?¹ 6. Andrew is Christ's first disciple. 7. The wise do not know God by wisdom, but the poor seek the kingdom of God. 8. Jesus, a man powerful in words and works. 9. The servant is a good soldier for Jesus Christ. 10. The remaining children ask for bread from Jesus' brothers. 11. The friends have sufficient money. 12. Paul sees the third heaven. 13. The last enemy is death.

¹ Complement to intransitive verb: E.G. 7.

LESSON 12

Predicative use of adjectives

Present Indicative of the verb 'to be'

PREDICATIVE USE OF ADJECTIVES

Re-read Introduction: English Grammar, Section 7.

Using the verb 'to be' there are two ways of saying 'the prophet is good':

(1) ὁ προφήτης ἐστὶν ἀγαθός.

(2) ἀγαθός ἐστιν ὁ προφήτης.

Note that in both examples ἀγαθός is not an object (which would be accusative) but a complement. It completes the sense of the verb 'to be' (which is a verb of incomplete predication) and is put in the nominative.

It will be noticed that whereas in the attributive use the article always immediately precedes the adjective:

ὁ ἀγαθός προφήτης or ὁ προφήτης ὁ ἀγαθός

in the predicative use there is no immediately preceding article:

ὁ προφήτης ἐστὶν ἀγαθός or ἀγαθός ἐστιν ὁ προφήτης.

This means that it is possible in Greek to drop the verb 'to be' altogether without any confusion arising. So that we get the following table:

Attributive position

(with article)

the good prophet

(1) ὁ ἀγαθός προφήτης

(2) ὁ προφήτης ὁ ἀγαθός

Predicative position

(no article)

the prophet is good

(1) ὁ προφήτης ἀγαθός

(2) ἀγαθός ὁ προφήτης

On the whole the New Testament writers prefer to keep the verb 'to be' with predicative adjectives, but it is important to master the differences between the attributive and predicative positions in cases where there is no verb to help distinguish them.

PRESENT INDICATIVE OF THE VERB 'TO BE'

Singular	1	εἰμι	I am
	2	εἶ	you are
	3	ἐστὶ(ν)	he, she, it is Plural	1	ἐσμεν	we are
	2	ἐστε	you are
	3	εἰσὶ(ν)	they are

Note that the second person singular εἶ is printed with a circumflex accent to distinguish it from the common word εἰ, meaning 'if', which is unaccented. (See Vocab. 39.) Cf.

εἰ Υἱὸς εἶ τοῦ Θεοῦ. (Matt. 4. 3)
If you are the Son of God.

1. Ὁ Θεὸς ἐγείρει τὸν Ἰησοῦν ἐκ τῶν νεκρῶν. 2. μακαριοὶ οἱ καθαροὶ ἐν τῇ καρδίᾳ. 3. ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου οὐ ζητεῖ τὴν δόξαν τὴν ἰδίαν, ἀλλὰ τὴν δόξαν τοῦ Θεοῦ. 4. ὁ πλουσιὸς φιλεῖ τοὺς πτωχοὺς; 5. οἱ δίκαιοι εἰσὶν υἱοὶ τοῦ Θεοῦ. 6. οἱ ἅγιοι βλέπουσιν τὴν δόξαν τῶν οὐρανῶν καὶ μαρτυροῦσιν ταῖς φωναῖς τῶν ἀγγέλων. 7. ὁ Χριστὸς ἔχει τρίτον πειρασμὸν ἐν τῇ ἐρημῳ.

B

Translate the following in two different ways without using the verb 'to be'.

1. The cloud is small.
2. The evil eye.
3. The laws are old.
4. The holy life.
5. The second hour.
6. The sons are free.
7. The new heavens and the new earth.
8. Are the demons strong?
9. Its own reward.
10. The righteous soul.
11. The generation is rich.
12. The right eye.
13. Is love pure?

C

In these sentences use εἶμι to translate the verb 'to be'.

1. Elijah's servant sees a small cloud in the heavens.
2. Are you worthy?
3. The enemies of Christ are children of the devil.
4. You are the Christ.
5. The evil see the second death, for they do not love the wisdom of God.
6. Few find the way of life.
7. The old wine is good, but the new is bad.
8. The strong man looses the slave from prison.
9. We are like sheep.
10. Is it a different tomb?
11. The rich are not free from the authority of God.
12. I am the first and the last.
13. Hypocrite, you are the slave of dead works.
14. The tax-collectors have fruits worthy of repentance for Jesus.
15. The Pharisee's prayer is not clean.
16. He has a different authority.
17. The old teaching is not like the parables of the Lord.
18. You are the enemies of the cross of Christ.
19. Blessed are the disciples' hearts.

LESSON 13

The Imperfect Indicative Active Compound verbs

THE IMPERFECT INDICATIVE ACTIVE

Re-read Introduction: English Grammar, Section 12.

The Imperfect Indicative Active of λυω is as follows:

έλυον	I was loosing, I used to loose
έλυες	you were loosing, you used to loose
έλυε(ν)	he was loosing, he used to loose
έλυομεν	we were loosing, we used to loose
έλυετε	you were loosing, you used to loose
έλυον	they were loosing, they used to loose

It will be noticed that this tense not only has endings after the stem, it also has an ϵ^2 - in front of the stem. This is known as the augment. It indicates action in the past.

To get the Imperfect of $\phi\iota\lambda\epsilon\omega$ the rules of contraction of Lesson 4 have to be applied. Then (except that there is no movable ν in the third person singular) $\lambda\upsilon\omega$ is followed exactly:

$\acute{\epsilon}\phi\iota\lambda\epsilon\omicron\nu \rightarrow \acute{\epsilon}\phi\iota\lambda\omicron\nu\nu$	$\acute{\epsilon}\phi\iota\lambda\epsilon\omicron\mu\epsilon\nu \rightarrow \acute{\epsilon}\phi\iota\lambda\omicron\mu\epsilon\nu$
$\acute{\epsilon}\phi\iota\lambda\epsilon\epsilon\varsigma \rightarrow \acute{\epsilon}\phi\iota\lambda\epsilon\iota\varsigma$	$\acute{\epsilon}\phi\iota\lambda\epsilon\epsilon\tau\epsilon \rightarrow \acute{\epsilon}\phi\iota\lambda\epsilon\iota\tau\epsilon$
$\acute{\epsilon}\phi\iota\lambda\epsilon\epsilon \rightarrow \acute{\epsilon}\phi\iota\lambda\epsilon\iota$	$\acute{\epsilon}\phi\iota\lambda\epsilon\omicron\nu \rightarrow \acute{\epsilon}\phi\iota\lambda\omicron\nu\nu$

Verbs beginning with a vowel

If the verb begins with a vowel, it is not possible to prefix a separate augment. Instead, various vowel changes take place. The basic rule is simple: the vowel is lengthened.

e.g. ϵ becomes η
 \omicron ω^1
 α , however, does not become α , but η .

The following table gives the rules for initial vowel changes in formation of past tenses:

$\alpha \rightarrow \eta$	$\alpha\iota \rightarrow \eta$	$\alpha\nu \rightarrow \eta\nu$
$\epsilon \rightarrow \eta$	$\epsilon\iota \rightarrow \eta$	$\epsilon\nu \rightarrow \eta\nu$ (or remains $\epsilon\nu^2$)
$\omicron \rightarrow \omega$	$\omicron\iota \rightarrow \omega$

Examples:

Present	Imperfect
$\acute{\alpha}\kappa\omicron\upsilon\omega$	$\acute{\eta}\kappa\omicron\upsilon\omicron\nu$
$\acute{\epsilon}\gamma\epsilon\iota\rho\omega$	$\acute{\eta}\gamma\epsilon\iota\rho\omicron\nu$
$\alpha\iota\tau\epsilon\omega$	$\acute{\eta}\tau\omicron\nu\nu$
$\omicron\iota\kappa\omicron\delta\omicron\mu\epsilon\omega$	$\acute{\omega}\kappa\omicron\delta\omicron\mu\omicron\nu$ (Vocab. 14)
$\epsilon\acute{\upsilon}\rho\iota\sigma\kappa\omega$	$\eta\acute{\upsilon}\rho\iota\sigma\kappa\omicron\nu$

² Because of the symmetry of the table, $\eta\nu$ will be regarded as the regular form, though $\epsilon\nu$ is in fact used rather more frequently. Attention will be called to any departure from the $\eta\nu$ form.

The augmented form of ἔχω is irregular:

ἔχω

εἶχον

As these changes take place at the beginning of the words they must be carefully noticed, otherwise it will not be possible to find the words in a lexicon, where verbs are given under the Present tense.¹

THE MEANING OF THE IMPERFECT

As we saw in Lesson 3, the Greek Present tense corresponds most closely to the English Present Continuous tense, usually referring to continuous or repeated action in the present. Similarly the Imperfect denotes continuous or repeated action in past time, and is most closely represented by the English Past Continuous. In order to impress this fact on the memory, the Greek Imperfects should be translated by the English Past Continuous forms in Exercise 13, even if they are sometimes rather clumsy. Experience will show in due course that the English Past Simple ('I loosed', 'I loved') may in fact often be a sufficient translation.

The Present and Imperfect are sometimes said to be linear tenses. Continuous action can be thought of as a line:

and repeated action as a line of dots:

We shall later meet another type of tense which can be represented by a single dot. (See Lesson 24.)

COMPOUND VERBS

In English we have two ways of linking together the sense of a verb and a preposition. The preposition can either be immediately prefixed to the verb, forming a compound verb such as 'OVERthrow', 'UNDERstand', 'UPgrade', 'OUTnumber'; or (which is much more common) it can follow the verb as a separate word, e.g. 'go over', 'bring under', 'send up'. In Greek the former method is used a great deal and there are many compound verbs.

They can be divided roughly into three types:

(1) Those in which the original force of both verb and preposition is fully preserved, e.g.

ἄγω	I lead or bring	βάλλω	I throw ἄπαγω	I lead away	ἐκβάλλω	I throw out

φέρω	I carry
προσφέρω	I bring to, offer

(2) Those in which the preposition serves merely to intensify or complete the meaning of the verb. (This is known as the 'perfective' use of the preposition.) E.g.

λυω	I loose	θνήσκω	} I die
ἀπολυω	I release	ἀποθνήσκω

(There was probably originally a subtle distinction between θνήσκω and ἀποθνήσκω like the difference between 'die' and 'die off'. This distinction has now disappeared and ἀποθνήσκω is the ordinary word for 'die'.)

(3) Those in which the presence of the preposition seems (in appearance at least) completely to have altered the sense of the verb, e.g.

γινώσκω	I know
ἀναγινώσκω	I read (the root meaning of ἀνα is 'up')

With compound verbs the augment comes between the preposition and the verb. Prepositions like ἀπο which end in a vowel, drop the vowel when another vowel immediately follows;¹ ἐκ becomes ἐξ.

Examples:

	Present	Imperfect
	ἀποθνήσκω	ἀπεθνήσκον
	ἐκβάλλω	ἐξεβάλλον
	ἄπαγω	ἄπηγον
but	περιπατέω	περιπατούν (Vocab. 14)

1. Ὁ Ἰησοῦς παρελαμβάνεν μικρά παιδία, καὶ τὰ μικρά παιδία ἤκουεν τοῦ Ἰησοῦ.
2. οἱ ἁμαρτωλοὶ οὐχ ὑπήκουον τῷ προφῆτῃ.
3. Παῦλος ἐδίδασκεν τὸ εὐαγγέλιον καὶ ἐπιστενετε τοῖς λόγοις.
4. ἀνεγινώσκειν ἐν τῷ βιβλίῳ τοῦ παλαιοῦ νομοῦ.
5. ὁ δὲ Χριστὸς φέρει σταυρὸν καὶ περισσεύει ἐν ἀγαπῇ.
6. ὁ ἅγιος ἄγγελος ἠνοιγεν θύραν ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς.
7. ὁ οὖν νεανίας ὁ πλουσιος ὑπήγεν εἰς τὸν ἴδιον οἶκον.
8. χαίρομεν ἐν Κυρίῳ, ἀγὲι γὰρ τὴν ἐκκλησίαν εἰς τὴν ἀληθειαν.
9. ὁ Χριστὸς ἐξεβάλλεν τοὺς πονηροὺς ἐκ τοῦ ἱεροῦ;
10. οἱ δίκαιοι οὐ προσέφερον θυσίας ἐν ἑτέρῳ ἱερῷ.
11. ἐκλαίομεν καὶ ἐπροφήτεuομεν τὴν ὀργὴν ἐξ οὐρανοῦ.
12. τὸ γὰρ συνέδριον ἐπεγινώσκειν τὴν σοφίαν τῆς διδαχῆς τῆς χήρας.
13. ἱμάτιον δὲ ὁ ἐργατῆς ἐνδύει τὸ παιδίον καὶ πειθεὶ τοὺς πρεσβυτέρους παραβολῇ.
14. προσεφερομεν τὸ ἀργυρίον τῷ τελωνῇ, ἀλλ' ἐδίωκεν τοὺς πλουσίους καὶ τοὺς πτωχοὺς.
15. οἱ ἐχθροὶ τοῦ λαοῦ ἀπεθνήσκον ἐν φυλακῇ, ὁ δὲ κριτῆς ἀπέλυεν ὀλίγους δούλους.
16. οὐκ ἐδίδασκεν τὰ τέκνα, οὐδὲ ἀπήγεν τὴν ἰδίαν γενεάν ἀπο τῶν ὁδῶν τῆς ἀδικίας.

1. They were teaching the gospel to the disciples.
2. The virgins were departing from the house.
3. They were carrying the slave's boat to the sea.
4. The prophets used to teach the children in the houses.
5. You were offering honour to the Lord, O angels.
6. Hypocrite, you were obeying the crowd.
7. They were bringing the sheep together to the trees.
8. The child was reading the scriptures in the temple.
9. We were leading the soldiers away from the sea.
10. John the Baptist was not doing signs.
11. The Lord used to lead the disciples into the wilderness.
12. Therefore you were persuading the people.
13. The saints were rejoicing, but sin was abounding.
14. Was he throwing out demons?
15. We were receiving the head of James.
16. You were releasing the slaves.
17. They were weeping and dying, for they were not hearing the Lord nor the promise. 18. Jesus was opening the eyes of the blind, and they were recognising their own friends. 19. He was pursuing the unbelieving widow.

LESSON 14

Demonstratives, ὁλος

For the next two lessons, re-read Introduction: English Grammar, Sections 5; 6A (3) (6).

DEMONSTRATIVES

In both Greek and English οὗτος 'this' and ἐκεῖνος 'that' can be used as either demonstrative pronouns or demonstrative adjectives. They are used as pronouns in the sentence, 'This is that'; as adjectives in the sentence 'This prophet read that book'.

ἐκεῖνος ('that') is declined as follows:

		M.	F.	N.
Singular	N.	ἐκεῖνος	ἐκεῖνη	ἐκεῖνο
	A.	ἐκεῖνον	ἐκεῖνην	ἐκεῖνο
	G.	ἐκεῖνου	ἐκεῖνης	ἐκεῖνου
	D.	ἐκεῖνω	ἐκεῖνῃ	ἐκεῖνῳ
Plural	N.	ἐκεῖνοι	ἐκεῖναι	ἐκεῖνα
	A.	ἐκεῖνους	ἐκεῖνας	ἐκεῖνα
	G.	ἐκεῖνων	ἐκεῖνων	ἐκεῖνων
	D.	ἐκεῖνοῖς	ἐκεῖναις	ἐκεῖνοῖς

The endings, it will be noted, are exactly the same as the endings of ἀγαθος, except in the nominative and accusative singular neuter, where the ending is -ο instead of -ον.

οὗτος ('this') is declined as follows:

		M.	F.	N.
Singular	N.	οὗτος	αὐτή	τούτο
	A.	τούτον	ταυτήν	τούτο
	G.	τούτου	ταυτης	τούτου
	D.	τούτῳ	ταυτῇ	τούτῳ
Plural	N.	οὗτοι	αὐταί	ταυτα
	A.	τούτους	ταυτας	ταυτα
	G.	τούτων	τούτων	τούτων
	D.	τούτοις	ταυταίς	τούτοις

The irregularities of this declension are covered by three rules:

(1) The endings are the same as the endings of ἐκεῖνος.

(2) The initial sound (τ or rough breathing) is the same as the initial sound of the definite article.

(3) The first syllable can be either ου or αυ. It is not true, as might at first be supposed, that ου is used for masculine and neuter and αυ for feminine. The rule is:

Where there is an o in the ending, there is an o in the stem.

Thus the nominative plural neuter is ταυτα, and the genitive plural feminine is τούτων.

In English we do not use the article with a demonstrative adjective. We say, 'This sheep'; not, 'The this sheep' or 'This the sheep'. But in Greek the noun always has the article and οὗτος and ἐκεῖνος stand in the predicative position. Thus:

This sheep: (1) τούτο το πρόβατον or (2) το πρόβατον τούτο

In order to say 'This is the sheep', εἰμι must be used: τούτο ἐστὶν το πρόβατον.

When a demonstrative stands by itself without any word expressed for it to agree with, a noun must be supplied in English. Thus οὗτος means 'this man', ἐκείνη 'that woman', ταυτα 'these things'.

όλος

όλος means 'whole'. Its use is similar to that of the demonstratives. To say 'the whole', the noun must again have the article and όλος be placed in the predicative position. But it is declined regularly, like αγαθος -η -ον.

Thus: The whole sheep: (1) όλον το προβατον or (2) το προβατον όλον

1. Ούτοι οί άνθρωποι άπεθνησκον έν τη έρημω. 2. εκείνα δε τα δένδρα έβαλλον είς την θαλασσαν. 3. αύται έμενον έν τω πλοιω.
4. ό γαρ Θεος σωζει ταυτας άπο του πονηρου. 5. ού γαρ κρινομεν ταυτα. 6. έλεγομεν τας έπαγγελιας ταυτας έν τη εκκλησια; 7. εκείνοι δε έξεβαλλον δαιμονια. 8. έν εκείνη τη ήμερα ηύλογουν την σοφίαν του Κυριου. 9. έν τη ώρα εκείνη έχαιρομεν.
10. τον δε οίνον έλαμβανεν και ηύχαριστεί τω Θεω. 11. παρακαλουμεν και έφωνουμεν, άλλ' ούκ ήκολουθουν. 12. όλος δε ό όχλος ήδικει και ού διηκονει ούδε προσεκυνει τω Θεω. 13. τα παιδια ήσθενει, άλλ' ό πλουσιος περιπατει έν ταις όδοις της άδικιας.
14. ό στρατιωτης ό πονηρος κρατει και δει τον έργατην τω δένδρω. 15. οί πτωχοι έγαμουν και κατωκουν έν τη γη. 16. ό ούν σοφος κυριος έλεει τους δικαιους και οίκοδομει οικιας ταις χηραις. 17. όλη γαρ ή συναγωγή έδοκει όμοια προβατοις.

1. This woman was following the young man. 2. That evil servant used to bind his own son. 3. These elders seem blind. 4. The happy elder was calling to the whole crowd. 5. This second brother therefore used to serve and worship God in a different temple. 6. The paralysed were walking, the rich were encouraging the poor, the strong were building houses for the elders, the whole people was giving thanks. 7. They marry and dwell in the village in peace and honour.¹ 8. He used to have mercy on the saints, for they were ill. 9. The devil takes hold of small children and injures the church. 10. For the Lord saves the souls of men from the evil one. 11. Love and truth are in the eternal kingdom of God. 12. And in that day we were hearing the gospel and casting out demons.

LESSON 15

αὐτός, ἑαυτον, ἄλλος, ἄλληλους

Imperfect of εἶμι

αὐτός

αὐτός, αὐτή, αὐτό is declined like ἐκεῖνος.

It has three uses:

(1) Personal pronoun (third person).

αὐτός	he	αὐτή	she	αὐτό	it
αὐτον	him	αὐτην	her	αὐτο	it
αὐτου	of him, his	αὐτης	of her, her	αὐτου	of it, its αὐτω	to him	αὐτῃ	to her	αὐτω	to it αὐτοι		αὐται	αὐτα	they αὐτους		αὐτας	αὐτα	them
αὐτων		αὐτων	αὐτων	of them, their αὐτοις		αὐταις	αὐτοις	to them

Examples:

(a) πεμπει αὐτους ἐκ του ἱερου. He is sending them out of the temple.

(b) οὗτοι εἰσιν οἱ οἶκοι αὐτου. These are his houses (the houses of him).

(c) αὐτος σωζει τον λαον. He saves the people.

In sentence (b) it will be seen that the genitive of the personal pronoun is used as a possessive pronoun ('his', 'her', 'its', 'their').¹

¹ Personal and possessive pronouns of the first and second person are dealt with in Lesson 19.

In sentence (c) σωζει would of course sufficiently translate 'he saves' without the addition of αὐτος. Its inclusion would probably suggest some emphasis. It is to be noted, however, that in this case it is a personal pronoun, not an emphasising pronoun. An emphasising pronoun is linked with a noun.

(2) Emphasising pronoun. In this use αὐτος goes in the predicative position.

(a) αὐτος ὁ Κυριος	} σωζει τον λαον	The Lord himself ¹ saves the people.
(b) ὁ Κυριος αὐτος

(3) Identical adjective. In this use αὐτος goes in the attributive position.

(a) ὁ αὐτος Κυριος	} σωζει τον λαον	The same Lord saves the people.
(b) ὁ Κυριος ὁ αὐτος

ἐαυτον

A reflexive pronoun is always in the predicate. It refers back to the subject of the sentence, the pronoun and the subject being the same person (or thing). There is therefore no nominative of the reflexive pronoun. Apart from this, the third person reflexive pronoun, ἐαυτον, is declined just like αὐτος.²

Singular	A.	ἐαυτον	ἐαυτην	ἐαυτο
	G.	ἐαυτου	ἐαυτης	ἐαυτου
	D.	ἐαυτω	ἐαυτη	ἐαυτω
Plural	A.	ἐαυτους	ἐαυτας	ἐαυτα
	G.	ἐαυτων	ἐαυτων	ἐαυτων
	D.	ἐαυτοις	ἐαυταις	ἐαυτοις

Examples:

ὁ Ἰησους οὐ σωζει ἐαυτον	Jesus does not save himself.
ὁ Ἰησους ἐπεγινωσκεν τουτο ἐν ἐαυτω	Jesus was perceiving this in himself.

¹ The emphasising pronoun will mean 'himself', 'herself', 'ourselves', etc. according to the context. An emphasising pronoun is occasionally linked with another pronoun, e.g. John 3. 28: 'you yourselves'. It can also be used with a verb whose subject is only expressed in the verb ending, e.g. 1 Cor. 9. 27: 'I myself'; cf. Ex. 15 C 5: 'we ourselves'.

² Reflexive pronouns of the first and second person are dealt with in Lesson 19.

ἄλλος

There are two ordinary words for 'other': ἕτερος and ἄλλος.¹ ἄλλος is declined like ἐκεῖνος:

ἄλλος ἄλλη ἄλλο

When it is used with a noun, however, it stands (not in the predicative position, like ἐκεῖνος, οὗτος and ὅλος but) in the attributive position. Thus:

The other sheep: (1) το ἄλλο πρόβατον or (2) το πρόβατον το ἄλλο.

ἀλλήλους

From ἄλλος is formed the reciprocal pronoun ἀλλήλους, 'one another'. ἀλλήλους of course has no nominative and no singular. The forms found in the New Testament are:

A. ἀλλήλους
G. ἀλλήλων
D. ἀλλήλοις

Examples:

φιλοῦμεν ἀλλήλους	We love one another.
φίλοι ἐσμεν ἀλλήλων	We are friends of one another.
γραφόμεν ἐπιστολάς ἀλλήλοις	We write letters to one another.

IMPERFECT OF εἶμι

The Imperfect tense of the verb 'to be' is as follows:

ἦμην	I was
ἦς or ἦσθα	you were
ἦν	he, she, it was ἦμεν or ἦμεθα	we were ἦτε	you were
ἦσαν	they were.

¹ In classical Greek ἕτερος is the correct word when speaking of the other of two, but in the New Testament this distinction between the two words has almost disappeared.

1. Ἐθεωρουμεν τοὺς οἴκους αὐτῶν.
2. οὗτος ἦν μαθητῆς Ἰωαννοῦ τοῦ βαπτιστοῦ.
3. ἡμεν γὰρ δούλοι τῆς ἁμαρτίας.
4. ἦτε οὖν διακονοὶ τοῦ λαοῦ.
5. οἱ υἱοὶ αὐτοῦ ἦσαν κακοὶ.
6. αὕτη γὰρ ἦν ἡ ἐντολὴ αὐτοῦ.
7. αἱ λοιπαὶ τῆς κωμῆς συνηγοντα πρόβατα αὐτῶν ἐν μεσῷ τοῦ ἀγροῦ.
8. αὐτὸς ὁ Ἰησοῦς οὐ προσεκυνεὶ ἀλλ' οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ.
9. ἡ ζωὴ μενεὶ ἐν αὐτοῖς.
10. ἐκεῖνοι ἦσαν ἕτεροὶ ἄρτοι καὶ ἄλλο ποτηριον.
11. ἥς ὑποκριτῆς καὶ ἡμεῖθα τυφλοὶ.
12. ἡμὴν ἀγαπητὸς, ἀλλ' ἐμισεῖτε ἀλλήλους.
13. ἦσθα πονηρὰ.

B

Express in two different ways: 1. This face. 2. The whole face. 3. The face itself. 4. That face. 5. The same face. 6. The other face. 7. His own face.

Express in one way: 8. A different face. 9. The faces of one another. 10. They were persuading themselves.

1. In the beginning was the Word.¹
2. This is the love of God.
3. The same disciples were giving thanks to the rich tax-collector.
4. You used to see her sons in the house.
5. We ourselves were receiving them into the other boat.
6. You were in the temple in those days.
7. This is eternal life.
8. They were holy and beloved.
9. Their children were in the assembly.
10. They were reading the Scriptures to one another in the synagogue.
11. These same Jews used to hear and follow their own prophets.
12. The Baptist himself used to teach his disciples.
13. Another child throws himself into the sea.

Do not express the first article.

LESSON 16

Cases, time, prepositions Preparatory use of 'there' and 'it'

Re-read Lesson 10: Further uses of Accusative, Genitive and Dative.

CASES

We saw there how certain prepositions take or (as it is said) 'govern' certain cases. Prepositions do not, strictly speaking, 'govern' the cases of the nouns which they precede. The case is really the governing element in the expression; the preposition only serves to make clear the exact sense in which the case is used. This, at least, was true in the earlier history of the language, but as the language developed the prepositions mastered the cases. As the horse in the fable called in the man to help him against the stag, and allowed him to get on his back, so the cases called in the help of the prepositions, and then found themselves weakened or even destroyed. Nevertheless, it is important and helpful to try to understand as fully as possible the basic idea of the cases, for it at once brings together in an intelligible way uses which at first seem arbitrary.

TIME

Consider, for instance, the ways of expressing time.

(1) The accusative represents extension in time, just as it does extension in space. Therefore time how long is accusative,

e.g.	δυο ἡμέρας (acc. pl.)	for two days
	μενουσιν την ἡμεραν ἐκεινην	they remain that day.

(2) The genitive represents the 'genus' or kind of time. Take the sentence: 'He journeyed by day.' Which 'kind of time' did he have on his journey? He journeyed 'during the day-time'. Time during which is therefore genitive. So:

ἡμέρας	(gen. sing.).	by day
--------	---------------	--------

(3) The dative represents a place or point in time (a locative use).
Therefore time at which is dative,

e.g. τη τριτη ἡμερα on the third day.

None of these uses requires a preposition, though a preposition may on occasions be added as well, e.g. 'on the third day' could be translated ἐν τη τριτη ἡμερα.

PREPOSITIONS WITH THREE CASES

παρα

Consider also the preposition παρα. παρα means 'beside', and it can take three possible cases: accusative, genitive or dative. When the meaning of παρα is combined with one of the meanings of the cases, we get the following results:

- (1) παρα with accusative is motion to beside or alongside, βαλλει αὐτο παρα την οδον he throws it beside the way περιπατει παρα την θαλασσαν he walks beside the sea.
- (2) παρα with genitive is motion from beside, an ablative use, ἄνθρωπος παρα του Θεου a man from God.
- (3) παρα with dative is rest beside, a locative use, μενουσιν παρ' αὐτω they remain with him.

ἐπι

ἐπι, meaning 'upon', can also take three cases, but in the New Testament the distinctions between the uses of the cases have become blurred. The student, however, should use accusative if the idea is motion-to-upon, and dative (i.e. locative) if the idea is rest upon, βαλλει ἄλλα ἐπι την γην he throws others on the good την καλην earth

μενει ἐπι τη πετρα he remains upon the rock.

One particular use of ἐπι with genitive, meaning in the time of, should be noted:

ἐπ' Ἡλειου του προφητου in the time of Elijah the prophet.

With many prepositions the connection between the root idea of the case and the meaning of the preposition is no longer clear, and it is probably best simply to learn the meanings as a vocabulary. This applies to most of the words which follow.

PREPOSITIONS WITH TWO CASES

Six prepositions which can take either accusative or genitive are set out below, together with easy phrases which may help to fix their commonest meanings in the memory.

(1) δια

Acc.	because of	δια τουτο	because of this
Gen.	through	δια του ιερου	through the temple

(2) μετα

Acc.	after	μετα ταυτα	after these things
Gen.	with	μετ' αυτων	with them

(3) υπερ

Acc.	above	υπερ τον διδασκαλον	above the teacher
Gen.	on behalf of	υπερ των προβατων	for the sheep

(4) υπο

Acc.	under	υπο εξουσιαν	under authority
Gen.	by	υπο του διαβολου	by the devil

Note. υπο meaning by is used for an agent (i.e. a person), while the dative without a preposition is used for an instrument (i.e. a thing). See Lesson 10, and see further Lesson 17.

(5) *κατα*¹

Acc.	according to	κατα τον νομον	according to the law
Gen.	against	κατα της ψυχης	against the soul

¹ The root meaning of κατα is 'down', but this is seldom found except in compound verbs, such as καταβαινω 'I go down' (Vocab. 25). There are many possible translations of κατα-with-accusative. Two additional common expressions are given in the vocabulary.

(6) περι. As with ἐπι the distinction between the uses of the cases is often not clear. It is sufficient to know that περι, meaning 'about', can take either accusative or genitive.

Some further prepositions which take only one case are given in the vocabulary. For revision purposes, Lesson 16 and the vocabulary should be used together.

PREPARATORY USE OF 'THERE' AND 'IT'

In English the word 'there' is sometimes used without any local force, but simply to show that the subject is going to follow the verb. This preparatory 'there' is not translated in Greek.

E.g. ἐστὶν μισθος ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς.

There is a reward in heaven.

Similarly with 'it'. With expressions like 'it is lawful', 'it is necessary', 'it is good', the subject follows the verb. 'It is lawful to heal on the sabbath' is equivalent to 'To-heal-on-the-sabbath is lawful'.

A

1. Λαλουμεν κατα την αληθειαν.
2. ἦγον μετα των στρατιωτων ἡμερας.
3. ὁ διδασκαλος ἐστὶν ὑπερ τον μαθητην.
4. ἡ αὐτή χηρα περιεπατει περι την κωμην.
5. ἐδιδασκον καθ' ἡμεραν ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ.
6. ὁ Κυριος ἐλαλει δια του προφητου αὐτου.
7. οὐκ ἐστε ὑπο νομον, ἀλλ' ὑπο την ἀγαπην.
8. ἀπεθνησκεν ἐπι τῷ θρονῷ Ἰσραηλ.
9. ἦν ἄγγελος παρα του Θεου.
10. περιπατουσιν μετ' ἀλληλων παρα την θαλασσαν.
11. ἡμεθα ἁμαρτωλοι ἐνώπιον του Θεου.
12. ἐμπροσθεν του ναου ἐστὶν ὁ του κριτου θρονος.
13. προ ἐκείνης της ὥρας οὐκ ἐθεωρουں την δοξαν αὐτου οὔδε ἤκουον την φωνην αὐτου.
14. οἱ τελωναι συν ἀλλοις ἁμαρτωλοις ἠύρισκον σωτηριαν.
15. ἦν περι την τριτην ὥραν.
16. δι' ἀνθρωπου ἐστὶν ὁ θανατος, ἀλλ' ὁ Χριστος τηρει τους ἰδιους μαθητας ἕως της παρουσιας αὐτου.
17. χωρις αὐτου ἀσθενουμεν.

1. They were departing privately to their own houses. 2. God was leading them through temptation until the last day. 3. God is for (i.e. on behalf of) his people, but the workmen of Satan are against the church. 4. The evil man is dead because of sin. 5. After that we used to speak to one another. 6. They know about clothes apart from the teaching of the book. 7. For I am a man under authority. 8. He is remaining with him this day. 9. He throws stones upon the fields of his enemy. 10. There were poor in Israel in the time of Elijah the prophet. 11. On the third day they were seeking a sign from him out of heaven. 12. The joy of salvation abounds apart from the law.

LESSON 17

The Passive voice of the Present and Imperfect Indicative
Agent and instrument

THE PASSIVE VOICE OF THE PRESENT AND IMPERFECT INDICATIVE

Re-read Introduction: English Grammar, Section 13.

The Passive voice is formed in Greek by the use of inflections, and not by the use of the auxiliary verb 'to be' as in English.

The Passive of the Present and Imperfect Indicative of λυω is as follows:

Present Indicative Passive

λυομαι	I am being loosed
λυη	you are being loosed
λυεται	he is being loosed
λυομεθα	we are being loosed
λυεσθε	you are being loosed
λυονται	they are being loosed

Imperfect Indicative Passive

ἐλνομην	I was being loosed
ἐλνουν	you were being loosed
ἐλνετο	he was being loosed
ἐλνομεθα	we were being loosed
ἐλνεσθε	you were being loosed ἐλνοντο	they were being loosed

As in the case of the Active voice, a simple tense 'I am loosed', 'I was loosed', etc., will often be a sufficient translation.

The Present and Imperfect Indicative Passive of -εω verbs are entirely regular. The rules of contraction of Lesson 4 have to be applied, and the following forms of φιλεω result:

Present Indicative Passive

φιλεομαι	→ φιλουμαι	φιλομεθα	→ φιλουμεθα
φιλεη	→ φιλη	φιλεεσθε	→ φιλεισθε
φιλεεται	→ φιλειται	φιλεονται	→ φιλουνται

Imperfect Indicative Passive

ἐφιλεομην	→ ἐφιλουμην	ἐφιλομεθα	→ ἐφιλουμεθα
ἐφιλεου	→ ἐφιλου	ἐφιλεεσθε	→ ἐφιλεισθε
ἐφιλεετο	→ ἐφιλειτο	ἐφιλεοντο	→ ἐφιλουντο

AGENT AND INSTRUMENT

A verb in the Passive will often be followed by an agent. Consider the sentences:

ὁ ἄγγελος λυει τον ἀποστολον	The angel is loosing the apostle.
ὁ ἀποστολος λυεται ὑπο του ἀγγελου	The apostle is being loosed by the angel.

Both these sentences express the same idea, but they express it in different ways. It will be noticed that when a sentence with a verb in the active voice is turned into a sentence with a verb in the passive voice, as has been done in the sentences given above, the object of the first sentence, 'the apostle', becomes the subject of the second, while the subject of the first sentence, 'the angel', is introduced in English by the preposition 'by'.

But consider the sentence:

ὁ κόσμος τηρεῖται τῇ σοφίᾳ τοῦ Θεοῦ.

The world is being kept by the wisdom of God.

It will be seen that the form of this sentence is the same in English as that of the second sentence given above. In Greek, however, the sentences are not the same in form: the preposition followed by a genitive is used in the one sentence, and a simple dative in the other. This is because the doer of the action in the first sentence is a living person, i.e. 'the angel'; but the thing that does the action in the second sentence is not a living person, but 'wisdom'. The former is spoken of as the agent; the latter as the instrument.¹ It is possible to have both agent and instrument with the same verb, e.g.

ὁ ἀποστολὸς λυεῖται ὑπὸ τοῦ ἀγγέλου λόγῳ

The apostle is being loosed by the angel by (or, with) a word.

EXERCISE 17

These exercises are designed to give further practice in the use of the Passive and of prepositions. There is no new vocabulary. This is a suitable point for a thorough revision of the vocabularies so far learnt.

Α

1. Ἐπεμπεσθε ὑπο τῶν διδασκαλῶν πρὸς ἕτερον ὄχλον.
2. ἐν τούτῳ τῷ τόπῳ ἐθεωροῦμεν τοὺς ὀφθαλμοῖς τὸν Κύριον τῶν οὐρανῶν.
3. οὗτοι οἱ λόγοι ἐλάλουντο ὑπο τῶν ἀποστόλων ἐνώπιον τῶν πρεσβυτέρων.
4. ἅτα δὲ πρόβατα ἐδίωκετο λίθοις ὑπο τῶν παιδιῶν.
5. ἐπεμπομεθα μετὰ τῶν προφητῶν ἐμπροσθεν τοῦ ὄχλου.
6. διὰ τοῦτο ἐπειθὺ τοῖς λόγοις τῶν κριτῶν.
7. πρὸ τούτων οἱ τελῶναι ἐδίδασκοντο συν τοῖς νεανίαις.
8. οἱ υἱοὶ αὐτοὶ ἡσθίων τοὺς αὐτοὺς ἄρτους.
9. τυφλὲ ὑποκριτὰ, οὐ περιπατεῖς κατὰ τὰς ὁδοὺς τοῦ νομοῦ.
10. σταυρὸς ἐποιεῖτο ὑπο τῶν ἐργατῶν ἑκάστῳ ἁγίῳ ἐν Ἱεροσολυμοῖς.
11. οἱ φίλοι ἐπέμπον

¹ As we saw on p. 45, n. 1, what we now call the dative was originally three separate cases: dative, locative and instrumental.

ὀλίγους ἄρτους πρὸς ἀλλήλους, καὶ ὀλίγον οἶνον καὶ ἱκανὸν ἀργυρίον πρὸς τοὺς ἀξίους ἀδελφούς¹ ἐν φυλακῇ. 12. ὦ Ἱερουσαλημ, οὐχ εὕρισκῃ πιστῇ, εἰ γὰρ κατὰ τῆς ἀληθείας. 13. παρεκαλουμένα τοῖς λόγοις τῆς διαθήκης ἐν ἐκείνῳ τῷ χρόνῳ.² 14. ἡγομεν τὰς καθάραις θυσίας διὰ τοῦ ἱεροῦ ὀπίσω τῶν πλουσιῶν τοῦ συνεδρίου. 15. μετ' ἐκείνας τὰς ἡμέρας οἱ λοιποὶ στρατιῶται ὑπήγον ἐξω τῆς κωμῆς. 16. ἐκλαίετε ὑπὲρ τῶν ἀπιστῶν καὶ τῶν ἀκαθάρτων.

1. The word of God was being read by the apostles. 2. The tomb was being built under the temple. 3. Because of this the judges were being persuaded by the faithful teachers. 4. You were leading the people after the beloved prophet through the desert to Jerusalem. 5. After this they were being sought for by the whole crowd. 6. The stones were upon the earth above the river. 7. The throne was being carried by the workmen to another place beside the house. 8. The world was being made through the Son of God. 9. O hypocrite, you are not speaking about the commandments of the Lord. 10. The young men themselves were being taught by their own teachers. 11. Therefore after these things we used to speak the word of God to the disciples. 12. You were being roused³ by the powerful words of the prophet's anger.

¹ A more polished Greek would add an article here: τοὺς ἐν φυλακῇ—'the ones ἐν φυλακῇ' or 'who were ἐν φυλακῇ'. The article can be used with a prepositional phrase as with an attributive adjective. But Koiné Greek is not so particular. Cf. οἱ ἄγγελοι ἐν οὐρανῷ (Mark 13. 32).

² See Lesson 16, 'Time at which'.

³ Use ἐγείρω.

LESSON 18

The relative pronoun The Present Imperative Questions

For the next two lessons, re-read Introduction: English Grammar, Sections 5 (9), 14 (2), 18.

THE RELATIVE PRONOUN

The relative pronoun is the same in form as the endings of ἐκεῖνος with rough breathings added:

		M.	F.	N.	M., F.	N.
Singular	N.	ὅς	ἥ	ὅ ¹	who, that	which, that
	A.	ὃν	ἥν	ὃ	whom, that	which, that
	G.	οὗ	ἥς	οὗ	whose, of whom	of which
	D.	ᾧ	ἥ	ᾧ	to whom	to which
Plural	N.	οἱ	αἱ	αἱ	who, that	which, that
	A.	οὓς	αῖς	αἱ	whom, that	which, that
	G.	ᾧν	ᾧν	ᾧν	whose, of whom	of which
	D.	οἷς	αἰς	οἷς	to whom	to which

The relative pronoun always refers back to some noun or pronoun, expressed or implied, in another clause. This noun or pronoun is called its antecedent.

In Greek the relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in number and gender, but not necessarily in case. The case of a relative pronoun depends on the function which it performs in the relative clause in which it stands.

Examples:

- (1) βλέπω τους πρεσβυτέρους οἱ ἀκολουθοῦσιν

I see the elders who are following.

In this example πρεσβυτέρους is in the accusative case because it is the object of the clause in which it stands. οἱ is in the nominative case because it is the subject of the clause in which it stands. The student should carefully consider the reason for the cases of the relative pronouns in the examples which follow:

- (2) οἱ δούλοι οὓς πεμπετε φωνοῦσιν

The slaves that you are sending are calling.

- (3) αὕτη ἐστὶν ἡ γραφή ἣ τηρεῖται ἐν τῇ συναγωγῇ

This is the writing that is kept in the synagogue.

- (4) αὕτη ἐστὶν ἡ γραφή ἣν εἶχεν ὁ ἀποστόλος

This is the writing which the apostle used to have.

- (5) τὰ παιδιά ἃ ἐδίδασκον κλαίει

The children whom I was teaching are weeping.

- (6) ὁ προφήτης οὗ ἀναγινωσκεις τὰ βιβλία ἅγιος ἐστὶν

The prophet whose books you are reading is holy.

- (7) οἱ νεανιαὶ οἷς ποιῶ τούτο δούλοι εἰσιν

The young men for whom I am doing this are slaves.

The relative clauses in the examples given above are all adjective clauses, because they qualify and explain their antecedents just like adjectives.

The antecedent of the relative pronoun is often unexpressed,
e.g. ὃς οὐ λαμβάνει τὸν σταυρὸν αὐτοῦ, οὐκ ἐστὶν ἄξιος (Matt. 10. 38)
He who does not take his cross, is not worthy.

THE PRESENT IMPERATIVE

All the forms of verbs which have been given so far have been in the Indicative mood, the mood which is generally used in making statements or asking questions.

The Imperative mood is used to express commands, exhortations and entreaties.

The forms of the Present Imperative are as follows:

		Present Imperative Active		Present Imperative Passive
Singular	2	λυε	loose	λυου	be loosed
	3	λυετω	let him loose	λυεσθω	let him be loosed
Plural	2	λυετε	loose	λυεσθε	be loosed
	3	λυετωσαν	let them loose	λυεσθωσαν	let them be loosed

It will be noticed that, apart from the second person singular, the final letters of both conjugations are the same: -ω, -ε, -ωσαν. These terminations are found in all Imperative conjugations. Therefore, once the Present Imperative Active has been learnt, it is only necessary to learn the singular of other Imperative tenses. The plural forms follow automatically.

The Present Imperative of -εω verbs is entirely regular:

φιλεε	→ φιλει	φιλεου	→ φιλου
φιλεετω	→ φιλειτω	φιλεεσθω	→ φιλεισθω
φιλεετε	→ φιλειτε	φιλεεσθε	→ φιλεισθε
φιλεετωσαν	→ φιλειτωσαν	φιλεεσθωσαν	→ φιλεισθωσαν

The meaning of the Present Imperative

As we saw in Lesson 13, the Present is a linear tense, which can be represented either by a line or by a line of dots

Therefore, as would be expected, the Present Imperative denotes a command or entreaty to continue to do an action, or to do it repeatedly.

It is not always possible to bring this out in translating a Present Imperative into English, as we have no convenient form of expression which is equivalent to it. An attempt to express in full the force of the Greek Present Imperative is made in the translation of the following examples, though it should be remembered that such translations are usually over-translations.

βαλλετε τους λιθους Keep on throwing the stones.

τηρειτω τας εντολας Let him continue to keep the commandments.

Imperatives in the negative

A verb in the Imperative is negated by μη instead of οὐ, and by μηδε instead of οὐδε.¹

Example:

μη περιπατει ἐν ταῖς ὁδοῖς τῆς ἀδικίας, μηδε χαιρε συν τοῖς ἀκαθαρτοῖς
Do not (continue to) walk in the ways of unrighteousness, nor rejoice with the unclean.

QUESTIONS

μη (or μητι) is also used in hesitant questions, or in questions which expect the answer 'No'.

οὐ (or οὐχι) is used in questions which expect the answer 'Yes'. There are therefore four types of direct question:

(1) Ordinary questions. ἐστιν ὁ Χριστος; means 'Is he the Christ?'

(2) Hesitant questions. μη (or μητι) ἐστιν ὁ Χριστος; can either mean: 'Is he perhaps (or, Can it be that he is) the Christ?', or it can belong to:

(3) Questions expecting the answer 'No'. 'He is not the Christ, is he?', cf. μητι ἐγώ Ἰουδαῖος; (John 18. 35) 'Am I a Jew?'

(4) Questions expecting the answer 'Yes'. οὐκ (or οὐχι) ἐστιν ὁ Χριστος; means 'He is the Christ, isn't he?' This last differs from the ordinary negative statement only by the presence of a question-mark (or, in the spoken language, by the tone of voice). οὐκ ἐστιν ὁ Χριστος. means 'He is not the Christ'.

A

1. Λαμβανε το ποτηριον και χαιρε ἐν τούτῳ τῷ δευτέρῳ σημειῷ τῆς δικαιοσύνης, τῆς εἰρήνης και τῆς ζωῆς.
2. ἡ ἀρχὴ τῆς ἐξουσίας ἐστιν ἢ δοκεῖ ὁμοία νεῷ οἶνῳ.
3. διὸ ζητεῖτε το προσωπον του Κυριου ἐν προσευχῇ ἐν τοῖς σαββατοῖς.
4. ἐν καιρῷ πειρασμου προσφερετε την θυσιαν τῆς μετανοίας και ποιεῖτε ἔργα τῆς ὑπομονῆς.
5. βλεπεσθωσαν ὑπο των σοφῶν.
6. ἐγείρου ἐκ των νεκρων.

¹ μη is in fact used regularly with everything except the Indicative, as will be seen when the Infinitive, Participle, Subjunctive and Optative are reached.

1. Therefore let it be thrown beside the way. 2. Be loosed from sin daily. 3. Be saved from the authority of evil men. 4. Let the commandments themselves be kept. 5. Let him be led away to the council of Caiaphas. 6. Let not the clean dwell in the midst of sin, nor unclean hearts have joy in the rewards of the rich. 7. There was a beautiful boat upon the sea, but the people did not have money for it. 8. Let the teacher who is worthy of honour believe the book and worship God. 9. There is a new opportunity for the rest who remain. 10. The virgins who were eating the bread were not judging themselves. 11. Hypocrite, repent and hate the sins which you are doing. 12. Young man, hear the promises which I am making with my own tongue. 13. Let them take the teaching of the new covenant and bear witness to the only head of the everlasting kingdom. 14. Can it be that the small are strong? 15. Is not a little wine sufficient for an unbelieving generation? 16. They were following sinners, for they were like sheep.

REVISION TESTS 2

The student should not proceed further until he can get high marks in these tests.

Allow 1 hour each for Tests A and B. The total number of marks for each Test is 80; the marks for each question are shown in square brackets.

¹ ἐνδύω in the active takes a double accusative. The piece of clothing used and the person or thing clothed are both put in the accusative.

1. Give the nominative singular, and the ending (only) of the genitive singular, of the Greek words for: beginning, child (2 words), cloud, covenant, desert, eye, face, friend, honour, judge, kingdom, life (2), place, prayer, reward, sacrifice, salvation, sea, servant, sinner, stone, temptation, tomb, tongue, truth, virgin, voice, widow, wine, work, world, young man. [16 marks]

2. Give the nominative singular masculine, and the endings of the nominative singular feminine and neuter, of the Greek words for: beautiful, beloved, clean, different, eternal, evil, faithless, first, free, last, little, new (2), old, only, poor, possible, remaining, second, small, worthy. [10]

3. Give the Greek for the following, writing -εω verbs in their uncontracted forms: I ask, I bring, I build, I call (2), I depart, I find, I hate, I make, I raise, I read, I seek, I take. [6]

4. Decline in the singular (masculine, feminine and neuter): μακαριος, ὁς. [4]

5. (a) List the seven words which have the -ο ending in the neuter singular. [4] (b) What word (in addition to the demonstratives) is always put in the predicative position? [1] (c) Parse ὁ and δ. [2]

6. Give the Present Indicative of εἰμι. [1]

7. Give the Present Imperative Active and the Imperfect Indicative Passive of λυω. [2]

8. Give the three rules of contraction of -εω verbs. [3]

9. Give the Greek for: I used to have, I was inhabiting, I used to lead away, I used to have mercy on, I was putting on, I used to serve, I used to throw out, I was walking. [8]

10. Describe the three main case ideas now expressed by the dative. [3]

11. Give two uses of δια, ὑπερ and ὑπο and four uses of κατα. [10]

12. Repeat Exercise 15B. [10]

B

1. Give the nominative singular, and the ending (only) of the genitive singular, of the Greek words for: anger, boat, brother, commandment,

cross, crowd, cup, death, door, fear, fruit, garment, glory, guard, head, heart, hour, house (2 words), joy, law, money, people, place, price, promise, righteousness, Scripture, sign, soul, tax-collector, way, workman. [16 marks]

2. Give the nominative singular masculine, and the nominative singular feminine and neuter (endings only), of the Greek words for: alone, believing, blind, dead, each, good (2), happy, holy, just, like, other (2), powerful, rich, right, small, strong, sufficient, third, unclean, young. [10]

3. Give the Greek for the following, writing $\epsilon\omega$ verbs in their uncontracted forms: I bless, I do, I eat, I go, I heal, I keep, I look at, I obey, I perceive, I receive, I repent, I say. [6]

4. Decline in full in the plural: οὗτος. [3]

5. Give the Imperfect of εἰμι (including alternative forms). [2]

6. Give the Present Imperative Passive and the Imperfect Indicative Active of φιλεω. [2]

7. Give in tabular form the eight rules for initial vowel changes in the formation of past tenses. [4]

8. List the five verbs (with their meanings) which usually take the dative. [2]

9. Describe the two main case ideas now expressed by the genitive. [2]

10. How are the cases used in expressions of time? [3]

11. Give one way of expressing 'in the time of', 'apart from'; two ways of expressing 'until', 'after'; three ways of expressing 'to', 'before'; and four ways of expressing 'with'. [16]

12. How are questions expressed? [4]

13. Repeat Exercise 15B. [10]

LESSON 19

Personal, possessive and reflexive pronouns

Re-read Introduction: English Grammar, Sections 5, 6A (4).

In Lesson 15 we dealt with αὐτός and ἐαυτον, which are pronouns of the third person. We now come to pronouns of the first and second person.

PERSONAL PRONOUNS

ἐγώ	I	σύ	you
ἐμε, με	me	σε	you
ἐμου, μου	of me, my	σου	of you, your ἐμοι, μοι	to or for me	σοι	to or for you ἡμεῖς	we	ὕμεις	you
ἡμᾶς	us	ὕμᾶς	you
ἡμῶν	of us, our	ὕμῶν	of you, your
ἡμῖν	to or for us	ὕμῖν	to or for you

In Greek it is not necessary to say: ἐγώ λυω because the personal ending of the verb sufficiently shows the person and number of the subject without the addition of a pronoun. The nominative of the personal pronouns therefore normally suggests some emphasis:

οὐχ ὥς ἐγώ θελω, ἀλλ' ὥς σύ (Matt. 26. 39)

Not as I will, but as you will.

The longer forms of the first person singular ἐμε, ἐμου, ἐμοι are used for emphasis or with prepositions.¹

Further ways of expressing the third person personal pronoun

We have already seen two ways of expressing 'he', 'she', 'it', etc.:

(1) αὐτός. (See Lesson 15. This is far the commonest use.)

(2) οὗτος and ἐκεῖνος sometimes have this weakened sense. (See Vocab. 14.)

¹ But with προς and with the adverb-prepositions ἐνωπιον, ἐμπροσθεν, ὀπίσω, the shorter forms (με, μου) are usual.

Examples:

οὗτος ἦν ἐν ἀρχῇ (John 1. 2) He was in the beginning (R.S.V.).
 λεγουσιν αὐτῇ ἐκεῖνοι (John 20. 13) They say to her.

(3) There is a third way: the article followed by δε. This is most commonly used in narrative to begin a sentence which introduces a new subject. Thus Mark 16. 5, 6 reads:

They were amazed. And he says to them ὁ δε λεγει αὐταις.

μεν AND δε

Words are often contrasted by the use of the two particles μεν and δε: 'on the one hand...on the other hand...'. (This is usually a clumsy over-translation. It is often sufficient to leave μεν untranslated and to translate simply 'but'.) The following is an example of μεν and δε used with a personal pronoun:

Ἐγὼ μεν εἰμι Παυλου, Ἐγὼ δε Ἀπολλω (1 Cor. 1. 12)
 I (on the one hand) am of Paul, I (on the other hand) am of Apollos.

μεν and δε can also be used to express 'some...others...'. In this case the plural article is followed by μεν in the first clause and by δε in the second:

οἱ μεν ἦσαν συν τοις Ἰουδαίοις, οἱ δε συν τοις ἀποστόλοις (Acts 14. 4)
 Some were with the Jews, and others with the apostles.

POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS AND ADJECTIVES

The usual way of expressing the possessive is by use of the genitive of the personal pronoun:

μου	my	σου	your
ἡμῶν	our	ὕμων	your

There are, however, possessive adjectives, and these often carry some emphasis. In common use are:

ἐμός -η -ον	my	σός -η -ον	your
-------------	----	------------	------

When used attributively they take the article:

παρακαλῶ σε περὶ τοῦ ἐμοῦ τέκνου (Philemon 10)

I beseech you for (concerning) my child.

ἡ ἐμὴ διδασχὴ οὐκ ἐστὶν ἐμὴ (John 7. 16)

My teaching is not mine.

We have already seen (in Lesson 15) that αὐτοῦ 'his', 'its', αὐτῆς 'her', and αὐτῶν 'their' do the work of the third person possessive adjective.

REFLEXIVE PRONOUNS

Singular

As we have seen in the case of ἑαυτον, reflexive pronouns can have no nominative forms. The first and second persons also of course have no neuter forms.

In the singular they are made up of a combination of ἐμε and σε with αὐτος, giving:

ἐμαυτον -ην	myself	σεαυτον -ην	yourself
ἐμαυτου -ης		σεαυτου -ης
ἐμαυτω -η		σεαυτω -η

ἐγὼ ἀπ' ἐμαυτου λαλῶ (John 7. 17)

I speak from myself.

συ περὶ σεαυτου μαρτυρεῖς (John 8. 13)

You bear witness concerning yourself.

Plural

In the plural, ἑαυτους does duty for the first and second persons ('ourselves', 'yourselves') as well as for the third person ('themselves'):

μαρτυρεῖτε ἑαυτοις (Matt. 23. 31)

You bear witness to yourselves.

A

1. Κρατεῖτε ἐμε, Λαε Ἰουδαίας, καὶ σωζετε ἑαυτους ἐκ ταύτης τῆς πονηρᾶς γενεᾶς.
2. διηκονοῦν σοὶ καὶ ἐδουν ἑαυτους τῇ αἰωνίῳ διαθήκῃ σου.
3. ὠκοδομοῦμεν οἰκίας ὑμῖν ἐξω τῆς κωμῆς παρα τω ποταμῷ. 4. τα πρόβατα τὰ ἑμὰ ἀκούει τὸν λόγον τὸν ἑμὸν καὶ τηρεῖ αὐτόν. 5. ὁ λόγος ὁ σὸς ἀληθεια ἐστίν. 6. ἐγὼ γὰρ οὐ μόνον ἀσθενῶ, ἀλλὰ καθ' ἡμέραν ἀποθνήσκω. 7. ὁ μὲν τὸ βιβλίον ἀναγινώσκει, ἐγὼ δὲ ὑπακούω αὐτῷ. 8. ἡμεῖς μὲν ἐπεγινώσκομεν τὴν ἀληθειαν, οἱ δὲ ἐδίωκον τοὺς πιστοὺς. 9. κἀγὼ προσφέρω θυσίας, ὡς παραλαμβάνει ὁ Θεός. 10. ὁ δὲ οἶκος μου ἦν οἶκος προσευχῆς. 11. κἀκεῖνος γάμει τὴν μακαριαν παρθενον.

 12. σὺ περὶ σεαυτοῦ μαρτυρεῖς. ἡ μαρτυρία σου ἐστίν ἀκαθαρτος.
 13. ἐγὼ δὲ οὐκ ἐλάλουν ἐξ ἑμαυτοῦ. 14. κἀγὼ εἶμι ἐν μεσῷ ὑμῶν ὡς διακόνος. 15. μὴ ποιεῖτε τὴν δικαιοσύνην ὑμῶν ἐμπροσθεν τῶν ἀνθρώπων, ὥσπερ οἱ ὑποκριταὶ ποιοῦσιν ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς. 16. ὑμεῖς οὐκ ἐστε ἐκ τοῦ κόσμου καθὼς ἐγὼ οὐκ εἶμι ἐκ τοῦ κόσμου. 17. ὁ διδασκαλὸς ὅς οὐκ ἐστίν μετ' ἐμοῦ κατ' ἐμοῦ ἐστίν. 18. οἱ μὲν πειθοῦσιν, οἱ δὲ παρακαλοῦσιν μόνον.

II

Where words are in italics, express the personal pronoun separately.

1. We were calling and weeping, but you used not to have mercy upon us. 2. It used to seem wise to me, but they followed a different way. 3. Lord, have mercy upon us day by day until your second coming. 4. My teaching is not mine. 5. They take hold of Jesus and injure him. 6. But he used to say, 'Hypocrite, depart from me'. 7. And this is the sign of your coming. 8. Prayer is being made by me and by your people. 9. You love your enemy as yourself. 10. Are you saying this about yourself? 11. And I have soldiers under myself. 12. I am not as¹ the rest of men. 13. According as I hear I judge. 14. Love one another as I love you. 15. But he says to us, 'Bring the poor to me'. 16. Some were being released, others were dying. 17. And your prayers are being heard. 18. Some were slaves, but others were free.

δυναμαι

Present Infinitive

Uses of the infinitive

Re-read Introduction: English Grammar, Section 14 (4), 19; also Lesson 16 for the use of the preparatory 'it'.

δυναμαι

δυναμαι 'I am able' is conjugated as follows:

Present Indicative	Imperfect Indicative	Infinitive
δυναμαι I am able	¹ ἔδυναμην I was able	δυνασθαι to be able δυνασαι	ἔδυνασο
δυναται	ἔδυνατο
δυναμεθα	ἔδυναμεθα
δυνασθε	ἔδυνασθε
δυνανται	ἔδυναντο

¹ The Imperfect sometimes has a lengthened augment: ἡδυναμην.

The endings of these conjugations are almost the same as those of the Present and the Imperfect Indicative Passive of λυω, though they are in a slightly more primitive form. In δυναμαι the fact that -μαι and -σαι are personal endings related to με and σε becomes obvious. δυνα-μαι, δυνα-σαι is '(am) able I', '(are) able you'. The structure of λυ-ο-μαι and ἐ-λυ-ο-μην is properly: (augment) (ἐ), stem (λυ), variable vowel (ο or ε), personal ending. In the second person singular the σ has dropped out and contractions have taken place:

λυ-ο-μαι	ἐ-λυ-ο-μην
λυ-ε-(σ)αι → η	ἐ-λυ-ε-(σ)ο → ου
λυ-ε-ται	ἐ-λυ-ε-το
λυ-ο-μεθα	ἐ-λυ-ο-μεθα
λυ-ε-σθε	ἐ-λυ-ε-σθε
λυ-ο-νται	ἐ-λυ-ο-ντο

We have seen ε + ο → ου in Lesson 4. ε + α → η and ε + αι → η are regular contractions. For further examples, see γενη (Lesson 29), ἀληθη (Lesson 30).

THE PRESENT INFINITIVE

The forms of the present infinitives of λυω, φιλεω and εἰμι are as follows:

Active		Passive
λυειν	to loose	λυεσθαι	to be loosed
φιλειν	to love	φιλεισθαι	to be loved
	εἶναι	to be

USES OF THE INFINITIVE

Infinitive used as subject or object

The infinitive is a neuter verbal noun.

As a noun it may stand as the subject or object of another verb:

Subject ἐξεστὶν θεραπευεῖν ἐν τῷ σαββάτῳ
It is lawful to heal on the Sabbath.

Object παραγγελλεῖ (Vocab. 26) τὸν Παῦλον ἄγεσθαι καθ' ἡμέραν
He commands Paul to be brought daily.

As a verb it has tense and voice and it may have an object. It is often said to have a subject. The so-called 'subject' of the infinitive does not conform to the rule in Lesson 5 that the subject of the verb is put in the nominative. The 'subject' of the infinitive is put in the accusative. In the sentence above, τὸν Παῦλον (accusative) is used with ἄγεσθαι. Similarly, we have:

δεῖ ἄνθρωπον ἐσθιεῖν

A man must eat (it is necessary for a man to eat), where ἄνθρωπον (accusative) is used with ἐσθιεῖν.

καλὸν ἐστὶν ἡμᾶς εἶναι μετ' αὐτοῦ

It is good (for) us to be with him, where ἡμᾶς (accusative) is used with εἶναι.

Though it is usual to describe this accusative as the subject of the infinitive, it is not strictly correct. It is really what is known as an adverbial accusative or an accusative of general reference or an accusative of respect.

He commands in respect to Paul a being brought ('to be brought').

In respect to a man eating ('to eat') is necessary.

In respect to us it is good to be with him.

Nonetheless it is convenient to call it loosely the 'subject'.

ἐξεστί, 'it is lawful', and παραγγέλλω, 'I command' are apparent exceptions to this rule, since they take a dative, even with an infinitive.

Thus:

ἐξεστί αὐτοῖς θεραπευεῖν ἐν τῷ σαββάτῳ

It is lawful for them to heal on the Sabbath.

παραγγέλλει αὐτοῖς τὸν Παύλον ἄγειν

He commands them to bring Paul.

But in these cases the αὐτοῖς belongs to the main verb, and no accusative of respect is called for.

Infinitives with the negative

Infinitives (like Imperatives) are negated by μη.

Consequence clauses

The accusative and infinitive introduced by ὥστε is often used to express the result of the action of the main verb,

e.g. ὥστε μη χρεῖαν ἔχειν ἡμᾶς λαλεῖν (1 Thess. 1. 8)

So that we have no need to speak.

The articular infinitive

The infinitive's character as a noun is seen particularly clearly when a (neuter) article is placed in front of it.

This 'articular infinitive' is frequently used in connection with a preposition, the preposition and infinitive together making a phrase which can generally best be translated by an adverbial clause in English. As this form of expression is quite unlike English, the examples below and in Exercises 20 and 21 should be studied with particular care, because it is a very common usage in Greek.

Examples:

(1) ἐν followed by the dative of the articular infinitive can express the time at which something occurs. It will usually be translated 'while' or 'when'.

ἐν δε τῷ ὑπαγεῖν αὐτον οἱ ὄχλοι συνεπνιγον αὐτον (Luke 8. 42)

And while he was departing the crowds thronged him.

(2) προ followed by the genitive, meaning before:

εἶχον προ του τον κοσμον εἶναι παρα σοι (John 17. 5)

(The glory which) I had with you before the world was.

(3) μετα followed by the accusative, meaning after:

μετα το παραδοθῆναι¹ τον Ἰωανην (Mark 1. 14)

After John was arrested.

(4) δια followed by the accusative, meaning because:

δια το εἶναι φίλον (Luke 11. 8)

Because he is a friend.

Purpose clauses

The infinitive can be used in three ways to express purpose. (The first introduces us to new meanings of εἰς and προς.)

(1) εἰς or προς followed by the accusative of the articular infinitive:

ἐζητουν κατα του Ἰησου μαρτυριαν εἰς το θανατωσαι² αὐτον (Mark 14. 55)

They were seeking witness against Jesus, in order to kill him.

εἰς το δυνασθαι ἡμας παρακαλεῖν (2 Cor. 1. 4)

(Who encourages us) so that we may be able to encourage.

προς το δυνασθαι ὑμας (Eph. 6. 11)

(Put on the whole armour of God) that you may be able (to stand).

(2) Purpose can also be expressed by the infinitive alone. (The following examples contain words and constructions which have not yet been dealt with, but the force of the infinitive is just the same in the Greek as in the English):

¹ First Aorist Infinitive Passive of παραδίδωμι, see Lesson 42.

² Aorist Infinitive, see Lessons 24, 40. This could be expressed more literally: 'with a view to the killing him'.

ἤλθομεν προσκυνῆσαι αὐτῷ (Matt. 2. 2)

We have come to worship him.

μη νομισητε ὅτι ἤλθον καταλῦσαι τον νομον (Matt. 5. 17)

Do not think that I have come to destroy the law.

ὑπαγω ἀλιεῦειν (John 21. 3)

I am going off to fish.

(3) Quite commonly του (the genitive of the definite article) is inserted before the infinitive, without in any way affecting the sense.

μελλει γαρ Ἡρῳδης ζητειν το παιδιον του ἀπολεσαι αὐτο (Matt. 2. 13)

For Herod is about to seek the child to destroy him.

EXERCISE 20

3. μελλω πειθειν τους ἀξιους πρεσβυτερους κατοικειν χωρις των ἁμαρτωλων. 4. ἐδυνασθε σοφους φιλους ἔχειν; 5. διδασκαλε, δει ἡμας πιστευνειν.
6. ἤθελομεν οὖν θεραπευειν τους υἱους αὐτων. 7. ἐξεστιν ἡμιν παραλαμβανειν την βασιλειαν των οὐρανων; 8. ἐπεμπεν τους δουλους αὐτου καλειν τους πτωχους και τους τυφλους.
9. ὁ γαρ Θεος πεμπει τον υἱον αὐτου σωζειν τον κοσμον. 10. παρεκαλουμεν τον λαον ὑπακουειν τοις προφηταις. 11. οἱ δε ὄχλοι ἐχαιρον ἐν τῷ αὐτους ἀκουειν και βλέπειν τα σημεια ἃ ἐποιεῖ.
12. προ του αὐτους ὑπαγειν ὁ Πητρος ἠσθιεν μετ' αὐτων. 13. και δια το περισσευειν την ἀδικιαν ἡ ἀγαπη ἀποθνησκει; 14. ὁ ἀνεμος ἦν ἰσχυρος ὥστε βαλλειν το πλοιον ἐπὶ τας πετρας.
15. το δε περιπατειν ἐν ταις ὕδοις αὐτου ἀγαθον ἐστιν τοις υἱοις των ἀνθρωπων. 16. οἱ δε νεανιαὶ ἔμενον ἐμπροσθεν της θυρας του ἱερου δια το τον πρεσβυτερον ἀποθνησκειν.
17. οὐ μισω τον ἐχθρον μου ὥστε με δυνασθαι τον θεον φιλειν. 18. ἐγραφον εἰς το ὑμας ἐπιγινωσκειν την ἀγαπην μου.
19. παραλαμβανω το εὐαγγελιον προς το σωζεσθαι.
20. χρειαν γαρ ἔχετε του ἡμας διδασκειν ὑμας¹ την ἀληθειαν.

1. But are bad men able to find wisdom? 2. Did he not wish to be released from sin? 3. They were not willing to obey the elders. 4. It is not lawful for them to take the money from the tax-collectors, is it? 5. I am a man, but you are children. 6. We wish to look at the temple of the God of Israel. 7. We are sending the slaves to call the blind and the poor. 8. It was necessary for Jesus to lead the disciples away from Galilee. 9. I wished him to heal my child, but he would not. 10. Jesus is about to ask them to send sufficient bread. 11. I am not able to exhort them to give thanks for¹ the coming of the Sun of Righteousness. 12. Are we able to do this? 13. I was sending the messenger to you, but he was not willing to depart. 14. They wish to read the books which you have. 15. But the people believed John to be a prophet. 16. And while the elders were being gathered together we remained in the fields. 17. And Jesus was healing the poor, so that the crowd rejoiced. 18. But they encouraged Peter because he taught the commandments. 19. And she used to have the clothes in order to be beautiful.

LESSON 21

The Future Active

The Future Active is formed by inserting the letter σ between the stem and the endings of the Present:

λυσω	I shall loose
λυσεις λυσει λυσομεν λυσετε λυσουσι(ν)

ὑπερ.

If the stem ends in a mute (the term used for the nine consonants listed below), the σ will combine with it in the following manner:

(Gutturals) $\kappa, \gamma, \chi + \sigma \rightarrow \xi$

(Labials) $\pi, \beta, \phi + \sigma \rightarrow \psi$

(Dentals) $\tau, \delta, \theta + \sigma \rightarrow \sigma$

So:

ἀνοιγω ἀνοιξω

ἔχω ἔξω (but observe the change of breathing)

βλεπω βλεψω

γραφω γραψω

πειθω πεισω

-εω verbs lengthen ϵ to η before the σ :

φιλεω φιλησω

καλεω, however, is an exception, giving:

καλεω καλεσω

With the so-called contracted verbs like $\phi\iota\lambda\epsilon\omega$, contractions only take place when the ϵ is immediately followed by a vowel. In the case of $\phi\iota\lambda\eta\sigma\omega$, where a consonant (σ) has been inserted between the stem and the endings, the endings behave just like those of $\lambda\upsilon\omega$.

A

1. Οὐκ ἀδικησουσιν τα τέκνα;
2. καλεσεις δε το παιδιον Πετρον;
3. και ἀνοιξει τους ὀφθαλμούς των τυφλών οἱ συναγονται ἐν τη συναγωγῇ.
4. πεμφῶ προς αὐτοὺς σοφούς και προφήτας, ἀλλ' οὐκ ἀκουσουσιν αὐτῶν οἱ υἱοὶ Ἰσραὴλ.
5. προφητευσεις τῷ λαῷ τουτῷ και ὑπακουσουσιν σοι.
6. οἱ διακονοι της συναγωγῆς οὐ διωξουσιν τους νεανίας ἐν τῷ σαββατῷ.
7. οἱ λεπροι ἐξουσιν τα προβατα ἃ σωζεται ἀπο των ἀνεμων και της θαλασσης.
8. οἱ δε τα ἱματια ἐνδυσουσιν τας χήρας.
9. ἐν δε τῷ τον ὄχλον ἀκουειν τον λογον τα δαιμονια ἤγεν θυσιαις του προσφερειν αὐτας τῷ Σατανᾷ.
10. θελω γαρ μενειν μεθ' ὑμῶν ταυτην την ἡμεραν προ του με ἀκολουθειν τῷ Ἰησοῦ ἐν τη ὁδῷ του σταυρου.
11. ἡσθενει δε το δενδρον δια το μη ἔχειν γην.
12. πεμπουσιν οὖν αὐτον εἰς τους

1. I will open the books which are in the synagogue. 2. We shall behold the face of the Lord in the temple which is being built in Jerusalem. 3. We will send the slaves to pursue them as far as Judaea. 4. He will speak these things to the crowds in parables.
 5. Do not bless evil men, for the evil will not see the sun. 6. Are you about to believe one another? 7. Shall we then persuade our own brothers to throw out their right eyes? 8. And they will call the child Jesus, for he is saving his people from their sins. 9. And he will have a voice like the voice of an angel. 10. And before the world was, I am. 11. Do not do your righteousness for men to see.

LESSON 22

 The two stems of verbs

Most of the verbs which have been given so far have only one stem. But many verbs have two stems:

(1) The present stem from which the Present and Imperfect are formed.

(2) The verbal stem from which the other tenses (e.g. the Future) are formed.

The fact that the meanings of verbs are given in lexicons under the form of the Present Indicative tends to fix attention upon it, and to produce the impression that it is the original and most important form of the verb. This, however, is not the case. The Present stem is really derived from the verbal stem, and is generally a lengthened form of the verbal stem. The verbal stem is the most important part of the verb.

Below are given examples of three types of verb in which (a) the verbal stem is modified to form the Present; and (b) the σ of the Future is added to the verbal, not the Present, stem.

(1) Verbs which add τ to the verbal stem to form the Present stem.

Examples:

Stem	Present	Future
καλυπ	ἀποκαλυπτω	ἀποκαλυψω	I reveal
κρυπ	κρυπτω	κρυψω	I hide

(2) Verbs in which the verbal stem ends in a guttural which is softened to $\sigma\sigma$ to form the Present stem.

κηρυκ	κηρυσσω	κηρυξω	I proclaim πραγ	πρασσω	πραξω	I do

(3) Verbs ending in $\zeta\omega$ in the Present. These are mostly formed from stems ending in δ and they make their futures in $-\sigma\omega$.

βαπτιδ	βαπτιζω	βαπτισω	I baptise
δοξαδ	δοξαζω	δοξασω	I glorify κραζω, however, is formed from a stem ending in a guttural (γ), and therefore makes its Future in $-\xi\omega$.

κραγ	κραζω	κραξω	I cry out
------	-------	-------	-----------

EXERCISE 22

1. Ἐγγισω δε εἰς ἕκαστον ἀγαπητον ἀδελφον.
2. Ἐλπίζετε ἐν τῷ Θεῷ, ἀνοίξει γαρ θυραν ὑμῖν ἐν τῇ χρεῖα ὑμῶν.
3. καθαρίζετε τας ἰδίας καρδιας και περιπατησετε ἐνώπιον μου ἐν ὁδοῖς της χάρας.
4. κρυπτε το προσωπον σου ἀπο των ἁμαρτιων μου.
5. ὁ δε πτωχος κραξει ἐν μεσῷ του ἱερου.
6. βαστασομεν τον παραλυτικον προς την θυραν, και ἐτοιμασουσιν παραλαμβανειν αὐτον.
7. οἱ λοιποι, οἱ θαυμαζουσιν την ἐξουσιαν αὐτου, κηρυξουσιν την ἀγαπην αὐτου.
8. ἐγγισω δε ἀχρι του πρωτου μνημειου.
9. καθίζει ἐπι τῷ θρονῷ του οὐρανου, ἀλλ' οἱ ἅγιοι ἐλπισουσιν θεωρειν την παρουσιαν αὐτου ἐπι ταις νεφελαις.
10. κηρυσσετε τας ἐπαγγελιας και φυλασσετε τας ἐντολας ἐν τῷ ὑμᾶς ἐτοιμαζειν την ὁδον της δοξης.

1. The faithful widow will sit alone in prayer and her witness will not cause the other women¹ to stumble. 2. He will have mercy upon me, and I shall have eternal salvation. 3. Buy your sacrifices and sanctify the Sabbath. 4. The disciples whom John was baptising remained with Jesus. 5. Will he not reveal his face to the unbelieving soul? 6. The lepers will cry out in their need. 7. The devil will tempt you, but I will guard you. 8. Do righteousness to one another and you will glorify the only God. 9. O Peter, I will test you and evil men will wonder at your steadfastness. 10. Will you then buy the clothes and carry them to the brothers? 11. And I will reveal the sin of the men who practise unrighteousness, and they will hide their eyes from me.

LESSON 23

The Middle voice

The Future of εἶμι

THE MIDDLE VOICE: MEANING

In addition to the Active and Passive voices with which we are familiar in English, Greek has also a Middle voice. No attempt will be made to give any generalised explanation of the meaning of the Middle, which must be left to more advanced text-books. The meaning in fact varies from verb to verb. It will be sufficient if the student simply learns the meanings given in the vocabularies.

It may, however, be said that:

(1) Though some forms of the Middle are the same as the Passive, the Middle is in meaning much closer to the Active than to the Passive. In fact the meaning of Active and Middle are often indistinguishable. It is better to think of the Middle as a sort-of-Active, than as a sort-of-Passive.

¹ No separate word for 'women' is required. Cf. ἐκεῖνη, 'that woman', Lesson 14.

ἐνδύω, 'I put on' is a good example of a verb which in both Active and Middle must be translated by the Active voice in English. But in this case the two voices are clearly distinguished in meaning:

ἐνδύω (Active)	means	I put (clothes) on (someone else)
ἐνδύομαι (Middle)		I put (clothes) on (myself)

(2) Verbs in the Middle are usually Deponent.

A deponent verb is one which is Middle or Passive in form, but Active in meaning.

All the Middle and Passive verbs in Vocabulary 23 are deponent.

(3) Some verbs are always Active in some tenses and Middle in others. The Future in particular is often Middle in form. For instance, the following have (irregular) deponent Futures:

Present Active	Future Middle
γινώσκω	γνώσομαι	I know
λαμβάνω	ληψήσομαι	I take ¹

(4) A few Middles are, however, so different in meaning from their Actives that they must be translated by a quite different English word,

e.g.	ἄρχω (Active)	I rule
	ἀρχομαι (Middle)	I begin

But our concern now is not with meaning, but with form.

THE MIDDLE VOICE: FORMS

(1) The forms of the Present and Imperfect Middle are exactly the same as those of the Passive:

Present:	λύομαι	Imperfect:	ἐλύομην
	λύῃ
	λύεται	Imperative:	λύου λύομεθα
	λύεσθε	Infinitive:	λύεσθαι
	λύονται

¹ Other examples may be seen in the list of verbs, pp. 227-8, e.g. -βαίνω, ἐσθίω, -θνήσκω, ὄραω, πίνω, πιπτώ.

Whether these forms are in fact Middle or Passive can only be determined from the context.

(2) The Future Middle, like the Future Active, inserts σ after the stem, and then it adds the same endings as the Present Passive:

λυσομαι	λυσομεθα
λυση	λυσεσθε
λυσεται	λυσονται

THE FUTURE OF εἶμι

The Future of εἶμι, formed from the stem έσ-, has endings like the Future Middle of λυω, except that the ε is omitted from the ending of the third person singular:

έσομαι	έσομεθα
έση	έσεσθε
έσται	έσονται

LESSON 24

The First Aorist Active

FIRST AND SECOND AORIST

In this and the following lesson we deal with the two types of Aorist.

The First (or Weak) Aorist is so called to distinguish it from the Second (or Strong) Aorist, a tense which is formed in a different way. Very few verbs have both Aorists. When they do, they almost always have the same meaning.¹

THE GENERAL IDEA OF THE AORIST TENSE

In the Aorist the action is thought of in its simplest form. In contrast with the linear tenses (Present and Imperfect), which can be thought of as a line or line of dots:

————— or

the Aorist is a punctiliar (or point) tense, which can be thought of as a single dot:

The action of the verb is thought of as simply happening, without any regard to its continuance or frequency.

THE MEANING OF THE AORIST INDICATIVE

This means that in the Indicative the sense of the Imperfect approximates to that of the English Past Continuous: 'I was loosing', while that of the Aorist approximates to that of the English Past simple: 'I loosed.'

¹ The two Aorists may be compared, in this respect, with the weak and strong forms of the Past tense in English. Very few verbs in English have both weak and strong Past tense forms; if they have, the meaning of the forms is identical.

Example. Present: crow Weak Past: crowed Strong Past: crew.

FORMS OF THE FIRST AORIST ACTIVE

Indicative		Imperative
ἔλυσα	I loosed
ἔλυσας	you loosed	λυσον	loose
ἔλυσε(ν)	he loosed	λυσάτω	let him loose
ἔλυσάμεν	we loosed
ἔλυσάτε	you loosed	λυσάτε	loose
ἔλυσαν	they loosed	λυσάτωσαν	let them loose
Infinitive:		λυσαι	to loose

It will be noticed (a) that the Indicative has an augment, because (like the Imperfect, cf. Lesson 13) it represents action in the past. Since the Imperative never relates to the past and the Infinitive does not necessarily do so, they have no augment;

(b) that the characteristic of the First Aorist Active is the σα after the stem. (Note the two exceptions: ἔλυσε(ν) and λυσον.) This σ inserted between the stem and the endings produces the same consonantal changes as in the Future:

Present	Future	First Aorist
διωκω	διωξω	ἔδιωξα
γραφω	γραφω	ἔγραψα
πειθω	πεισω	ἔπεισα
κρυπτω	κρυψω	ἔκρυψα
κηρυσσω	κηρυξω	ἔκηρυξα
βαπτίζω	βαπτισω	ἔβαπτισα
κραζω	κραξω	ἔκραξα
φιλεω	φιλησω	ἔφιλησα
but καλεω	καλεσω	ἐκάλεσα

θελω is also irregular:

θελω	θελησω	ἠθελησα
------	--------	---------

THE MEANING OF THE AORIST IMPERATIVE

It is not possible, without resorting to over-translation, to give any general rendering of the Aorist Imperative which will differentiate it from the Present Imperative.¹ But it will be obvious at once from the difference in idea between a linear and a punctiliar tense, that the Present Imperative will be used to denote a command to continue to do an action or to do it habitually, and the Aorist Imperative to denote a command simply to do an action without regard to its continuance or frequency.

The difference of meaning is well seen in the parallel versions of a petition in the Lord's Prayer given in two of the gospels. The verb used in Luke is the Present Imperative of διδωμι 'I give',² whereas Matthew uses the Aorist Imperative:

τον ἄρτον ἡμῶν τον ἐπιουσιον διδου ἡμῖν το καθ' ἡμέραν (Luke 11. 3)

Our daily bread give to us (keep on giving us) day by day.

τον ἄρτον ἡμῶν τον ἐπιουσιον δος ἡμῖν σημερον (Matt. 6. 11)

Our daily bread give to us today.

The Present Imperative is linear; it denotes a continuous act of giving, day after day. The Aorist Imperative is punctiliar; it denotes a single act of giving: 'for today'.

THE MEANING OF THE AORIST INFINITIVE

The Aorist Infinitive differs in meaning from the Present Infinitive just in the same way as the Aorist Imperative differs in meaning from the Present Imperative. The one is punctiliar, the other is linear. The Aorist has no thought of continuance or frequency, whereas the Present Infinitive denotes that the action is to be regarded as continuous or repeated.

The Aorist Infinitive is consequently used more frequently than the Present, and the student should always use it unless there is good reason to the contrary.

Examples:

γραφειν τα αὐτα καλον ἐστιν ὑμῖν (Present)

To keep on writing the same things is good for you.

ἐλπίζω γραφαι ἐπιστολην ὑμῖν (Aorist)

I hope to write a letter to you.

¹ See the discussion on p. 74.

² This verb is explained in Lesson 42.

EXERCISE 24

1. And they baptised the tax-collectors in the river. 2. You were going through the beautiful land to prepare the free people. 3. Strong workman, hide the stones which abound in the field. 4. Do not continue to cause¹ the brethren who were ill to stumble. 5. But they followed one another. 6. For you revealed the commandments and promises to the church. 7. Shall we begin to read the books? 8. Cleanse and sanctify your hearts. 9. Is it lawful for them to heal on the Sabbath? 10. Save your people, O Lord, from the unrighteousness of this world. 11. Therefore hide yourselves and your children in Jerusalem. 12. Let love and peace and righteousness dwell in your hearts. 13. And her enemy wondered at her steadfastness. 14. It is good for them to keep on reading the same things. 15. After this I will reveal my authority and my needs to them. 16. He wished to call the tax-collectors to the sacrifice. 17. And his tongue injured others. 18. Apart from me you seem to be weak.

The Second Aorist Active

Principal parts

THE SECOND AORIST ACTIVE

The endings of the Second (or Strong) Aorist Indicative Active are the same as those of the Imperfect. The endings of the Second Aorist Imperative Active are the same as those of the Present Imperative. The ending of the Second Aorist Infinitive Active is the same as that of the Present Infinitive.

The Second Aorist can be distinguished from the Imperfect and the Present Imperative and Infinitive only by the stem. The Imperfect and Present Imperative and Infinitive are formed from the present stem. The Second Aorist Indicative, Imperative and Infinitive are usually formed from the verbal stem.

Take for example βαλλω I throw:

Verbal stem βαλ		Present stem βαλλ
Second Aorist Indicative	Second Aorist Imperative	Imperfect Indicative	Present Imperative
ἐβαλον		ἐβαλλον
ἐβαλες	βαλε	ἐβαλλες	βαλλε
ἐβαλε(ν)	βαλετω	ἐβαλλε(ν)	βαλλετω
ἐβαλομεν		ἐβαλλομεν
ἐβαλετε	βαλετε	ἐβαλλετε	βαλλετε
ἐβαλον	βαλετωσαν	ἐβαλλον	βαλλετωσαν

Second Aorist Infinitive: βαλειν

Present Infinitive: βαλλειν

The following are the common verbs with Second Aorists:

ἄγω	ἡγαγον	I lead	βαλλω	ἐβαλον	I throw ἁμαρτανω	ἡμαρτον	I sin	εὕρισκω	εὕρον	I find ἀποθνήσκω	ἀπεθανον	I die	έχω	έσχον	I have καταλείπω	κατέλιπον	I leave	πινω	έπιον	I drink

λαμβάνω	έλαβον	I take	πιπτω	έπεσον	I fall
μανθάνω	έμαθον	I learn	φευγω	έφυγον	I flee
πάσχω	έπαθον	I suffer

Some verbs have no Present stem formed from the verbal stem. Instead the Present of a quite different verb is used. In consequence we get this strange link-up of Presents and Second Aorists in the following five very common verbs:

έρχομαι	ήλθον	I come	ώραω	είδον	I see έσθιω	έφαγον	I eat	φέρω	ήνεγκον ¹	I carry
λέγω	είπον	I say

As the meanings of these Aorists are sometimes given in lexicons under the totally different word in the Present tense, it is specially important that they be carefully learnt.

Second Aorist stems with First Aorist endings

In the case of ήλθον, είπον, είδον and ήνεγκον First Aorist endings are often added to Second Aorist stems, e.g. έν φυλακη ήμην και ήλθατε προς με (Matt. 25. 36)

I was in prison and you came to me.

οί δε είπαν, Πιστευσον έπι τον Κυριον 'Ιησουν (Acts 16. 31)

And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus.

έλθατω ή βασιλεια σου (Luke 11. 2)

Thy kingdom come.

Διδασκαλε, ήνεγκα τον υίον μου προς σε (Mark 9. 17)

Teacher, I brought my son to you.

είπον τη εκκλησια² (Matt. 18. 17)

Tell the church.

These forms should be regarded as 'Second Aorist with First Aorist endings', since they are not true First Aorists.

² είπ-ον has the second person singular First Aorist Imperative ending like λυσ-ον and like πιστευσ-ον above. With Second Aorist ending, it would be είπ-ε.

γινωσκω and -βαινω

γινωσκω and -βαινω (meaning 'I go', but only found in compounds) have slightly irregular Second Aorist forms. The endings contain a long vowel throughout, and the third person plural has -σαν instead of -ν:

ἐγνων	-ἐβην
ἐγnows	-ἐβης
ἐγνω	-ἐβη
ἐγνωμεν	-ἐβημεν ἐγνωτε	-ἐβητε
ἐγνωσαν	-ἐβησαν

PRINCIPAL PARTS

So far we have met verbs with one stem and verbs with two stems, and we have thought of both the Future and the Aorist as being derived from the verb stem. This is not, however, the whole story. As we shall see in due course, there are also verbs which have differing Future and Aorist stems. Some verbs have further modifications of stem in other tenses which we have not yet studied. It is theoretically possible for one verb to have as many as six stem variations. This sounds alarming. But fortunately, although stems are sometimes apparently arbitrary, the endings of verbs are almost always perfectly regular. So a complete knowledge of a verb can be obtained if the initial words of six tenses are known. It is then simply a matter of adding the appropriate endings of λυω to the stems of these tenses.

The six tenses are:

- (1) Present Active (or Middle)
- (2) Future Active (or Middle)
- (3) Aorist Active (or Middle)
- (4) Perfect Active
- (5) Perfect Passive
- (6) Aorist Passive

The first person singular of each is used and together they make up the so-called principal parts of a verb.

Thus the first three principal parts of λυω are:

λυω λυσω ἔλυσα

If the principal parts of about forty verbs are learnt (and they are not all very irregular), all the common verb forms of the New Testament will be known.

The list of the Second Aorists given above is repeated in Vocabulary 25, and, in some cases, the Future has also been added, so completing the verb's first three principal parts. It is important to learn these principal parts in their proper order as they arise. In some cases it will not be necessary to learn all the principal parts. New parts will be added only if they are useful, and they will be added at the stage when they can best be understood.

1. Μετα ταυτα ἀπεθανεν ὁ πτωχος. 2. ἀνεβημεν εἰς το ἱερον ἐν ἰκεινῇ τῇ ὥρᾳ. 3. ὦ Κυριε, ἡμαρτον ἐνωπιον σου. 4. ἴδου ἡνεγκομεν τοὺς λιθοὺς ἀπο τῆς θαλασσης. 5. τα δενδρα οὐδε ἐπεσεν εἰς τον ἄγρον. 6. οἱ ἰσχυροὶ ἐφευγον ἀπο των νεανιων. 7. οἱ δε προφηται ἐφυγον εἰς την ἐρημον. 8. πορευου ἐξω της κωμης και λαβε τον καρπον ἀπο των ἐργατων. 9. ἐλθετω τα παιδια προς με. 10. ἐσχεν τα βιβλια του ἀδελφου μου. 11. εὗρον δε το ἀργυριον και αὐτο ἡγαγον αὐτοῖς ὥστε αὐτοὺς παραλαβειν τον μισθον αὐτων. 12. οἶσει δε τον σταυρον και πιεται το ποτηριον. 13. λημψομεθα την δυνατην σωτηριαν αὐτου και γνωσομεθα την εἰρηνην αὐτου. 14. καταβησονται παρα τον ποταμον και προσοισουσιν θυσιαν. 15. ὑπηγεν¹ δε και ἔβαλεν αὐτο εἰς την θαλασσαν. 16. και ἐν τῷ ἀγαγειν αὐτοὺς το παιδιον του προσενεγκειν αὐτο τῷ Κυρίῳ, ὁ λαος ὑψολογησεν τον Θεον.

1. Therefore we cast ourselves into the river. 2. But you took the clothes which the elders sent for the poor. 3. Did they then flee from the face of the judges? 4. This is the stone that fell from heaven. 5. The virgin had a son, and they called him Jesus. 6. For the Son of man must suffer. 7. After these days we went to Galilee. 8. On this account they left the sheep in the fields and departed. 9. It is necessary for the crowd to eat the bread and drink the wine which the same young men carried to them. 10. The other prophet who had the first book died alone. 11. Lo! He knew our hearts. 12. For they learnt to suffer and they will see his face. 13. She left the house and will come into the temple. 14. And we saw the sun and said words of joy and repentance. 15. We ate and drank with him on the earth and we shall eat and drink with him in heaven.

LESSON 26

The Future and Aorist of liquid verbs

ὅτι

THE FUTURE AND AORIST OF LIQUID VERBS

The Future and Aorist of verbs whose stems end in a so-called liquid letter, λ μ ν or ρ

present some peculiarities:

(1) They have no σ before the endings.

(2) The Future has the endings of the Present tense of $\phi\iota\lambda\epsilon\omega$.¹ (These endings are added to the verbal stem. As the table below shows, there is usually a lengthening of this stem both in the Present and in the Aorist. $\acute{\alpha}\pi\sigma\sigma\tau\epsilon\lambda\lambda\omega$ provides an example of three different stems in the first three principal parts.)

¹ The explanation of this is that these futures originally ended in $-\epsilon\sigma\omega$, but the σ has dropped out. So for $\acute{\alpha}\rho\epsilon(\sigma)\omega$ we have $\acute{\alpha}\rho\omega$.

First (or Second)

Present	Future	Aorist
αἶρω	ἄρω	ἤρα	I lift up
σπείρω	σπερω	ἔσπειρα	I sow
ἐγείρω	ἐγερω	ἤγειρα	I raise
ἀπο-κτείνω	ἀπο-κτενω	ἀπ-εκτεινα	I kill ἀπο-στελλω	ἀπο-στελω	ἀπ-εστείλα	I send ἀγγελλω	ἀγγελω	ἤγγειλα	I announce
μένω	μενῶ	ἔμεινα	I remain
κρίνω	κρινῶ	ἔκρινα	I judge
βάλλω	βαλω	(ἐβάλον)	I throw ἀποθνήσκω has a deponent Middle Future:

ἀπο-θνήσκω	ἀπο-θανομαι	(ἀπ-εθανον)	I die
------------	-------------	-------------	-------

The First Aorist Imperative of αἶρω (by analogy with λυσον) is: ἄρον.

The First Aorist Infinitive of αἶρω (by analogy with λυσαι) is: ἄραι.

The Present and Future of αἶρω are conjugated as follows:

αἶρω	ἄρω
αἶρεις	ἄρεις
αἶρει	ἄρει
αἶρομεν	ἄρουμεν
αἶρετε	ἄρειτε
αἶρουσι(ν)	ἄρουσι(ν)

As the verbal stem (used in the Future) and the Present stem generally differ, the fact that the endings of the singular and of the third person plural are the same causes no difficulty. In the case of μένω and κρίνω, however, both stems and endings are the same, and the meaning must be inferred from the context. In an accented text the Present is accented μένω μένεις μένει μένουσιν and the future μενῶ μενεῖς μενεῖ μενουῖσιν. This is an accentual distinction worth noting. We shall add the circumflex accent when using the four Future forms of these two verbs which would otherwise be ambiguous, but we shall add no accent when using the Present tense or the first and second person Future plural.¹

Future: κρινῶ κρινεῖς κρινεῖ κρινουμεν κρινεῖτε κρινουῖσιν.

ὅτι

There are three common uses of ὅτι:

- (1) ὅτι can be used causally, i.e. meaning because.
- (2) It is very frequently used to introduce dependent (or indirect) statements. See Introduction: English Grammar, Section 17.
- (3) There is the use known as ὅτι recitative.

(1) ὅτι used causally

This calls for no special comment. It is used just like the English 'because'.

(2) ὅτι introducing dependent statements

There is a whole class of verbs meaning 'to say', 'believe', 'feel', 'know', 'learn', etc., which are for convenience known as verbs of saying or thinking. These are frequently followed by object clauses (beginning with the word 'that') which express dependent statements. 'That' is usually translated by ὅτι and the object clause is put in the Indicative, e.g.

θεωρῶ ὅτι προφῆτης εἶ σὺ (John 4. 19)

I see that you are a prophet.

Dependent statements in the past

When, however, the words or thoughts were in the past, the Greek idiom differs from the English. In Greek the tense of the verb which was used by the original speaker or thinker when he uttered the words or framed the thought is always retained, and the verb in the object clause is not put into the past tense as it is in English.

In English we say, 'He heard that he was ill'. The words that the man actually heard were, 'He is ill'. In Greek the present tense is retained, and we have:

ἤκουσεν ὅτι ἀσθενεῖ (John 11. 6)

Similarly, ἤκουσεν ὅτι Ἰησοῦς ἐρχεται (John 11. 20)

She heard that Jesus was coming.

Sometimes English uses a Pluperfect. But the same rule applies: the tense used by the original speaker or thinker must be recalled. Thus:

οὐκ ἐπιστευσαν οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι ὅτι ἦν τυφλός (John 9. 18)

The Jews did not believe that he had been blind,

i.e. in thought they denied the statement in the Imperfect, 'He used to be blind'.

Luke 2. 20 records how the shepherds praised God for all the things which ἤκουσαν καὶ εἶδον

they had heard and seen.

In their direct speech they praised God 'for all the things which we heard and saw (just now)'. The Greek tense is therefore Aorist, but the English tense is Pluperfect. (See also John 9. 35.)

Thus we may say that in English, after a past main verb, the tense of the verb in the object clause is put one stage further into the past: the Past is used instead of the Present, and the Pluperfect instead of the Past. But in Greek the tense used by the original speaker or thinker is retained.

The student should always ask himself what were the original words uttered, or the original thought framed, before trying to translate such sentences as these.

(3) ὅτι recitative

ὅτι can also be used to introduce a direct statement, in which case it is not translated. This so-called ὅτι recitative is simply equivalent to inverted commas.

An indirect statement after ὅτι will normally begin with a small letter, and a direct statement with a capital letter.

Examples of the three uses are:

(1) ὑμεῖς οὐ πιστεύετε, ὅτι οὐκ ἐστε ἐκ τῶν προβάτων τῶν ἐμῶν
(John 10. 26)

You do not believe, because you are not of my sheep.

(2) εἶπον οὖν ὑμῖν ὅτι ἀποθανεῖσθε ἐν ταῖς ἁμαρτίαις ὑμῶν
(John 8. 24)

I said to you therefore that you will die in your sins.

(3) and (1) ὑμεῖς λέγετε ὅτι Βλασφημεῖς, ὅτι εἶπον Υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ εἰμι (John 10. 36)

You say, 'You are blaspheming', because I said, 'I am the Son of God'.

It will be seen from the last example that a direct statement can be made with or without an introductory ὅτι. Βλασφημεῖς has the ὅτι recitative, whereas Υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ εἰμι is without it.

1. Ὅτε δε οἱ στρατιῳται ἦλθον εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν ἀπηγγείλαν ὅτι ἀπεστείλεν αὐτοὺς. 2. οὗτοι κρινούσιν τὰς χήρας καὶ ἀποκτενοῦσιν τὰ τέκνα αὐτῶν; 3. οὐ μένετε ἐν τῷ τοπῷ τουτῷ ἀλλ' ἀποθανεῖσθε ἐν τῇ γῇ τῶν ἐχθρῶν ὑμῶν. 4. οἱ δε ἀποστολοὶ ἐσπείραν τὸν λόγον ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις τῶν ὀλίγων οἱ ἠθέλον ὑπακούειν αὐτῷ. 5. ἦρεν οὖν τὸν σταυρὸν καὶ ἦλθεν ὀπίσω τοῦ Ἰησοῦ. 6. ἐν ἐκείνῳ τῷ καιρῷ οἱ κριταὶ ἐκρίναν τὰς ἀπιστοὺς. 7. ἐμείνα δε ἐν τῷ ἰδίῳ τοπῷ ἕως ἀνεγνώ το βιβλίον. 8. δυνασθε πίνειν τὸ ποτηριον ὃ δεῖ με πίνειν; 9. ἐμείναμεν δε ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ ἕως οἱ ἐργαται ὑποκοδοῦν τὸν θρόνον. 10. ὅτε δε ἤκουσαν ταῦτα παρα τῆς χήρας ἐμείναν παρ' αὐτῇ. 11. οὐδε ὠφείλες ἀργυριον τοῖς τελωναῖς. 12. ὃ δε Ἰησοὺς εἶπεν τῷ παραλυτικῷ, Ἄρον αὐτὸ καὶ ὑπάγε εἰς τὸν οἶκόν σου· ὅτε δε ἤκουσεν ταῦτα ἦρεν αὐτὸ καὶ ὑπήγεν. 13. ἀπεστείλαμεν οὖν τοὺς ἀγγέλους ἐτοιμασαι τὴν ὁδόν. 14. ὃ προφήτης εἶπεν ὅτι Δυνατον ἐστίν. εἶπεν ὅτι δυνατον ἐστίν. εἶπεν, Δυνατον ἐστίν. 15. παρηγγείλατε αὐτοῖς μὴ ἀδικησαι ὅλον τὸν λαόν. 16. καὶ τοῦτο ἤκουσαμεν παρ' αὐτοῦ ὅτι δεῖ ἡμᾶς φιλεῖν τοὺς ἀδελφούς ἡμῶν. 17. ἀλλ' οἱ Φαρισαῖοι ἔλεγον ὅτι ἐσθίει παρα ἁμαρτωλῷ. 18. οἴσεις δε τὸν σταυρὸν ὀπίσω μου. 19. καὶ ἐρεῖ ταῦτα αὐτῇ ὅτι φιλοῦσιν ἀλλήλους. 20. ἐμαθες ὅτι ἐρχεται ὁ ἰσχυρὸς κριτῆς. 21. εἶπαν ὅτι ἱκανὸν οἶνον πίνουσιν. 22. ἐγνων ὅτι ὁ Κύριος ἐπεμψεν τὸν ἀγγέλον εἰς τὸ σωζειν με. 23. εἶδον ὅτι ἡγαγομεν τὸν ὄχλον εἰς τὴν αὐτὴν συναγωγὴν.

1. Send the young men to rouse the soldiers. 2. But he took the child and departed. 3. They will not die in the desert, for the soldiers will save them. 4. Therefore I will judge my people at that time. 5. And the Pharisees went to eat bread with¹ the prophet. 6. And when he heard these words he sent them to kill his enemy. 7. They will remain in the house while the paralysed man is dying. 8. We announced therefore that the apostle had fallen. 9. But you ought not to judge these widows. 10. And he will cast out² his right eye, because you are weak. 11. When the disciples came to the village they sowed the word in the hearts of the people. 12. Will you not kill the evil men, O Lord? 13. You will throw the stones beside the temple. 14. But the Pharisees said that the disciples of John did not eat with¹ tax-collectors and sinners. 15. I shall fall but not die, because you will raise me. 16. And they will say, 'He died on the first day while we were working'.

LESSON 27

The First and Second Aorist Middle

γίνομαι

THE FORMATION OF THE AORIST MIDDLE

The conjugation of the two Aorist Middle Indicative tenses follows closely the Imperfect Middle ἐλνομην. The First Aorist, however (as might be expected), inserts the characteristic σα, and the Second Aorist uses its own Second Aorist stem.

² Use ἐκβάλλω.

First Aorist		Second Aorist
Indicative		Indicative
ἔλυσαμην	I loosed	ἔγενομην	I became ἔλυσω ¹		ἔγενου
ἔλυσατο		ἔγενετο
ἔλυσάμεθα		ἔγενόμεθα
ἔλυσασθε		ἔγενεσθε
ἔλυσαντο		ἔγενοντο

The Imperative and Infinitive follow the Present Middle in a similar way:²

Imperative		Imperative
λυσαι	loose	γενου	become λυσασθω		γενεσθω
λυσασθε		γενεσθε
λυσασθωσαν		γενεσθωσαν
Infinitive		Infinitive
λυσασθαι	to loose	γενεσθαι	to become

THE USE OF THE FIRST AORIST MIDDLE

The First Aorist Middle is found mainly in deponent verbs such as those already learnt in Voc. 23. They are regularly formed. It is necessary merely to recall the ordinary rules for initial vowel changes in the formation of past tenses and for the combination of mutes with σ to obtain the following forms:

Present Active	Aorist Middle
ἄπτομαι	ἤψαμην
ἄρχομαι	ἤρξαμην
δέχομαι	ἔδεξαμην
ἐργάζομαι	ἤργασαμην
εὐαγγελίζομαι	εὐηγγελισαμην

² Except for λυσαι, which has no similarity to the Present form. Note: λυσαι is also the form of the First Aorist Infinitive Active.

(ἀποκρίνομαι has mainly Passive forms, but ἀπεκρίνατο, 'he answered', is sometimes found.)

The first three principal parts of a typical deponent verb are thus:

δεχομαι δεξομαι ἐδεξαμην

THE USE OF THE SECOND AORIST MIDDLE; γινομαι

The Second Aorist Middle is found in ἀπολλυμι, whose form is explained in Lesson 44:

ἀπολλυμι I destroy ἀπωλομην I perished and in the extremely common γινομαι I become, etc. ἐγενομην I became, etc.

The first three principal parts of γινομαι are thus:

γινομαι γενησομαι ἐγενομην

γινομαι has a wide range of possible translations besides 'become'. It can mean 'come into being', 'happen', 'appear', 'arise', 'be made', 'be', or even 'come'. For the last, cf.

ἐγενετο φωνη ἐκ της νεφελης (Mark 9. 7)

There came a voice out of the cloud.

γινομαι is not a verb of motion, but in English 'came' is a somewhat more idiomatic translation than 'was'.

The Imperative of εἶμι is very rare. γινομαι is generally used to express the Imperative of the verb 'to be', e.g.

μη γινεσθε ὡς οἱ ὑποκριται (Matt. 6. 16)

Do not be as (like) the hypocrites.

The common expressions και ἐγενετο and ἐγενετο δε are usually translated in the Authorised Version 'and it came to pass'. They are literal translations of a Hebrew idiom, which gives a certain vividness to a narrative, but which in reality adds nothing to the sense. It has come into Christian use through the Septuagint. Sometimes we find a very literal imitation of the Hebrew, such as:

και ἐγενετο και αὐτος διηρχετο (Luke 17. 11)

lit. and it came to pass and he was going through.

The New English Bible considers it unnecessary to translate και ἐγενετο και and renders it simply: 'he was travelling through'.

1. Ὑμεῖς μὲν ἡρνησασθε τὸν ἅγιον καὶ δίκαιον κατ' ἰδίαν, ὁ δὲ ἡρνησατο αὐτὸν ἐμπροσθεν ὅλου τοῦ λαοῦ.
2. ἡ χήρα ἠψατο μόνον τοῦ ἱματίου αὐτοῦ, ἀλλ' εἶπεν Μη μου ἄπτου.
3. ἡσπασατο αὐτοὺς ἀλλ' ἡρξάντο παρακαλεῖν αὐτὸν ἀπελθεῖν.
4. αὐτὸν δεῖ τὸν οὐρανὸν δεξασθαι, ἀλλ' ὀψόμεθα αὐτὸν ἐν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῆς δευτέρας παρουσίας αὐτοῦ.
5. ὁ δὲ ἀπεκρίνατο Ἐυαγγελισαὶ αὐτῶ.
6. αὐτὸν δὲ λογιζομαι φίλον, ἔργον γὰρ καλὸν ἡργασατο ὑπὲρ ἐμὸν.
7. οἱ οὖν μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ἡρξάντο ὁδὸν ποιεῖν.
8. ὁ δὲ πρῶτος παρεγενετο καὶ εἶπεν, Κυριε, βουλομεθα μαθεῖν προσευξασθαι.
9. ὁ πρεσβύτερος γενεσθῶ ὡς ὁ διακονος.
10. καὶ ἐγενετο ἐν τῷ εἶναι αὐτοὺς ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ οἱ σοφοὶ παρεγενοντο εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα.
11. καὶ κείνος ἀπώλετο, ἀλλ' οἱ υἱοὶ αὐτοῦ οὐκ ἀπώλοντο.
12. ἡρξω ἀπο τῶν ἐσχατῶν ἕως τῶν πρῶτων.
13. διὸ γινεσθε σοφοὶ πρὸς ἀλλήλους.
14. οὐκ ἐνεδυσατο ἱμάτιον καὶ ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ οὐκ ἔμενεν.
15. καὶ ἐγενετο ἐν τῷ σπείρειν ἄλλα ἐπέσεν παρα τὴν ὁδόν.

B

1. And Jesus began to say to the crowds concerning John, 'He prepared my way'.
2. Let a man deny himself and come after me.
3. Peter, go into the house of the unbelieving woman and greet her.
4. And on that day the remaining saints preached the gospel and worked righteousness.
5. But he went up into the temple to pray.
6. Sinner, receive the word with fear.
7. Do not be like the hypocrites, but be faithful to one another.
8. And it came to pass, as he sowed, the seeds fell beside the way.
9. He was in the world, and the world came into being through him, and the world did not know him.
10. It is not lawful for a prophet to perish outside Jerusalem.
11. Peter, do not be faithless.

REVISION TESTS 3

The Verb

Allow 50 minutes each for Tests A and B. Total number of marks: 60 for each test.

When writing out conjugations, give the first word in full, then only the endings.

1. Give the following tenses of λυω:

Active: Present Indicative, First Aorist Indicative, Present Imperative, First Aorist Infinitive.

Middle: Imperfect Indicative, Future Indicative, Present Imperative, First Aorist Imperative.

Passive: Present Indicative. [9 marks]

2. Give the rules of contraction of -εω verbs. [3]
3. Give the Future and Aorist Indicative of βαλλω. [2]
4. Give the Imperfect and Infinitive of ειμι. [2]
5. Give the Present Indicative and Infinitive of δυναμαι. [2]
6. Tabulate the contractions of mutes with σ. [3]
7. Give the Second Aorist Indicative Active of -βαινω. [1]
8. Give the Greek for: I am beside, I bind, I build, I buy, I cleanse, I draw near, I exhort, I follow, I heal, I am ill, I injure, I keep, I have mercy on, it is necessary, I obey, I persecute, I practise, I reckon, I recognise, I rejoice, I repent, I rule, I seek, I seem, I cause to stumble, I tempt. [13]
9. Give the Greek for: I shall begin, I shall deny, I shall pray, I shall receive (two words), I shall prepare. I fled, I hid, I learnt, I perished, I sinned, I was throwing out. [6]
10. Give the first three principal parts of the verbs meaning: I loose, I become, I command, I cry out, I depart, I die, I eat, I fall, I have, I know, I lift up, I look at, I raise, I remain, I say. [15]
11. Give simple Greek sentences illustrating four uses of the infinitive. [4]

1. Give the following tenses of φιλεω:

Active: Imperfect Indicative, Future Indicative, First Aorist Imperative, Present Infinitive.

Middle: Present Indicative, First Aorist Indicative, First Aorist Infinitive.

Passive: Imperfect Indicative, Present Imperative. [9 marks]

2. Give the rules for initial vowel changes in the formation of past tenses [3]

3. Give the Aorist Indicative, Imperative and Infinitive Middle of γινομαι. [3]

4. Give the Present and Future of ειμι. [2]

5. Give the Imperfect Indicative of δυναμαι, mentioning the alternative forms. [1]

6. Give the Second Aorist Indicative Active of γινωσκω. [1]

7. Give the First Aorist Imperative and Infinitive of αιρω. [2]

8. Give the Greek for: I am about, I bless, I call (two words), I fear, I guard, I hate, I hope, I inhabit, it is lawful, I marry, I open, I proclaim, I put on, I release, I reveal, I sanctify, I serve, I sit, I take hold of (two words), I am weak, I weep, I wonder at, I worship, I do wrong. [13]

9. Give the Greek for: I shall glorify, I shall go down, I shall greet, I shall read, I shall touch. I left, I was owing, I was preaching the gospel, I suffered, I was walking, I was wishing (two words). [6]

10. Give the first three principal parts of the verbs meaning: I loose, I announce, I bring, I carry (2 words), I come, I drink, I find, I go up, I judge, I kill, I see, I send (with a commission), I sow, I take. [15]

11. Give ten verbs which usually take the dative and three which usually take the genitive. [2]

12. Explain the use of tenses in object clauses after verbs of saying or thinking in a past tense. [3]

LESSON 28

Third Declension masculine and feminine nouns with consonant stems

THE THIRD DECLENSION

The Third Declension contains all nouns which do not belong to the First or Second Declension.

The basic classification of the Third Declension is into:

- (1) nouns whose stems end in a consonant:
 - (a) masculine and feminine nouns (Lesson 28);
 - (b) neuter nouns (Lesson 29); together with
 - (c) certain adjectives and pronouns (Lesson 30).
- (2) nouns whose stems end in a vowel (Lesson 31).

MASCULINE AND FEMININE NOUNS WITH CONSONANT STEMS

The endings of these nouns are as follows:

	Singular	Plural
N.	Various	ες
A.	α	ας
G.	ος	ων
D.	ι	σι(ν)

The vocative will not be included in this declension. It is usually the same as the nominative. The occasional exceptions will be noted in the vocabularies.

Since the nominative singular takes various forms and since there are no general rules for determining the gender, it is necessary to learn nominative singular, stem and gender all at once in order to have a full knowledge of a Third Declension word. It is most convenient to learn the words in the form in which they are set out in the vocabularies: nominative singular, genitive singular, article, meaning. Thus:

ἀστηρ	ἀστερος	ὁ	star
ἐλπις	ἐλπιδος	ἡ	hope

The stem can be found by taking away the -ος from the genitive singular. Thus the stem of ἀστηρ is ἀστερ and is declined as follows:

ἀστηρ	ἀστερες
ἀστερα	ἀστερας
ἀστερος	ἀστερων
ἀστερι	ἀστερσι(ν) ¹

Formation of the dative plural

When σιν is added to the stem to form the dative plural, the same consonantal changes take place as in the forming of the future of verbs (Lesson 21):

(gutturals)	κ, γ, χ + σιν → ξιν
(labials)	π, β, φ + σιν → ψιν
(dentals and also ν)	τ, δ, θ, ν + σιν → σιν

Examples:

Nominative	Genitive	Dative plural
σαρξ	σαρκ-ος	σαρξιν	flesh
αἰων	αἰων-ος	αἰωσιν	age
νυξ	νυκ-τ-ος	νυξιν	night

Stems ending in αντ, εντ, οντ take the following forms:²

αντ + σιν → ασιν
εντ + σιν → εισιν
οντ + σιν → ουσιν

Example:

ἀρχων	ἀρχοντος	ἀρχουσιν	ruler
-------	----------	----------	-------

Irregular nouns

The following words are somewhat irregular:

πατηρ πατρος ὁ	father
μητηρ μητρος ἡ	mother
θυγατηρ θυγατρος ἡ	daughter

² These forms will be found of great importance when the participle is reached in Lesson 36.

They are all declined like πατηρ, as follows:

πατηρ	πατερες
πατερα	πατερας
πατρος	πατερων
πατρι	πατρασι(ν)

The stem is in fact πατερ, but it contracts in the genitive singular and in the dative singular and plural. In addition the dative plural has an irregular ending -ασιν.

LESSON 29

Third Declension neuter nouns

Neuter nouns of the Third Declension all have consonant stems, but they are of two distinct types.

NEUTER NOUNS: FIRST TYPE

The first is like ἄστηρ, except that

(1) the accusatives are the same as the nominatives (as always in neuter nouns);

(2) there is an -α ending in the nominative and accusative plural.

The endings are therefore:

	Singular	Plural
N.A.	Various	-α
G.	-ος	-ων
D.	-ι	-σι(ν)

σῶμα σωματος το, 'body' (stem σωματ), is declined as follows:

N.A.	σῶμα	σώματα
G.	σωματος	σωμάτων
D.	σωματι	σώμασι(ν)

NEUTER NOUNS: SECOND TYPE

With stems ending in -ες

The second type is at first sight quite different.

γένος γενους το, 'race', is declined as follows:

N.A.	γένος	γένη
G.	γενους	γενων
D.	γενει	γενεσι(ν)

It will be seen that the nominative singular ending is the same as that of λογος, but that the declension as a whole is quite different from that of Second Declension masculine words. Thus words of the -ος -ους type need to be carefully noted and learnt.

These forms are not in fact as arbitrary as they look. Apart from the nominative singular, they are all due to the dropping of the final s of the stem γενε*s*. Contractions have taken place thus:

—	γενε(σ)α → γενη (see p. 83 footnote)
γενε(σ)ος → γενους	γενε(σ)ων → γενων (see -εω contractions, Lesson 4)
γενε(σ)ι → γενει	γενε(σ)σιν → γενεσιν

But, unbelieving woman, you said that you knew the will of God. 14. And they will do wonders in his name. 15. But he put¹ the seed into a vessel on the day of the Passover. 16. The Jews therefore became a part of the whole race. 17. Can the feet say to the hands, 'We have no need of you, because you are not members of the body'? 18. And the Holy Spirit will remain with them for ever and ever. 19. And the world perished by water.

LESSON 30

Third Declension adjectives

Interrogative and indefinite pronouns

THIRD DECLENSION ADJECTIVES: FIRST TYPE

There are also two types of Third Declension Adjective. In certain respects these correspond closely to the two neuter noun declensions. The common words of the first group are comparative adjectives, e.g.

πλειων πλειον more

Masculine		Masculine
Feminine	Neuter	Feminine	Neuter
πλειων	πλειον	πλειονες	πλειονα
πλειονα	πλειον	πλειονας	πλειονα
πλειονος	πλειονος	πλειονων	πλειονων
πλειονι	πλειονι	πλειοσι(ν)	πλειοσι(ν)

¹ Use βαλλω. βαλλω and its compounds are often used in a weakened sense, cf. 13A 9, 32A 11.

It will be seen that the masculine and feminine endings are of the ἄσθηρ type and the neuter forms are of the σωμα type.

When $\begin{matrix} \text{πλειων} & \text{πλειον} \\ \text{πλειονα} \end{matrix}$ has been learnt the whole declension follows automatically.

ΤΙΣ

The interrogative and indefinite pronouns (Introduction: English Grammar, Section 5) belong to this same group. The interrogative 'who?' 'what?' differs from the indefinite pronoun 'someone', 'anyone', 'a certain one', 'something', etc., only in accent. The unaccented form of both is:

ΤΙΣ	ΤΙ	ΤΙΝΕΣ	ΤΙΝΑ
ΤΙΝΑ	ΤΙ	ΤΙΝΑΣ	ΤΙΝΑ
ΤΙΝΟΣ	ΤΙΝΟΣ	ΤΙΝΩΝ	ΤΙΝΩΝ
ΤΙΝΙ	ΤΙΝΙ	ΤΙΣΙ(ν)	ΤΙΣΙ(ν)

When $\begin{matrix} \text{ΤΙΣ} & \text{ΤΙ} \\ \text{ΤΙΝΑ} \end{matrix}$ has been learnt, the rest of the declension follows automatically.

We shall always print the interrogative with an acute accent on the first syllable: τίς τί τίνα, and the indefinite without any accent.¹

¹ (Not important at this stage.) All forms of the indefinite pronoun belong to a small class of words (called enclitics) which are closely joined to the word that precedes. (Others are: τε, με, μου, μοι, σε, σου, σοι (when not emphatic); and the Present Indicative of εἰμι, except second singular εἶ.) They, therefore, never stand first in the sentence.

In a fully accented text these words sometimes have an accent (which may be either acute or grave), but more usually they have no accent at all. The interrogative and indefinite pronouns are normally easy to distinguish. In its two-syllable forms the interrogative carries an acute accent on the first syllable, e.g. τίτες; whereas the corresponding indefinite can only have an accent on the second syllable. It can be τινες, τινές or τινὲς. In the single syllable forms, the interrogative always has an acute accent (τίς, τί), whereas the indefinite is nearly always without an accent (τις, τι). (There are, however, rare cases where the single syllable indefinite also has an acute accent, which might cause it to be confused with the interrogative, e.g. John 12. 47; 16. 30.)

ὅστις

The indefinite relative pronoun, ὅστις 'whoever', is a combination of ὅς and τις, both parts of which decline. Thus we get the nominative forms:

ὅστις ἡ τις ὅτι (or ὅ τι)¹ οἷτινες αἷτινες ἅτινα

In the New Testament the nominative is the only case in common use, and the distinction in meaning between ὅς and ὅστις has almost disappeared. Therefore it is usually correct to translate it like an ordinary relative: 'who', 'which', etc.²

Examples of the use of τίς τις and ὅστις are:

ἀλλὰ τί ἐξήλθατε ἰδεῖν; (Matt. 11. 8)

But what did you go out to see?

εἰ τις ἔχει ὦτα ἀκουεῖν ἀκουέτω (Mark 4. 23)

If anyone has ears to hear, let him hear.

Both τίς and τις may be used adjectivally:

τίνα μισθὸν ἔχετε; (Matt. 5. 46)

What reward do you have?

γυναῖκες τινες . . . αἷτινες διηκονοῦν αὐτοῖς (Luke 8. 2, 3)

Certain women . . . who used to wait upon them.

τί often means 'why?'

τί δε με καλεῖτε, Κυριε Κυριε; (Luke 6. 46)

Why do you keep calling me 'Lord, Lord'?

ADJECTIVES OF THE THIRD DECLENSION: SECOND TYPE

The second type of Third Declension Adjective has a stem ending in -ες and undergoes contractions similar to those of γένος:

ἀληθης ἀληθες true

¹ ὅτι the pronoun needs to be distinguished from ὅτι the conjunction. Modern editors therefore usually write the pronoun as two words: ὅ τι.

² It seems likely that there was a tendency to substitute ὅστις for ὅς in the nominative to avoid confusion between the relatives ἡ, ὁ, οἱ, αἱ and the article ὁ, ἡ, οἱ, αἱ. See p. 72 n. 1 and C. F. D. Moule, An Idiom Book of N.T. Greek, pp. 123 f.

Masculine		Masculine
Feminine	Neuter	Feminine	Neuter
ἀληθης	ἀληθες	ἀληθεις	ἀληθη
ἀληθη	ἀληθες	ἀληθεις	ἀληθη
ἀληθους	ἀληθους	ἀληθων	ἀληθων
ἀληθει	ἀληθει	ἀληθεσι(ν)	ἀληθεσι(ν) ¹

1. But they will receive² a reward which is better than life. 2. The Christ then is greater than the temple. 3. For he was a man full of grace and truth. 4. The first workmen said, 'We shall receive² more honour'. 5. But the true elders in compassion encourage their weak children. 6. Whoever wishes to come after me, let him deny himself. 7. A certain saint died and did not leave children. 8. For when we were in the flesh we were slaves of sin. 9. These are the men who

ἀληθε(σ)α → η	ἀληθε(σ)ες > εις
ἀληθε(σ)ος → ους	ἀληθε(σ)ων > ων
ἀληθε(σ)ι → ει	ἀληθε(σ)ων → εσιν

² Use λαμβάνω or παραλαμβάνω. λαμβάνω often means 'receive'.

hear the words of the multitude. 10. Can this man be worse than Judas? 11. Why do you tempt me, hypocrite? Whose is this image? 12. Some speak according to (the) flesh, but the Spirit is against the flesh.

LESSON 31

Third Declension nouns with vowel stems

υ STEMS

There are nine nouns in the New Testament (none of them very common) with stems ending in υ. Some of these are masculine and some feminine. They are declined exactly like ἄστυρ, except for the accusative singular, which ends in ν. Thus:

ἰχθυς	ἰχθυος	ὁ	fish
ἰχθυς		ἰχθυες
ἰχθυιν		ἰχθυας
ἰχθυος		ἰχθυων
ἰχθυϊ		ἰχθυσι(ν)

ι AND ευ STEMS

Much more important are those with stems in ι and in ευ, which are declined as follows:

πολις	πολεως	ἡ	city	βασιλευς	βασιλεως	ὁ	king
πολις				βασιλευς
πολιν				βασιλεα
πολεως				βασιλεως
πολει				βασιλει
πολεις				βασιλεις
πολεις				βασιλεις
πολεων				βασιλεων
πολεσι(ν)				βασιλευσι(ν)

Note. (1) Though strictly speaking the stems end in ι and in ευ (and the nominative ending is simply s), it is better for practical purposes to think of the endings as -ις -εως and -ευς -εως.

(2) All these nouns with ι stems have nominative singular in -ις and genitive singular in -εως, and all are feminine. And all nouns with ευ stems have nominative singular in -ευς and genitive singular in -εως, and all are masculine. They are always, therefore, of the form: -ις -εως ἡ and -ευς -εως ὁ.

(3) In each case (as with ἀληθείς) the nominative and accusative plurals are the same.

(4) βασιλεὺς follows πόλις exactly, except in the accusative singular and dative plural.

(5) Nouns like πόλις -εως ἡ with vowel stems need to be carefully distinguished from those with consonant stems like ἐλπίς ἐλπίδος ἡ and χάρις χάριτος ἡ.

1. Ἴδου, ζητῇ ὑπο τῆς μητρος καὶ τῶν ἀδελφῶν σου.
2. καὶ οἱ ἄνδρες περιπατοῦν ἐν ταῖς πόλεσιν συν ταῖς γυναῖξιν αὐτῶν.
3. παρηγγεῖλεν οὖν ταῖς ἰδίαις θυγατρασιν ἑτοιμασαι τὸν ἰχθὺν τῷ βασιλεῖ.
4. ἐγὼ μὲν βαπτίζω ὑμᾶς ὕδατι, ἐκεῖνος δὲ βαπτίσει ἡμᾶς δυναμει.
5. οὗτοι εἰσιν οἱ ἄνθρωποι οἵτινες λεγουσιν ἀναστασιν μὴ εἶναι.
6. ἐγὼ γὰρ παρὰ ἀνθρώπου οὐ παρελαβὼν αὐτό, ἀλλὰ δι' ἀποκαλύψεως.
7. θελεῖς πιστὴν καὶ ἀγαθὴν συνειδησιν;
8. καὶ ἔσται χειρῶν χρόνος κρίσεως καὶ θλίψεως.
9. ὁ γὰρ μαθητὴς οὐ φιλεῖ πατέρα καὶ μητέρα ὑπὲρ ἐμὲ.
10. διὰ τί οὐ περιπατοῦσιν κατὰ τὰς παραδοσεις τῶν ἱερέων;
11. ἐκεῖνος δὲ οὐκ ἔχει ἀφ᾽ εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα.
12. θλίψις δὲ γενήσεται διὰ τὸν λόγον.

B

1. And the scribes must take the fishes out of the water for the priests.
2. But by his faith he will open the ears of her father.
3. And they marvelled (wondered) that he had been talking with the high-priest.
4. For the men said that they had seen the daughter of the king.

5. In the resurrection whose wife will she be? 6. And my knowledge of the mystery came by (according to) revelation. 7. But the traditions of men will not bring the forgiveness of sins. 8. Did you not know the power and the grace of God? 9. For our fathers abounded in faith and knowledge. 10. And they will persecute you from city to city. 11. But their consciences were weak. 12. But the faithful man does not come into judgement.

LESSON 32

Adjectives and pronouns of the First and Third Declensions:

πας, εἰς, οὐδεις, μηδεις, πολυς, μεγας

Some adjectives have the masculine and neuter of the Third Declension and the feminine of the First Declension.

πας

πας πασα παν, 'every', 'all' is declined as follows:

πας	πασα	παν	παντες	πασαι	παντα
παντα	πασαν	παν	παντας	πασας	παντα
παντος	πασης	παντος	παντων	πασων	παντων
παντι	παση	παντι	πασιν(ν)	πασαις	πασιν(ν)

All that need be learnt is ^{πας πασα παν} _{παντα}. The rest follows automatically. The First Declension feminine πασα has a consonant stem and so follows δοξα. The Third Declension παντα shows that the masculine (and neuter) stem is παντ. Then πας παντος follows αστηρ αστερος and παν παντος follows σωμα σωματος. For the dative plural we utilise the contraction rule of Lesson 28:

αντ + σιν → ασιν

πας can be used in the following ways:

(1) It can stand alone:

πας οὖν ὅστις ἀκούει μου τοὺς λόγους τούτους (Matt. 7. 24)

Therefore everyone who hears these words of mine.

παντα δι' αὐτοῦ ἐγένετο (John 1. 3)

All things came into existence through him.

(2) It can stand with a noun without an article:

παν δένδρον ἀγαθὸν καρποὺς καλοὺς ποιεῖ (Matt. 7. 17)

Every good tree yields good fruit.

(3) It can stand with a noun with an article, usually in the predicative position:

πας ὁ ὄχλος ἐζήτουν¹ ἀπτεσθαι αὐτοῦ (Luke 6. 19)

All the crowd (the whole crowd) were seeking to touch him.

εἷς

εἷς μια ἐν, 'one', is declined as follows:

εἷς	μια	ἐν
ένα	μιαν	ἐν
ένος	μιας	ένος
ἐνι	μια	ἐνι

Again, all that need be learnt is $\begin{matrix} \text{εἷς μια ἐν} \\ \text{ένα} \end{matrix}$.

(μια has a vowel stem and follows ἡμερα).

εἷς and ἐν, 'one', must be carefully distinguished from εἰς, 'to', and ἐν, 'in'.

οὐδεις AND μηδεις

'No one', 'nothing' is expressed by οὐδεις, when used with the Indicative, and by μηδεις, when used with other moods. These are declined exactly like εἷς except that the prefix οὐδ- or μηδ- is added in the masculine and neuter and the prefix οὐδε- or μηδε- in the feminine, giving:

¹ Note the singular (collective) subject and the plural verb. It is technically a breach of concord, but this construction according to sense is common both in Greek and English. In English we could translate either 'were seeking' or 'was seeking'.

οὐδ εις	οὐδε μια	οὐδ εν	μηδ εις	μηδε μια	μηδ εν
οὐδ ενα	οὐδε μιαν	οὐδ εν	μηδ ενα	μηδε μιαν	μηδ εν
οὐδ ενος	οὐδε μιας	οὐδ ενος	μηδ ενος	μηδε μιας	μηδ ενος
οὐδ ενι	οὐδε μια	οὐδ ενι	μηδ ενι	μηδε μια	μηδ ενι

Examples:

Indicative: πειραζει δε αὐτος οὐδενα (James 1. 13)

And he himself tempts no one.

Infinitive: παρηγγειλεν αὐτω μηδενι εἰπειν (Luke 5. 14)

He commanded him to tell (it to) no one.

In Greek two negatives do not cancel one another out, so that οὐδεις and μηδεις may be used even when the verb already has a negative:

οὐκ ἔφαγεν οὐδεν ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις ἐκείναις (Luke 4. 2)

He ate nothing in those days.

οὐδενι οὐδεν εἶπαν (Mark 16. 8)

They said nothing to anybody.

πολυς AND μεγας

These two irregular adjectives occur frequently:

πολυς	πολλη	πολυ	much; pl. many πολυς	πολλη	πολυ
πολυν	πολλην	πολυ
πολλου	πολλης	πολλου
πολλω	πολλη	πολλω
πολλοι	πολλαι	πολλα
etc.
μεγας	μεγαλη	μεγα	great
μεγας	μεγαλη	μεγα
μεγαν	μεγαλην	μεγα
μεγαλου	μεγαλης	μεγαλου
μεγαλω	μεγαλη	μεγαλω
μεγαλοι	μεγαλαι	μεγαλα
etc.

Only the words in heavy type need be learnt.

Note. (1) The feminines are like ἀρχή throughout.

(2) After the genitive singular (πολλου, πολλης, πολλου; μεγαλου, μεγαλης, μεγαλου) they are exactly like ἀγαθος.

(3) When the nominative and genitive singular have been learnt, only the accusative singular masculine need be noted:

πολυσ, πολυν is like ἰχθυς, ἰχθυν

μεγας, μεγαν is like νεανίας, νεανιαν

EXERCISE 32

1. Παραλημψή δε την ἐξουσίαν ταυτην ἀπασαν και την δοξαν των βασιλειων. 2. οἱ τεσσαρες λησται ἐφυγον εἰς τα ὄρη. 3. το ὄνομα μου μεγα ἐσται ἐν πασιν τοις ἐθνεσιν. 4. οὐδεις θελει πειν τον οἶνον τουτον; 5. οἱ ἐξ ἱερεῖς ἦλθον νυκτος και ἦραν τα σωματα των τριων προφητων. 6. και πασα πολις εἶχεν πυλωνας δωδεκα¹ και παν το πληθος ἐχαιρεν. 7. ὦ γυναι, μεγαλη σου ἡ πιστις. 8. και γινωσκομεν ὅτι τα δεκα ῥήματα ταυτα ἀληθη ἐστιν, ὅτι ἐλάλησεν αὐτα ὁ Κυριος δια στοματος Μωϋσεως. 9. και οὐκ ἐγνωσαν ἕως ἦλθεν ὁ μεγας κατακλυσμος και ἦρεν ἀπαντας. 10. πεμπεσθω εἰς των δουλων σπειρειν το σπερμα ἐν τοις τρισιν ἀγροῖς. 11. συνηρχοντο δε πολλοι ἐκ των ἑπτα κωμων και ἐφερον τους ἀσθενεις και ἐβαλλον αὐτους παρα τους ποδας αὐτου. 12. μηδεις σκανδαλιζετω ἓνα των παιδων τουτων. 13. οἱ δε δυο γυνεις αὐτου οὐκ ἐγνωσαν ὅτι μενει ἐν τη πολει. 14. οὐχ ἡ γραφή εἶπεν ὅτι ἐκ του σπερματος Δαυειδ ἐρχεται ὁ Χριστος; 15. ἐν δε ἐκεινη τη ὥρᾳ συναγονται προς αὐτον πολλοι των ἀρχιερεων οἱ λεγουσιν ὅτι οὐκ ἐσται ἀναστασις. 16. μια ἡμερα παρα Κυριω ὡς χιλια ἔτη. 17. ὁ δε ἑκατονταρχης ἀπεκρινατο, Ἐγὼ εἰμι ἄνθρωπος ὑπο ἐξουσίαν και ἐχω ἑκατον στρατιωτας ὑπ' ἐμε. 18. και ὁ ἀριθμος των ἀνδρων ἦν ὡς χιλιαδες πεντε. 19. και ἐλάλησεν δυσιν ἐξ αὐτων.

B

1. Therefore no one can have two masters. 2. And you will open our mouths, O Lord, and every tongue will bless your great name.

¹ It will be noticed that the numeral is sometimes written after the noun.

3. Did you not sow good seed in the three fields? 4. Do not carry anyone to the synagogue on the Sabbath. 5. But you can heal the colonel. 6. But I came into this world for¹ a great judgement. 7. And one of the lepers, when he saw that he was being healed, threw himself at his feet. 8. For the chief priests knew that this word was true. 9. And all the disciples were full of faith and of the Holy Spirit, and they healed those who were ill (i.e. the ill), and cast out many demons. 10. None of the priests believes that there is a resurrection. 11. My friends built a great house in this city. 12. My judgement is true; let no one love the darkness. 13. When they came to the six villages they proclaimed the gospel to all the Gentiles who dwelt in them. 14. When the disciples of John heard that he had died on that day, they came and took away his body. 15. But we have only two loaves and five fish. 16. And he went out by night to the house of Judas, one of the twelve. 17. And a hundred men, with their wives, will remain in the great desert forty days and forty nights. 18. The tribune and a thousand men used to dwell in the three cities. 19. No one can follow two masters.

Re-read Introduction: English Grammar, Sections 6B, 8B.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES

The comparative and superlative degrees of comparison of adjectives in -ος are formed by substituting -τερος and -τατος for the final ς:

δικαιος δικαιότερος -α -ον δικαιοτατος -η -ον

¹ εἰς.

When the last syllable but one of an adjective in -os is short, the final o is usually¹ lengthened to ω before the addition of the comparative and superlative endings:

σοφος σοφωτερος σοφωτατος

The superlatives are declined like ἀγαθος, and the comparatives (with α ρ stem) are declined like ἅγιος.

The irregular comparatives (none of which has a common superlative) have been met in Vocabulary 30:

ἀγαθος	good	κρεισσων	better
κακος	bad	χειρων	worse
μεγας	great	μειζων	greater
πολυς	much, many	πλειων	more

To these should be added one very common irregular superlative:

μικρος	small, little	μικροτερος	smaller, less ἐλαχιστος		smallest, least

FORMATION AND COMPARISON OF ADVERBS

Adverbs (in the positive) are formed from adjectives by changing the ν of the genitive plural masculine to ς:

καλος	good	gives	καλως	well ομοιος	like		ομοιως	in like manner, similarly αληθης	true		αληθως	truly
ουτος	this	gives	ουτως	in this manner, thus, so

The comparative and superlative of adverbs are formed by taking the neuter singular of the comparative adjective as the comparative of the adverb and the neuter plural of the superlative adjective as the superlative adverb:²

δικαιως		δικαιοτερον		δικαιοτατα
σοφως		σοφωτερον		σοφωτατα
ευ	well	κρεισσον	better

Also note: μαλλον more μαλιστα most

¹ There are exceptions. Cf. ἀνεκτοτερον in Matt. 11. 24, quoted at the end of this lesson.

² These forms are in fact neuter accusatives used adverbially. Adverbial accusatives are very common in Greek. Cf. μονον, πρωτον (Vocab. 11), and the 'subject' of the infinitive (Lesson 20).

μαλλον (which has no positive) is the word most frequently used for the adverb 'more'. Thus:

παντων υμων μαλλον γλωσσαις λαλω (1 Cor. 14. 18)

I speak with tongues more than you all.

The adjective meaning 'more', as we have already seen, is πλειων. We have an example of the use of the adjective in:

ἀπεστειλεν ἄλλους δουλους πλειονας των πρωτων (Matt. 21. 36)

He sent other slaves more than the first.

The adverb 'more' qualifies its verb, i.e. 'I speak more'. The adjective 'more' qualifies its noun, i.e. 'more slaves'.

The comparative is not much used in the New Testament, and the superlative is used even less. The superlative is generally replaced by the comparative, e.g.

μικροτερον παντων των σπερματων (Mark 4. 31)

Least of all the seeds.

μειζων δε τουτων ἡ ἀγαπη (1 Cor. 13. 13)

And the greatest of these is love.

When the superlative is used it is generally elative:

εἰ οὖν οὐδε ἐλαχιστον δυνασθε (Luke 12. 26)

If then you cannot do even a very little thing.

Although (as noted in Vocab. 30) comparatives are usually followed by a genitive of comparison, ἢ, 'than', is sometimes used. The two things compared are then put in the same case:

γη Σοδομων ἀνεκτοτερον ἔσται ἐν ἡμερᾷ κρισεως ἢ σοι (Matt. 11. 24)

It will be more tolerable on the day of judgement for the land of Sodom than for you.

1. Οὐαι, οὐχι ἡ ψυχη πλειον ἔστιν της τροφης; 2. ὁ μειζων ἐν ὑμιν γενεσθω ὡς ὁ νεωτερος.
3. νυν γαρ ἐγγυτερον ἔστιν ἡ σωτηρια ἡμων ἢ ὅτε ἐπιστευσαμεν. 4. ἀληθως οὗτος ὁ ἄνθρωπος υἱὸς Θεοῦ ἦν. 5. ὁ δὲ μικροτερος ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τῶν οὐρανῶν μείζων αὐτοῦ ἐστίν. 6. νυνὶ δὲ μένει πίστις, ἐλπίς, ἀγάπη. τα τρία ταῦτα· μείζων δὲ τούτων ἡ ἀγάπη. 7. ναι, ἐρχεται ὁ ἰσχυροτερος μου ὀπίσω μου. 8. μείζονα τούτων ὄψῃ. 9. οἱ δὲ μείζον ἐκράζαν Κυριε, ἐλεησον ἡμᾶς. 10. ὁμοίως καὶ πάντες οἱ μαθηταὶ εἶπαν. 11. αἶρει γὰρ τὸ πληρωμα αὐτοῦ ἀπο τοῦ ἱματίου καὶ χειρὸν σχίσμα γίνεται. 12. ἀμὴν λεγὼ ὑμῖν Ὅτε ἐποιήσατε ἐνὶ τούτων τῶν ἀδελφῶν μου τῶν ἐλαχίστων, ἐμοὶ ἐποιήσατε. 13. ἔρει τὸ Ἀμὴν ἐπὶ τῇ σῇ εὐχαριστίᾳ; 14. ὑπακούειν δεῖ Θεῷ μᾶλλον ἢ ἀνθρώποις. 15. λεγὼ ὑμῖν Μείζων ἐν γεννητοῖς γυναικῶν Ἰωάννου οὐδεὶς ἐστίν· ὁ δὲ μικροτερος ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ Θεοῦ μείζων αὐτοῦ ἐστίν. 16. ἐγὼ γὰρ εἰμι ὁ ἐλαχίστος τῶν ἀποστόλων. 17. τὸ μωρον τοῦ Θεοῦ σοφωτερον τῶν ἀνθρώπων ἐστίν καὶ τὸ ἀσθενὲς τοῦ Θεοῦ ἰσχυροτερον τῶν ἀνθρώπων. 18. ὁ Θεὸς, ὅς ἐστιν σωτὴρ πάντων ἀνθρώπων, μάλιστα πιστῶν.

B

1. The younger of the sons did not wish to work for (on behalf of) his father. 2. Woe to you, hypocrite. You go and do similarly. 3. Their enemies were more than they. 4. For he is stronger than all the kings of the earth. 5. Why are you going to Jerusalem? Surely Jesus is not greater than Abraham? 6. Behold, hope and love are greater than faith, especially love. 7. This good man did all things well. 8. We must obey the king rather than¹ the priest. 9. They say that these days are worse than the days of the fathers. 10. Yes, you killed the wisest of men. 11. He that is least (smaller) will become the greatest. 12. But he cried out more, 'Behold, I am suffering at the hands of my enemies'. 13. Truly I perceive that there is a worse darkness than this. 14. We cannot do the least of these things. 15. Truly I say to you, 'Many prophets wished to see these things'. 16. But he answered them more wisely than his father.

¹ Use ἢ, because the genitive of comparison would be ambiguous.

REVISION TESTS 4

Nouns, pronouns, adjectives and adverbs

Allow $1\frac{1}{4}$ hours each for Tests A and B. Total number of marks: 100 for each test.

1. Express in two different ways: This face; the whole face; the face itself; that face; the same face; the other face; his own face. Express in one way: A different face; the faces of one another; they were persuading themselves. [10 marks]
2. Decline (in all genders) in singular and plural: πολυς, πολεις, πλειων, πατηρ, ετος, εγω, πας. (Only repeat the stem where it is necessary.) [14]
3. Decline in the singular: Ἡλειας; and all genders of μηδεις, ος. [3]
4. Give the comparative of: κακος, μεγας, νεος, ευ. [4]
5. Give the superlative of: μικρος, δικαιως, σοφος. [3]
6. Give the nominative singular, genitive singular, article and dative plural of the words meaning: city, colonel, darkness, death, ear, enemy, foot, forgiveness, high-priest, hope, husband, image, joy, judgement (two forms), light, mother, mouth, multitude, nation, need, part, passover, power, price, repentance, resurrection, righteousness, ruler, saviour, scribe, sin, spirit, sun, time (2 words), tomb, tongue, truth, vineyard, will, woman, wonder, year. [44]
7. Give the following numerals: 1 (nominative: all genders), 3 (all forms of nominative, genitive and dative), 5, 7, 40, 1000 (both forms). [4]
8. Give the Greek for: whoever (nominative singular all genders), why?, O woman. [3]
9. Give all genders of the nominative singular of the Greek for: better, blind, dead, evil, few, full, possible, remaining, second, strong, sufficient, true. [6]
10. Give five uses of the dative. [5]

REVISION TESTS 4

11. Give five adjectives which usually stand in the predicative position. [2]

12. Give seven words which have an -ο ending in the neuter accusative singular. [2]

II

1. Express in two different ways: This face; the whole face; the face itself; that face; the same face; the other face; his own face. Express in one way: A different face; the faces of one another; they were persuading themselves. [10 marks]

2. Decline (in all genders) in singular and plural: μεγας, βασιλευς, αληθης, ιχθυς, ου, τις. (Only repeat the stem where it is necessary.) [12]

3. Decline in the singular: Ἰουδας, πυρ; and all genders of εις, οὗτος. [6]

4. Give the comparative of: αγαθος, πολυς, μικρος, δικαιως, σοφως. [5]

5. Give the superlative of: δικαιος, νεος, μαλλον. [3]

6. Give the nominative singular, genitive singular, article and dative plural of the words meaning: age, authority, blood, body, centurion, conscience, cup, daughter, end, father, fish, flesh, grace, hand, judge, kind, king, knowledge, member, mercy, mountain, name, night, peace, priest, revelation, reward, sacrifice, seed, steadfastness, tradition, trouble, vessel, water, witness (abstract, 2 words), word (Third Declension), widow, wind. [39]

7. Give the following numerals: 2 (nominative and dative), 4, 6, 10, 12, 100. [3]

8. Give the Greek for: what?, anyone, a witness, O father, grace (accusative singular). [5]

9. Give all genders of the nominative singular of the Greek for: blessed, clean, eternal, faithless, free, last, like, new, only, poor, right, weak. [6]

10. Give five uses of the accusative and six uses of the genitive. [11]

LESSON 34

Perfect and Pluperfect

Re-read Introduction: English Grammar, Section 12.

As we saw in Lesson 25, a complete knowledge of a verb requires the knowledge of six principal parts. We now come to the fourth and fifth of the principal parts of λυω:

- (1) Present Active λυα
- (2) Future Active λυσω
- (3) Aorist Active έλυσα
- (4) Perfect Active λελυκα
- (5) Perfect Passive λελυμαι
- (6) Aorist Passive ελυθην (This will be dealt with in the next lesson.)

From λελυκα and λελυμαι are derived all parts of the Perfect and Pluperfect.

The full conjugation is as follows:

Active
Perfect Indicative	Pluperfect Indicative	Perfect Infinitive
λελυκα	(ἐ)λελυκειν
λελυκας	(ἐ)λελυкеις
λελυκε(ν)	(ἐ)λελυκει	λελυκεναι
λελυκαμεν	(ἐ)λελυκειμεν
λελυκατε	(ἐ)λελυκειτε
λελυκασι(ν)	(ἐ)λελυκεισαν
Middle and Passive
λελυμαι	(ἐ)λελυμην
λελυσαι	(ἐ)λελυσο
λελυται	(ἐ)λελυτο
λελυμεθα	(ἐ)λελυμεθα	λελυσθαι
λελυσθε	(ἐ)λελυσθε
λελυνται	(ἐ)λελυντο

-εω verbs

As in the Future and First Aorist, φιλε lengthens ε to η in the Perfect, giving:

φιλεω φιλησω ἐφίλησα πεφίληκα πεφίλημαι

NOTES ON THE PERFECT ACTIVE

λε-λυ-κ-α is made up of:

- (1) a reduplication: λε
- (2) the stem: λυ
- (3) κ which is the characteristic of the First Perfect Active.

(There are also Second Perfects, see below.)

(4) a personal ending. These endings are the same as those of the First Aorist, except for the third person plural, which is not -αν, but -ασιν.

Reduplication

Reduplication is the placing in front of the verb of the first consonant of the stem followed by ε:

Present	Perfect
λυω	λελυκα
πιστευω	πεπιστευκα

Verbs beginning with χ, φ, θ reduplicate κεχ-, πεφ-, τεθ-:

φιλεω	πεφίληκα
θεραπευω	τεθεραπευκα

Verbs beginning with σ, ζ or ξ (which tend to make clumsy reduplications) usually¹ simply prefix an ε. When a verb has an initial vowel, this lengthens in the same way as in the formation of the Imperfect. The ε in the one case and the lengthening of vowel in the other are retained in the infinitive:²

ζητεω	ἐζητηκα	ἐζητηκεναι
ἀκολουθεω	ἠκολουθηκα	ἠκολουθηκεναι
αἶτεω	ῆτηκα	ῆτηκεναι

¹ There are exceptions. The Perfect Active of σωζω, for instance, is σεσωκα. (See the quotation from Mark 5. 34 on p. 139.)

² And also in the participle, see p. 150. E.g. ἐζητηκως.

NOTES ON THE PLUPERFECT ACTIVE

(1) The Pluperfect has an augment in addition to the reduplication, hence:

ἐ-λε-λυ-κ-ειν

This form is cumbersome, and in practice the augment is usually dropped.

(2) The personal endings -ειν, -εις, -ει are identical with the endings of -εβην (Lesson 25), except that ει replaces η.

NOTE ON THE MIDDLE AND PASSIVE

These endings are identical with those of δυναμαι (Lesson 20).¹

THE SECOND PERFECT

Some perfects are formed by adding the endings direct to the stem without inserting κ. These are Second (or Strong) Perfects.

e.g. γραφω γεγραφα
 κραζω κεκραγα

Many stems of both First and Second Perfect are irregularly formed. The more important ones are to be found in the list of principal parts on pp. 227 f.

THE MEANING OF THE PERFECT

We have so far met three kinds of Greek tense:

(1) The Future, which is in the full sense a time-tense, referring to future time.

¹ Note on the conjugation of Perfect Passives. The addition of -μαι, -σαι, -ται to certain consonant stems causes modifications to take place. It is not necessary for the student at this stage to learn them. Once the principal parts are known, the forms are usually easy to recognise. The following are given for illustration and reference:

Guttural stem	Labial stem	Dental stem
ἀγω, perf. stem: ἤγ-	γραφω, perf. stem: γεγραφ-	ἀγιαζω, perf. stem: ἡγιασ-
ἤγμαι	γεγραμμαι	ἡγιασμαι
ἤξαι	γεγραψαι	ἡγιασαι
ἤκται	γεγραπται	ἡγιασται
Infinitive: ἡχθαι	Infinitive: γεγραφθαι	Infinitive: ἡγιασθαι

(2) The linear tenses: the Imperfect and (usually) the Present, which are concerned with continuous or repeated action:

———— or

(3) The punctiliar tenses: the two Aorists, which are concerned with an action simply regarded as an event:

With the Perfect we have a fourth kind of tense:

(4) The Perfect represents a present state resulting from a past action, e.g. γεγραπται it stands written.

That is to say, the Scripture, written in the past, bears its witness now, in the present.

This can be represented by:

Or, if the past action was itself of extended duration before completion, by:

————— . —————

This use of the Greek Perfect is not altogether the same as the use of the English Perfect. Usually the English Perfect will accurately translate the Greek Perfect, and the English Past Simple will accurately translate the Greek Aorist, but by no means always. The Greek Aorist is wider in meaning than the English Past Simple, and the Greek Perfect is narrower in meaning than the English Perfect.

Consider the three sentences:

A. Your faith has saved you.

B. Have you not read?

C. He called them.

A speaks of a present state of salvation resulting from an act of faith in the past. It is therefore Perfect in Greek as it is in English:

ἡ πίστις σου σέσωκεν σε. (Mark 5. 34)

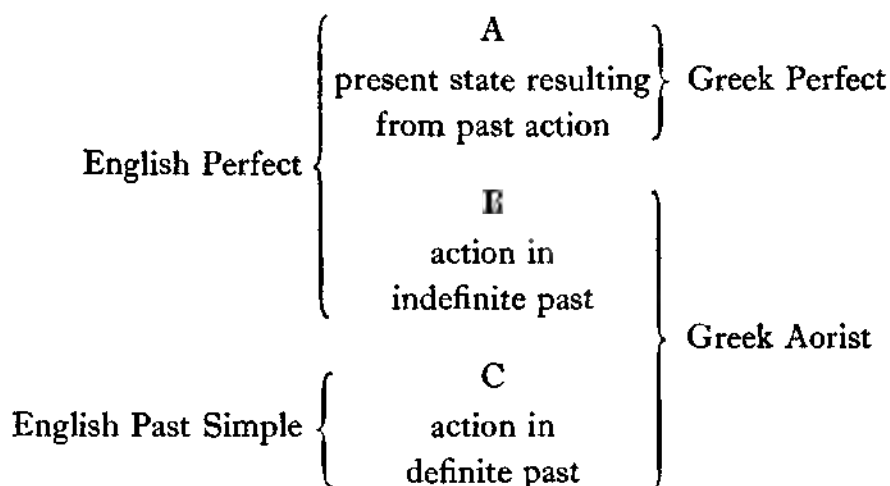

B speaks of an action at some indefinite time in the past, without emphasis on the reader's present state. Though Perfect in English it will be Aorist in Greek:

οὐκ ἀνεγνώτε; (Mark 12. 26)

C speaks of a simple action in past time. It is therefore Past Simple in English and Aorist in Greek:

ἐκάλεσεν αὐτοὺς. (Mark 1. 20)

This overlap of Past Simple, Perfect and Aorist can be represented diagrammatically like this:

This diagram may be further illustrated by three sentences more closely related to one another:

- A. He has killed her.
- B. He has killed a number of women in his time.
- C. He killed her.

There are occasions when even the Greek Perfect has to be translated by the Past Simple. But such a Perfect may still retain its proper force, e.g.

Χριστός ἀπέθανεν καὶ ἐγῆγεῖται τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῇ τρίτῃ (1 Cor. 15. 3, 4)

Christ died (Aorist) and was raised (Perfect) on the third day.

So it must be translated, but ἐγῆγεῖται suggests the further thought: 'and is a risen Saviour still today!'

In every case the idea of the Greek tense must be discovered and then the nearest equivalent English idiom found.

THE MEANING OF THE PLUPERFECT

The meaning of the Pluperfect corresponds precisely to that of the Perfect, except that the action in past time is thought of as also completed in past time, e.g. Λαζαρος ἐβέβλητο προς τον πυλωνα αὐτου (Luke 16. 20)

Lazarus had been put¹ at his gate (and, as a result, lay there).

The action was done in the past, its results lasted some time, but at the time of narration the whole completed action lay in the past.

1. Παιδια, ἐσχατῇ ὥρᾳ ἐστίν, καὶ καθὼς ἤκουσατε ὅτι ἀντιχριστος ἔρχεται, καὶ νυν ἀντιχριστοὶ πολλοὶ γεγonaσιν. 2. εἰ οὖν ἀξίον θανάτου πεπραχά τι. 3. οὐ γεγραπται Ὁ οἶκος μου οἶκος προσευχῆς; 4. καὶ τὸ εὐαγγέλιον ἀπηγγέλλεται ἐν παντὶ τῷ κόσμῳ. 5. ὅτι ἦξαι εἰς ἁμαρτιαν. 6. αἱ δὲ ἀσθενεῖς ἤρκασιν τὰς φωνὰς αὐτῶν. 7. καὶ καινὴ ἀποκαλύψις δεδεκται ὑπὸ παντῶν ἡμῶν. 8. τὰ γὰρ ἔθνη ἀναβεβηκεν εἰς τὰ Ἱεροσόλυμα. 9. ὅλος δὲ ὁ λαὸς οὗτος ἐγνωσται ὑπὸ τοῦ Θεοῦ ἀπ' ἀρχῆς. 10. ὁ Χριστὸς συν πασὶν τοῖς μελεσὶν τοῦ σώματος αὐτοῦ ἐγγηγεῖται ἐκ νεκρῶν. 11. οἱ δὲ τεσσαρεσ γράμματαις εὗρηκασιν πάντα τὰ μεγάλα σκευῆ. 12. ἡ ἀγαπητὴ θυγατὴρ μου τεθνηκεν. τῇ τρίτῃ ὥρᾳ τῆς νυκτὸς ἀπέθανεν. 13. ἄχρι τοῦ ὅρους ἐφ' ᾧ αὐτῶν ἡ πόλις ᾧκοδομητο. 14. εἰ ἐγνωκεῖτε τὸ ῥῆμα ὃ γεγραπται, Ἐλεος θέλω καὶ οὐ θυσιαν. 15. αὐτοὶ μὲν ἀπηγγείλαν τὴν παρουσίαν μου, ὑμεῖς δὲ οὐκ ἤκουσατε. 16. τὰ δὲ ὦτα μου ἀνεψκται τῷ ῥήματι αὐτοῦ. 17. Μαρία, παρ' ἧς ἐκβεβλήκει ἑπτὰ δαιμονία. 18. καὶ ἦσαν ἄνθρωποι οἵτινες φόνον πεποιήκεισαν. 19. ὁ ἄνθρωπος ἐφ' ὃν γέγονε τὸ σημεῖον τοῦτο. 20. ὁ Κύριος εἰς ὃν πεπιστευκεῖσαν.² 21. ὁ Ἰωάννης ὁ βαπτιστῆς

κεκραγεν ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ. 22. περὶ δὲ τῶν νεκρῶν ὅτι ἐγείρονται, οὐκ ἀνεγνώτε ἐν τῷ βιβλίῳ Μωϋσεως πῶς εἶπεν αὐτῷ ὁ Θεός...; 23. περὶ δὲ τῆς ἡμέρας ἐκείνης οὐδεὶς οἶδεν. 24. ὅτι ᾔδεισαν τὸν Χριστὸν αὐτὸν εἶναι. 25. θέλω δὲ ὑμᾶς εἶδεναι ὅτι παντὸς ἀνδρὸς ἡ κεφαλὴ ὁ Χριστὸς ἐστίν. 26. καὶ γινεται κατακεῖσθαι αὐτὸν ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ αὐτοῦ, καὶ πολλοὶ τελῶναι καὶ ἁμαρτωλοὶ συνανεκείντο τῷ Ἰησοῦ. 27. ἀνεκείτο δὲ μετὰ τῶν δώδεκα μαθητῶν. 28. καὶ συναγεται πρὸς αὐτὸν ὄχλος πλεῖστος, ὥστε αὐτὸν καθῆσθαι ἐν πλοίῳ ἐν τῇ θαλάσῃ. 29. καὶ ἐκάθητο ὁ Πέτρος μεσσοῖ αὐτῶν. 30. ᾔδεισαν γὰρ ἅπαντες ὅτι Ἕλλην ὁ πατὴρ αὐτοῦ ὑπῆρχεν. 31. οἶδασιν γὰρ ὅτι τεθνήκεν. 32. ὁ δὲ Θεὸς λελαλήκεν ταῦτα τὰ ῥήματα εἰς τὸ εἶδεναι ὑμᾶς τίς ἐστίν ἡ ἐλπίς τῆς κλησεως αὐτοῦ. 33. ἀπολελυσθαι ἐδύνατο ὁ ἄνθρωπος οὗτος εἰ μὴ ἐπέκεκλητο Καίσαρα. 34. οὐδεὶς ἐδύνατο αὐτὸν δησαι, διὰ τὸ αὐτὸν πολλακὶς δεδεσθαι.² 35. πτωχὸς δὲ τις ὀνόματι Λαζαροῦ ἐβεβλήτο πρὸς τὸν πυλῶνα αὐτοῦ. 36. ἴδετε τὸν τόπον ὅπου ἐκείτο τὸ σῶμα.

1. He has not injured you or your friends. 2. Jude, you must proclaim the things which you have heard. 3. The slaves of the ruler have done the work. 4. And he answered, 'What I have written, I have written'. 5. But because I have become king I will walk in the ways of my fathers. 6. The poor and the blind have been thrown into prison. 7. O Lord, in Thee have we trusted. 8. For I reckon that he has done³ nothing worthy of death. 9. But the Son of Man departs as it is written of him. 10. For we have announced his second coming. 11. The king of glory has been lifted up. 12. But he has thrown the books into the river. 13. And I have known your evil ways. 14. And God raised Jesus on the third day. 15. I have kept the faith. 16. We know⁴ that you are true. 17. For he knew the sign that he was about to do. 18. The whole world lies in the Evil One. 19. But Peter was sitting outside. 20. They heard that he had done³ this wonder.

¹ An alternative to ἐν μεσσοῖ.² Note the slightly irregular form of δεδεσθαι.³ Use Perfect Infinitive.⁴ Use οἶδα in this and the next sentence.

LESSON 35

The Aorist and Future Passives

As we saw in the last lesson, the sixth of the principal parts is the Aorist Passive. There are again both First and Second Aorists in the Passive, as in the Active. From the Aorist Passive can usually be derived corresponding Future Passive tenses.

THE AORIST PASSIVES

The First Aorist Indicative Passive is made up of:

augment + verbal stem + θ + the endings of $-\epsilon\beta\eta\nu$ (Lesson 25).

The Second Aorist Indicative Passive is made up of:

augment + Second Aorist Passive stem + endings of $-\epsilon\beta\eta\nu$.

(The θ , which is characteristic of the First Aorist and First Future Passives, is not found in the Second Aorist and Second Future.)

So we get:

First Aorist Passive		Second Aorist Passive Indicative
ἐλυθην	I was loosed	ἐγραφην	I was written ἐλυθης		ἐγραφης
ἐλυθη		ἐγραφη
ἐλυθημεν		ἐγραφημεν
ἐλυθητε		ἐγραφητε
ἐλυθησαν		ἐγραφησαν

The Imperative and Infinitive are:

Imperative
λυθητι	be loosed	σπαρηθι ¹	be sown
λυθητω		σπαρητω
λυθητε		σπαρητε
λυθητωσαν		σπαρητωσαν
Infinitive
λυθηναι	to be loosed	γραφηναι	to be written

¹ σπειρω has been chosen for this conjugation, because γραφω is slightly irregular

Notice that, apart from the θ in the First Aorist, the forms of the endings of the two Aorists differ only in the second person singular Imperative.

THE FUTURE PASSIVES

There are two corresponding Future Passives.

The First Future is made up of:

verb stem + $\theta\eta\sigma$ + the endings of the Present Passive of $\lambda\upsilon\omega$.

The Second Future is made up of:

the Second Aorist Passive stem + $\eta\sigma$ + the endings of the Present Passive of $\lambda\upsilon\omega$.

So we get:

First Future Passive		Second Future Passive
$\lambda\upsilon\theta\eta\sigma\omicron\mu\alpha\iota$	I shall be loosed	$\gamma\rho\alpha\phi\eta\sigma\omicron\mu\alpha\iota$	I shall be written
$\lambda\upsilon\theta\eta\sigma\eta$		$\gamma\rho\alpha\phi\eta\sigma\eta$
$\lambda\upsilon\theta\eta\sigma\epsilon\tau\alpha\iota$		$\gamma\rho\alpha\phi\eta\sigma\epsilon\tau\alpha\iota$
$\lambda\upsilon\theta\eta\sigma\omicron\mu\epsilon\theta\alpha$		$\gamma\rho\alpha\phi\eta\sigma\omicron\mu\epsilon\theta\alpha$
$\lambda\upsilon\theta\eta\sigma\epsilon\sigma\theta\epsilon$		$\gamma\rho\alpha\phi\eta\sigma\epsilon\sigma\theta\epsilon$
$\lambda\upsilon\theta\eta\sigma\omicron\nu\tau\alpha\iota$		$\gamma\rho\alpha\phi\eta\sigma\omicron\nu\tau\alpha\iota$

In contracted verbs the short vowel is lengthened before θ , giving for $\phi\iota\lambda\epsilon\omega$:

$\acute{\epsilon}\phi\iota\lambda\eta\theta\eta\nu$ $\phi\iota\lambda\eta\theta\eta\sigma\omicron\mu\alpha\iota$.

We now have the full principal parts of $\lambda\upsilon\omega$, $\phi\iota\lambda\epsilon\omega$ and $\gamma\rho\alpha\phi\omega$:

$\lambda\upsilon\omega$	$\lambda\upsilon\sigma\omega$	$\acute{\epsilon}\lambda\upsilon\sigma\alpha$	$\lambda\epsilon\lambda\upsilon\kappa\alpha$	$\lambda\epsilon\lambda\upsilon\mu\alpha\iota$	$\acute{\epsilon}\lambda\upsilon\theta\eta\nu$
$\phi\iota\lambda\epsilon\omega$	$\phi\iota\lambda\eta\sigma\omega$	$\acute{\epsilon}\phi\iota\lambda\eta\sigma\alpha$	$\pi\epsilon\phi\iota\lambda\eta\kappa\alpha$	$\pi\epsilon\phi\iota\lambda\eta\mu\alpha\iota$	$\acute{\epsilon}\phi\iota\lambda\eta\theta\eta\nu$
$\gamma\rho\alpha\phi\omega$	$\gamma\rho\alpha\psi\omega$	$\acute{\epsilon}\gamma\rho\alpha\psi\alpha$	$\gamma\epsilon\gamma\rho\alpha\phi\alpha$	$\gamma\epsilon\gamma\rho\alpha\mu\mu\alpha\iota$	$\acute{\epsilon}\gamma\rho\alpha\phi\eta\nu$

MUTE STEMS

In the Future and the First Aorist the placing of the letter θ immediately after the stem again causes certain consonantal changes when the stem ends in a mute (cf. Lesson 21).

κ ,	γ ,	$\chi + \theta \rightarrow \chi\theta$
π ,	β ,	$\phi + \theta \rightarrow \phi\theta$
τ ,	δ ,	$\theta + \theta \rightarrow \sigma\theta$

Examples:

Verbal Stem	First Aorist
	Present	Passive	Future Passive
ἀγ	ἄγω	ἤχθην	ἄχθησομαι
πραγ	πρασσω	ἐπραχθην	πραχθησομαι
πεμπ	πεμπω	ἐπεμψθην	πεμψθησομαι
βαπτιδ	βαπτίζω	ἐβαπτισθην	βαπτισθησομαι
πειθ	πειθω	ἐπεισθην	πεισθησομαι

IRREGULAR FORMS

The following important verbs have irregular First Aorist forms:

ἀκουω	ἤκουσθην	σωζω	ἔσωθην
βαλλω	ἐβληθην	λεγω	{ ἐρρηθην
ἐγειρω	ἤγερθην		{ ἐρρεθην
καλεω	ἐκληθην	ὄραω	ὠφθην
λαμβάνω	ἐλημψθην	φέρω	ἤνεχθην

The Aorist Passives given for λεγω, ὄραω and φέρω are really from different verbs, as explained in Lesson 25.

The following verbs which we have already met have Second Aorist Passives:

γραφω	ἐγραφην	ἀποστελλω	ἀπεσταλην
σπειρω	ἐσπαρην	κρυπτω	ἐκρυβην

To these should be added:

στρεφω	ἐστραφην	I turn
φαινω	ἐφανην	I shine; pass. appear

These irregular Aorists have corresponding Future forms, e.g. First Futures: ἀκουσθησομαι, βληθησομαι;

Second Futures: στραφησομαι, φανησομαι.

With the exception of κρυπτω, στρεφω and φαινω, all the above irregular First and Second Aorists belong to verbs whose complete principal parts have to be learnt. ἐκρυβην, ἐστραφην and ἐφανην should therefore be specially noted at this point.

LESSON 36

Participles

Re-read Introduction: English Grammar, Sections 15, 16, 18, 19.

THE NATURE OF PARTICIPLES

Being verbal adjectives, participles share the characteristics of both verbs and adjectives.

As a verb a participle has tense and voice and may have an object.

As an adjective it agrees with a noun or pronoun which it qualifies in number, gender and case.

THE FORM OF PARTICIPLES

Participles may be divided into two groups:

I. Those with First and Third Declension endings (cf. Lesson 32).

II. Those with First and Second Declension endings.

The latter cause no difficulty; they are all alike and are declined like ἀγαθος.

The former are of four types, according to their endings:

I. Participles with First and Third Declension endings

	Masculine	Feminine	Neuter
Type 1	-ων	-ουσα	-ον
Type 2	-ας	-ασα	-αν
Type 3	-εις	-εισα	-ειν
Type 4	-ως	-υια	-ος

Type 1: -ων -ουσα -ον

This covers: (a) the Present Active of verbs like λυω; (b) the Present Active of verbs like φιλεω; and two other tenses of similar form: (c) the Second Aorist Active (e.g. of βαλλω); (d) the Present of εἰμι.

(a) Present Participle Active of λυω: loosing

λυων	λυουσα	λυον	λυοντες	λυουσαι	λυοντα
λυοντα	λυουσαν	λυον	λυοντας	λυουσας	λυοντα
λυοντος	λυουσης	λυοντος	λυοντων	λυουσων	λυοντων
λυοντι	λυουση	λυοντι	λυουσι(ν)	λυουσαις	λυουσι(ν)

When λυων λουσα λυον has been learnt, the rest of the declension follows automatically. It is only necessary to remember (i) that the feminine, since it has a stem ending in σ, is declined like δοξα; (ii) that the rules of Lesson 28 are to be followed in the formation of the dative plurals:

Type 1 οντ + σιν → ουσιν

Type 2 αντ + σιν → ασιν

Type 3 $\epsilon\upsilon\tau + \sigma\iota\nu \rightarrow \epsilon\iota\sigma\iota\nu$ Type 4 $\tau + \sigma\omega \rightarrow \sigma\omega$ (b) Present Participle Active of φιλεω: loving

With -εω verbs the rules of contraction are strictly applied (i.e. $\epsilon + o \rightarrow \omicron\nu$; ϵ before a long vowel or diphthong drops out):

φιλων φιλουσα φιλουν
 φιλουντα, etc.

The other tenses which have the same endings as λυων are:

(c) Second Aorist Active βαλων βαλουσα βαλον having thrown(d) Present of είμι ὦν οὔσα ὄν being

Type 2: -ας -ασα -αν

First Aorist Participle Active of λυω: having loosed

λυσας	λυσασα	λυσαν	λυσαντες	λυσασαι	λυσαντα
λυσαντα	λυσασαν	λυσαν	λυσαντας	λυσασας	λυσαντα
λυσαντος	λυσασης	λυσαντος	λυσαντων	λυσασων	λυσαντων
λυσαντι	λυσαση	λυσαντι	λυσασι(ν)	λυσασαις	λυσασι(ν)

These endings are the same as those of πας πασα παν.

Type 3: -εις -εισα -εν

This covers two tenses: (a) the First Aorist Passive of verbs like λυω; and (b) the closely related Second Aorist Passive (e.g. of γραφω):

(a) First Aorist Participle Passive of λυω: having been loosed

λυθεις	λυθεισα	λυθεν	λυθεντες	λυθεισαι	λυθεντα
λυθεντα	λυθεισαν	λυθεν	λυθεντας	λυθειςας	λυθεντα
λυθεντος	λυθεισης	λυθεντος	λυθεντων	λυθεισων	λυθεντων
λυθεντι	λυθειση	λυθεντι	λυθεισι(ν)	λυθειςαις	λυθεισι(ν)

(b) Second Aorist Participle Passive of γραφω: having been written

γραφεις γραφεισα γραφεν

Type 4: -ως -υια -ος

Perfect Participle Active of λυω: having loosed

λελυκως	λελυκυια	λελυκος
λελυκοτα	λελυκυιαν	λελυκος
λελυκοτος	λελυκυιας	λελυκοτος
λελυκοτι	λελυκυια	λελυκοτι
λελυκοτες	λελυκυιαι	λελυκοτα
λελυκοτας	λελυκυιας	λελυκοτα
λελυκοτων	λελυκυιων	λελυκοτων
λελυκοσι(ν)	λελυκυiais	λελυκοσι(ν)

(Note that the feminine, since it has a stem ending in -ι, is declined like ἡμερα.)

II. Participles with First and Second Declension endings.

There are seven tenses in this group, and all have the endings:

-μενος -μενη -μενον

There are five tenses of verbs like λυω: (a) Present Middle and Passive; (b) First Aorist Middle; (c) Perfect Middle and Passive. In addition, there belong to this group: (d) the Second Aorist Middle (e.g. of γινομαι); and (e) the participle of δυναμαι. They are all declined like ἀγαθος.

(a) Present Participle Middle and Passive of λυω: loosing, being loosed

λυομενος	λυομενη	λυομενον	λυομενοι	λυομεναι	λυομενα
λυομενον	λυομενην	λυομενον	λυομενους	λυομενας	λυομενα
λυομενου	λυομενης	λυομενου	λυομενων	λυομενων	λυομενων
λυομενω	λυομενη	λυομενω	λυομενοis	λυομενais	λυομενοis

(b) First Aorist Middle:

λυσαμενος -η -ον having loosed

(c) Perfect Middle and Passive:

λελυμενος -η -ον having loosed, having been loosed

(d) Second Aorist Middle:

γενομενος -η -ον having become

(e) δυναμαι:

δυναμενος -η -ον being able

All this at first sight seems rather complicated, but in fact the relation between the indicative tenses and the participles is very close. It will be helpful at this stage to study the λυω table on pp. 232 f. Notice the close relation between the principal parts and the corresponding participles:

Principal parts: λυω ἔλυσα (ἔλυσάμην) λελυκα λελυμαι ἔλυθην

Participles: λυων λυσας (λυσάμενος) λελυκως λελυμενος λυθεις

THE USE OF PARTICIPLES

The meanings of the various participles given above are the nearest general English equivalents. Sometimes they will give a perfectly satisfactory translation, but usually some other English idiom is more appropriate.

There are two uses: the adjectival participle and the adverbial participle.

(1) The adjectival participle. In this use the adjectival side of the participle is most prominent. The adjectival participle is generally preceded by an article (with which it agrees). This so-called articular participle is occasionally used in English in expressions like 'the living', 'the missing'. In the New Testament it is very common. The examples below mean literally 'the believing (ones)', 'the sowing (man)', 'the having-been-sown-by-the-wayside (man)'. The articular participle will usually be best translated by a clause introduced by a relative pronoun, but it may sometimes be translated by a noun:

οἱ πιστευοντες those who believe, the believers.

οὗτος ἐστιν ὁ παρα την ὁδον σπαρεις (Matt. 13. 19)

This is he that was sown by the wayside.

Notice that any number of qualifying words may be inserted between the article and the participle.

(2) The adverbial participle. In this use the verbal side of the participle is most prominent. The adverbial participle is not preceded by the article. When a participle is used adverbially it is equivalent to an adverbial clause modifying some other verb in the sentence. Such participles are best translated into English by a suitable adverbial clause. The context must decide what kind of adverbial clause the participle in question is equivalent to. Commonest are:

(a) Temporal clauses.

- (1) καὶ ἐξελθὼν εἶδεν πολλὸν ὄχλον (Matt. 14. 14)

And when he came (or, had come) out, he saw a great crowd.

- (2) καὶ ἀκούσαντες οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι τὰς παραβολὰς αὐτοῦ ἐγνώσαν ὅτι περὶ αὐτῶν λέγει (Matt. 21. 45)

And when the chief priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they knew that he was speaking about them.

(b) Causal clauses.

- (1) καὶ πάντες ἐφοβούντο αὐτόν, μὴ πιστεύοντες ὅτι ἐστὶν μαθητὴς (Acts 9. 26)

And they were all afraid of him, because they did not believe that he was a disciple.

- (2) ἡ δὲ εὐσεβεία πρὸς πάντα ὠφέλιμος ἐστίν, ἐπαγγελίαν ἔχουσα ζωῆς τῆς νῦν καὶ τῆς μελλούσης (1 Tim. 4. 6)

But godliness is profitable for everything, because it has a promise for the life that is now, as well as for that which is to come.

Examples of concessive clauses will be found in Exercise 37 B 7, 11; a conditional clause in 38 A 21.

In some cases however it is better to translate the Greek participle by an English participle:

ἐν δὲ ταῖς ἡμέραις ἐκείναις παραγίνεται Ἰωάννης ὁ Βαπτιστὴς κηρύσσων ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ τῆς Ἰουδαίας, λέγων, Μετανοεῖτε (Matt. 3. 1)

And in those days appears John the Baptist proclaiming in the desert of Judea, saying, 'Repent'.

The translation which sounds best in English must be chosen.

The meaning of the tense in participles

Generally speaking, the Present Participle denotes action taking place at the same time as the action of the main verb, and the Aorist Participle denotes action which took place before the action of the main verb. See the examples already quoted: (a) (1) (2) are Aorist; (b) (1) (2) are Present.

The Aorist Participle is however sometimes used to describe attendant circumstances, i.e. an action taking place at the same time as the action of the main verb, notably in the common expression:

ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν he answered and said.

The distinction between Aorist and Perfect is the same in the case of participles as in the case of the Indicative. The Aorist speaks simply of an event in the past, the Perfect of an event in the past the results of which are still felt in the present. A good example of the latter is:

εὗρεν τὸ παιδίον βεβλημένον ἐπὶ τὴν κλινὴν καὶ τὸ δαιμόνιον ἐξελθὺς (Mark 7. 30)

She found the child lying in bed, and the demon gone.

The negative with participles

As will have been observed in Sentence (b) (1) above, participles (like Imperatives and Infinitives) are negated with μη.

LESSON 37

The genitive absolute

Periphrastic tenses

THE GENITIVE ABSOLUTE

Sometimes a participle and noun or pronoun are both put in the genitive.
 Consider the sentences:

και πορευομενων αυτων εν τη οδω ειπεν τις προς αυτον (Luke 9. 57)

And as they were going in the way, a certain man said to him.

και εκβληθεντος του δαιμονιου ελαλησεν ο κωφος (Matt. 9. 33)

And when the demon had been cast out, the dumb man spoke.

It will be noticed that in each case the noun that goes with the participle is neither subject, object nor indirect object of the main verb. The clause containing the participle is 'loosed off' from the rest of the sentence, and the construction is called the genitive absolute. (Absolutus is Latin for 'loosed'.) In English we have a nominative absolute, e.g. 'This done, he went home'.

This genitive use of the participle is not suitable when the noun that goes with the participle is also the subject, object or indirect object of the main verb, since the participle should then itself take the case (nominative, accusative or dative) of the word with which it agrees,

e.g. Subject εξελθων ειδεν

When he had come out, he saw.

Object τον Πετρον εξερχομενον ειδεν ο Ιησους

As Peter came out, Jesus saw him.

Indirect Object τω Πετρω εξερχομενω ειπεν ο Ιησους

As Peter came out, Jesus said to him.

This rule is generally adhered to in the New Testament, but by no means strictly, as may be seen in the following example, where a genitive is (by classical standards) 'incorrectly' used:

ἐκπορευομένου αὐτοῦ ἐκ τοῦ ἱεροῦ λέγει αὐτῷ εἰς τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ (Mark 13. 1)

As he was going out of the temple, one of his disciples says to him.

PERIPHRASTIC TENSES

In Greek, tenses are sometimes formed, as in English, by using a part of the verb 'to be' together with a participle. They are called 'periphrastic tenses' because they show forth (φραζω) their meaning in a roundabout (περι) way.

The common periphrastic tenses are:

The Periphrastic Imperfect, formed of the Imperfect of εἶμι and the Present Participle:

καὶ ἦν προαγων αὐτοὺς ὁ Ἰησοῦς (Mark 10. 32)

And Jesus was going ahead of them.

The Periphrastic Future, formed of the Future of εἶμι and the Present Participle:

ἀπο τοῦ νῦν ἀνθρώπους ἔσῃ ζωγῶν (Luke 5. 10)

From now on you will catch men.

The periphrastic form of the tense (at least in the Imperfect and Future) tends to emphasise the continuity of the action. Thus ἦσαν οἱ μαθηταὶ Ἰωάννου καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι νηστεύοντες (Mark 2. 18) means probably that the disciples of John and the Pharisees were fasting at the time in question, not that they used to fast from time to time.

This distinction, however, should not be over-pressed, as the unusual frequency of periphrastic tenses in the New Testament may be due to the influence of an Aramaic idiom in which the ordinary Imperfect is expressed periphrastically. In the Perfect and Pluperfect there is in any case little difference in meaning between the periphrastic and the ordinary forms of the tense.

The Periphrastic Perfect is formed of the Present of εἶμι and the Perfect Participle:

χαριτι ἐστε σεσωσμενοι (Eph. 2. 5)

By grace you have been saved.

The Periphrastic Pluperfect is formed of the Imperfect of εἶμι and the Perfect Participle:

καὶ ἦν ὁ Ἰωαννης ἐνδεδυμενος τριχας καμηλου (Mark i. 6)

And John was clothed with camel's hair.

1. Ἐτι δε λαλουντος του Πετρου τα ῥήματα ταυτα, ἐπεσεν το πνευμα το ἅγιον ἐπὶ παντας τους ἀκουοντας τον λογον. 2. ἐγγυς δε οὐσης Λυδδας τη Ἰοπη, οἱ μαθηται ἀκουσαντες ὅτι Πετρος ἐστιν ἐκει, ἀπεστειλαν δυο ἀνδρας προς αὐτον. 3. οὗτος ἐστιν ὁ τον λογον ἀκουων, καὶ εὐθὺς μετα χαρας λαμβανων αὐτον. 4. ἀλλα λημψεσθε δυναμιν σημερον, ἐλθοντος του ἁγίου πνευματος ἐφ' ὑμας. 5. τοτε ὀφονται τον Υἱον του ἀνθρωπου ἐρχομενον ἐπὶ των νεφελων του οὐρανου. 6. καὶ ἀπηλθεν κηρυσσων παντοτε ὅσα ἐποίησεν αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησους. 7. εὐθεως εἶδεν ὁ Ἰησους πνευμα Θεου καταβαινον ὡς περιστεραν ἐπ' αὐτον. 8. καὶ θαυμασαντες ἐπὶ τη ἀποκρισει αὐτου οὐκετι οὐδεν εἶπον. 9. τοτε προσηλθεν αὐτῷ γυνη τις αἰτουσα τι παρ' αὐτου, ὁ δε εἶπεν αὐτῇ Τί νυν θελεις; 10. καὶ παν το πλῆθος ἦν του λαου προσευχομενον ἐξω. 11. καὶ ἤδη ἦν ὅλη ἡ πολις ἐπισυνηγμενη προς την θυραν. 12. ἡ νυν Ἱερουσαλημ ἐσται πατουμενη παλιν ὑπο των ἐθνων. 13. οὐ γαρ ἐστιν ἐν γωνίᾳ πεπραγμενον τουτο. 14. καὶ ἦσαν οἱ μαθηται Ἰωανου νηστευοντες. 15. ἦν γαρ διδασκων αὐτους ὡς ἐξουσιαν ἔχων καὶ οὐχ ὡς οἱ γραμματεῖς αὐτων. 16. ἰδε νυν οὐδεν ἄξιον θανατου ἐστιν πεπραγμενον ὑπ' αὐτου. 17. γενομενης δε ἡμερας ἐξελθων ἐπορευθη εἰς ἐρημον τοπον. 18. ὑπαγε εἰς τον οἶκον σου προς τους σους, καὶ ἀπαγγειλον αὐτοις ὅσα ὁ Κυριος σοι πεποίηκεν. 19. νυν κρισις ἐστιν του κοσμου τουτου. 20. ὅπου γαρ ἐστιν ὁ θησαυρος σου ἐκει παντοτε ἐσται καὶ ἡ καρδια σου. 21. ἐν ποίᾳ δυναμει ἢ ἐν ποίῳ ὀνοματι ἐποιησατε τουτο ὑμεῖς;

22. πως εισηλθες ὥδε μη ἔχων ἐνδυμα γαμου; 23. που ἡ πιστις ὑμῶν; 24. και ὁψίας γενομένης ἦν το πλοιον ἐν μεσῷ της θαλασσης, και αὐτος μονος ἐπὶ της γης. 25. ὁ δε ἐξέλθων ἤρξατο κηρυσσειν παλιν ταυτα, ὥστε μηκετι τον Ἰησουν δυνασθαι φανερωσ εἰς την πολιν εἰσελθειν. 26. συ τετηρηκας τον καλον οἶνον ἕως ἄρτι. 27. λεγω δε ὑμιν ὅτι Ἡλειας ἤδη ἦλθεν. 28. τοτε τῷ πρωτῷ εὐθεως εἶπεν, Σημερον ἐργαζου ἐν τῷ ἀμπελωνι. 29. και τοιαυταις παραβολαις πολλαις ἐλάλει αὐτοῖς τον λογον. 30. και πληθος πολυ, ἀκουοντες ὅσα ποιει, οὐκετι ἦλθον προς αὐτον. 31. νυνι δε ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησου ὑμεῖς ἐγεννηθητε ἐγγυς ἐν τῷ αἵματι του Χριστου. 32. ἐν οἷδα ὅτι τυφλος ὢν ἄρτι βλεπω. 33. γενομένης δε θλιψεως δια τον λογον εὐθὺς σκανδαλιζονται. 34. ὅσοι γαρ εἰς Χριστον ἐβαπτισθητε, Χριστον ἐνεδυσασθε.

The clauses marked * should be translated by a Genitive Absolute.

1. And when the disciples had entered into the boat* Jesus sent the multitudes into the mountains. 2. And a certain man came to him and said, 'What are you doing here?' 3. What power shall we receive when the Holy Spirit has come upon us?* 4. When the day has drawn near* the Son of man will come with the clouds of heaven. 5. But Peter came to him walking upon the water. 6. But when the messengers had gone away* the disciples talked to Jesus privately. 7. But although he sent his own son to them* they were not willing to receive him. 8. And while he was holding my hand* I received power to walk. 9. And while they were drawing near to the city* the whole multitude was rejoicing saying, 'Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord'. 10. And now, O Father, glorify me. 11. How can you, being evil, still speak good things? 12. By what authority are you still doing these things? 13. The great tribulation is near. 14. They say to him, 'Where, Lord?' But we shall say to him, 'How, Lord?' 15. Here in Jerusalem is the place where it is necessary to worship. 16. How then does he now see? 17. He who does not believe has been judged already. 18. But who is this of whom I hear such things?

In the following sentences use periphrastic forms:

19. The centurions were eating and drinking. 20. This thing has been done before many witnesses. 21. Here you will always be walking in the way of righteousness. 22. Then all the crowd was gathered together to the sea.

LESSON 38

The Subjunctive mood

THE FORMS OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE

The Subjunctive is much used in Greek and its forms are very simple. There are three points to note:

- (1) There is never an augment.
- (2) The stem is always the same as in the corresponding tense of the Indicative.
- (3) The endings are the same as those of the Present Indicative of λυω except that initial syllables are lengthened where possible and their iotas written subscript.

Thus the Present Subjunctive Active is:

λυω λυης λυη λυωμεν λυητε
λυωσι(ν)

And the following tenses all have these same endings:

First Aorist Active:	λυσω
Second Aorist Active:	βαλω
First Aorist Passive:	λυθω
Second Aorist Passive:	γραφω
Subjunctive of εἰμι :	ᾶ
Subjunctive of οἶδα :	εἶδω.

The Present Subjunctive Middle and Passive is:

λυωμαι
 λυη λυηται λυωμεθα λυησθε λυωνται

And the following tenses have the same endings:

First Aorist Middle: λυσωμαι
 Second Aorist Middle: γενωμαι

-εω Verbs

Since all Subjunctive endings have a long vowel, the ε of -εω verbs will always drop out, and the forms will be the same as those of λυω.

THE USE OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE

Reference may be made here to Introduction: English Grammar, Section 14 (4), but it needs to be noted that the use of the Greek Subjunctive is much wider than that of the English Subjunctive. It is therefore better not to learn any one form of words as an equivalent of the Subjunctive.

In general it may be said that the Subjunctive is the mood of doubtful assertion. In nearly all its uses there is some element of indefiniteness in the sentence.

There are eight main uses.

(1) Indefinite clauses.

(a) Whoever, whatever. The Subjunctive is used in clauses introduced by a relative pronoun (e.g. ὅς or ὅστις) which does not refer to a definite person or thing. In these clauses the particle ἄν is placed after the relative pronoun. ἄν is usually untranslatable, but it is introduced to add an element of indefiniteness to the clause:

καὶ ὅς ἂν θελήῃ ἐν ὑμῖν εἶναι πρῶτος, ἔσται ὑμῶν δούλος (Matt. 20. 27)

And whoever wishes to be first among you will be your slave.

(b) Wherever, whenever. The Subjunctive is used in clauses introduced by όπου αν or όταν (ότε+αν) which do not refer to a definite place or time:

ακολουθησω σοι όπου εαν¹ απερχη (Luke 9. 57)

I will follow you wherever you go.

και όταν προσευχησθε, ονκ εσεσθε ως οι υποκριται (Matt. 6. 5)

And when you pray, you are not to be like the hypocrites.

(In this sentence 'when you pray' does not refer to a single specific, definite act of prayer. The action is conditional and repeated. Hence όταν is to be preferred to ότε, although the English idiom only requires the translation 'when'.)

(c) Until (indefinite). The Subjunctive is used in clauses introduced by έως or έως αν which do not refer to a definite time.

όπου εαν¹ εισελθητε εις οικιαν, εκει μενετε έως αν εξελθητε (Mark 6. 10)

Wherever you go into a house, there stay until you go out.

πορευεται επι το απολωλος έως ευρη αυτο (Luke 15. 4)

He goes after that which is lost, until he finds it.

An indefinite έως is frequently followed by αν or ου (genitive of the relative pronoun) and sometimes by ότου (the irregular genitive of όστις). Examples can be seen in Exercise 38 A 10, 43 A 20, 40 A 10. The addition of αν, ου or ότου makes no difference to the sense. In the case of ου and ότου the word χρονου is understood.

Such clauses are usually indefinite because they refer to something future and unfulfilled. If the clause refers to something which has actually happened in the past, it will be in the Indicative:

όπου αν εισεπορευετο (Mark 6. 56)

Wherever he entered.

ονκ εγνωσαν έως ηλθεν ο κατακλυσμος (Matt. 24. 39)

They did not know until the flood came.

(2) Purpose (or final) clauses. Purpose clauses are introduced by ινα or όπως, both of which mean 'in order that' or 'that'. The Sub-

¹ εαν here is equivalent to αν. See also Exercise 38A5,12. The commoner use of εαν will be dealt with in the next lesson.

junctive (like the imperative, infinitive and participle) is negated with μη, so that ἵνα μη and ὅπως μη mean 'in order that not' or 'lest'.¹

ἦλθεν ἵνα μαρτυρήσῃ περὶ τοῦ φωτός (John 1. 7)

He came $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{that he might} \\ \text{in order to} \\ \text{to} \end{array} \right\}$ bear witness to the light.

ὅπως καὶ γὰρ ἐλθὼν προσκυνήσω αὐτῷ (Matt. 2. 8)

That I also may come and worship him.

μη κρίνετε, ἵνα μη κριθήτε (Matt. 7. 1)

Do not judge, lest you be judged.

The Aorist is generally used unless there is reason to stress the continuity or repetition of the action, when the Present will be used.

(3) Noun clauses introduced by ἵνα. A noun clause introduced by ἵνα may be:

(a) The subject of a verb:

ἐμὸν βρῶμα ἐστὶν ἵνα ποιῶ τὸ θέλημα τοῦ πέμψαντός με (John 4. 34)

To do the will of him who sent me is my food.

(b) The object of a verb:

εἶπε ἵνα οἱ λίθοι οὗτοι ἄρτοι γενωνται (Matt. 4. 3)

Tell these stones to become bread.

(c) In apposition to a noun or pronoun:

ἐν τούτῳ ἐδοξασθῇ ὁ Πατήρ μου, ἵνα καρπὸν πολὺν φέρητε (John 15. 8)

In this is my Father glorified, that you bear much fruit.

These noun clauses and the purpose clauses of the previous section should be compared with the uses of the infinitive in Lesson 20. It will be seen that in Hellenistic Greek ἵνα clauses and the infinitive have become almost equivalent to one another. In Modern Greek να (an eroded form of ἵνα) with the Subjunctive has ousted the infinitive.

In this use of the Subjunctive the element of indefiniteness sometimes seems to have disappeared.

¹ Occasionally μη alone is used for 'lest' in purpose clauses. μη is also regularly used after verbs of fearing in the sense of 'to fear lest' or 'to fear that'. See Exercise 38A17.

(4) The Hortatory Subjunctive. The Subjunctive is used in the first person plural when the speaker is exhorting others to join him in some action:

φαγωμεν και πιωμεν, αὔριον γαρ ἀποθνησκομεν (1 Cor. 15. 32)

Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die.

(5) The Deliberative Subjunctive. The Subjunctive is used in deliberative questions. In questions, that is, in which a person deliberates before acting, asking himself or others what to do.

τί εἶπω ὑμιν; (1 Cor. 11. 22)

What am I to say to you?

τί οὖν ποιησωμεν; (Luke 3. 10)

What then shall we do?

(6) Emphatic negative Future. The double negative οὐ μη is used with the Aorist Subjunctive in the sense of the Future Indicative with οὐ, but with more emphasis.¹

*ἀμην, ἀμην λεγω ὑμιν, Θανατον οὐ μη θεωρησῃ εἰς τον αἰωνα*
(John 8. 51)

Truly, truly I tell you, he will not see death for ever.

*ἀμην λεγω ὑμιν ὅτι οὐ μη παρελθῇ ἡ γενεα αὕτη ἕως ἂν παντα ταυτα γενηται* (Matt. 24. 34)

Truly, I tell you that this generation will not pass away until all these things come about.

The two further uses:

(7) Commands not to begin an action;

(8) Future conditions, will be dealt with under Prohibitions and Conditions in the next lesson.

¹ This is the one use of the Subjunctive where it appears totally to have lost its character as the mood of doubtful assertion. A possible explanation of this use is that οὐ negatives the apprehension expressed in early Greek by μη and the subjunctive. *θανατον μη θεωρησῃ* = 'perhaps he may see death'. οὐ [μη θανατον θεωρησῃ] = 'there's no perhaps-he-may-see-death', i.e. 'he will certainly not see death'.

An emphatic future negative is also sometimes expressed by οὐ μη and the Future.

1. Ἀθετεῖτε τὴν ἐντολὴν τοῦ Θεοῦ, ἵνα τὴν παραδοσὶν ὑμῶν τηρήσητε. 2. ἀγωμεν εἰς τὰς ἄλλας κώμας, ἵνα καὶ ἐκεῖ κηρυξῶ. 3. ὅς ἂν ἐν τῶν τοιούτων παιδιῶν δεξῆται ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματι μου, ἐμε δεχεται· καὶ ὅς ἂν ἐμε δεχῆται, οὐκ ἐμε δεχεται, ἀλλὰ τὸν ἀποστείλαντά με. 4. καὶ τοὺς ὀφθαλμοὺς αὐτῶν ἐκαμμύσαν, μὴ ἰδῶσιν τοὺς ὀφθαλμοῖς. 5. ὃ ἐὰν δησῆς ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς ἐσται δεδεμένον ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς. 6. κυριοί, τί με δεῖ ποιεῖν ἵνα σωθῶ; 7. ἀκουσέσθε κατὰ πάντα ὅσα ἂν λαλήσῃ πρὸς ὑμᾶς. 8. λεγόμεν ἅρα Ποιήσωμεν τὰ κακά, ἵνα ἔλθῃ τὰ ἀγαθὰ; 9. παντοτε γὰρ τοὺς πτωχοὺς ἔχετε, καὶ ὅταν θελήτε δυνασθῆτε αὐτοῖς εὖ ποιῆσαι. 10. φεύγε εἰς Αἴγυπτον καὶ μένε ἐκεῖ ἕως ἂν εἶπῶ σοι. 11. καὶ ἐποίησεν δωδεκά ἵνα ὦσιν μετ' αὐτοῦ. 12. ὅπου ἐὰν κηρυχθῇ τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τοῦτο ἐν ὅλῳ τῷ κόσμῳ, λαληθήσεται καὶ ὃ ἐποίησεν αὕτη. 13. ὅς ἂν μὴ δεξῆται τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ ὡς παιδίον, οὐ μὴ εἰσελθῇ εἰς αὐτήν. 14. ὅταν ἐν τῷ κόσμῳ ᾶ, φῶς εἰμι τοῦ κόσμου. 15. ἵνα δὲ μὴ σκανδαλισώμεν αὐτοὺς, πορευθεὶς εἰς θαλάσσαν βάλε ἄγκιστρον. 16. Ἀπαγγεῖλατε μοι, ὅπως κἀγὼ ἔλθων προσκυνήσω αὐτῷ. 17. ἐφοβούντο γὰρ τὸν λαόν, μὴ λιθασθῶσιν. 18. συμφερεῖ γὰρ σοι ἵνα ἀποληται ἐν τῶν μελῶν σου καὶ μὴ ὅλον τὸ σῶμα σου βληθῇ εἰς γέενναν. 19. προσευχέσθε δὲ ἵνα μὴ γενῆται ἡ φυγὴ ὑμῶν σαββατῶ. 20. καὶ τινες τῶν ὧδε ὄντων οὐ μὴ γευσῶνται θανάτου ἕως ἂν ἰδῶσιν τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου. 21. ἐνδύσωμεθα τὰ ὅπλα τοῦ φωτός. 22. ταῦτα ἔγραψα¹ ὑμῖν ἵνα εἰδῆτε ὅτι ζωὴν ἔχετε αἰώνιον. 23. καὶ πάντα ὅσα ἂν αἰτήσητε ἐν τῇ προσευχῇ πιστεύοντες λημψέσθε.

1. For the Pharisees did not keep the commandment of God that they might keep their own tradition. 2. Whatever I say to you privately proclaim to all the people. 3. What shall we do then? Shall we remain in sin that grace may abound? 4. When you see the Gentiles in the Holy Place the end of the age is drawing near. 5. Wherever the gospel is preached those that believe will be saved. 6. Send the children to the desert that the priests may not kill them. 7. Let us eat and drink, for we must depart. 8. God sent many prophets that they might teach this people. (In this and the next sentence express the verb of the purpose clause in two different ways.) 9. Let us go to other cities that we may exhort the multitudes. 10. Whenever we will we can have mercy on the poor. 11. Remain in the house until I call you. 12. We took away all the trees so that our enemies might not eat the fruit. 13. I will not drink wine lest I cause my brother to stumble. 14. Guard the sheep until I find my little one. 15. Whoever wishes to be greatest among you let him make himself as a child. 16. Carry the clothes to me that they may be carried to the widows. 17. And he besought him that he might be with him. 18. Pray that you may not come into temptation.

LESSON 39

Prohibitions

Conditional sentences

The Optative mood

PROHIBITIONS

Negative commands can be stated in two ways.

(a) As we saw in Lesson 18, μη with the Present Imperative generally denotes a command to cease to do an action already begun, in accordance with the principle that the Present tense denotes action in progress.

μη μου ἀπτον (John 20. 17)

Do not continue to hold me.

(b) μη with the Aorist Subjunctive, however, generally denotes a command not to begin an action.

και μη εισενεγκης ημας εις πειρασμον (Matt. 6. 13)

And do not lead us into temptation.

An example of both uses in the same verse:

μη φοβου, αλλα λαλει και μη σιωπησης (Acts 18. 9)

Do not be afraid, but speak and do not be silent.

Commands and exhortations (whether expressed by Subjunctive or Imperative) have an element of doubt, since they refer to the future and they may or may not be followed.¹

CONDITIONAL SENTENCES

The following treatment of conditional sentences is an over-simplification. It gives only the five simplest forms. But when these have been mastered the less straightforward forms will present little difficulty.

Definitions

Conditional sentences have two parts, the protasis and the apodosis.

The protasis is the 'if' clause.

The apodosis is the 'then' clause.

Classification of conditional sentences

The five types of conditional sentence may be classified as follows:

Conditions of fact

- (1) Past.
- (2) Present.
- (3) Future.

Conditions contrary to fact

- (4) Past.
- (5) Present.

¹ Commands and prohibitions can also be expressed by the Future Indicative, e.g. οὐκ ἐκπειρασεις (Luke 4. 12), 'You shall not tempt'. This follows a Hebrew idiom.

Mood of conditional sentences

The Indicative is always¹ used, except in Future conditions. Future conditions take the Subjunctive in the protasis.

Conditions of fact

In these sentences a statement is made on the assumption that the given condition is true, or that it will be fulfilled.

Past and Present conditions are introduced by εἰ in the protasis:

(1) Past εἰ ὁ Θεὸς ἐφίλησεν, δεῖ ἡμᾶς φιλεῖν
If God loved, we must love.

(2) Present εἰ ὁ Θεὸς φιλεῖ, δεῖ ἡμᾶς φιλεῖν
If God loves, we must love.

(3) Future conditions have ἐάν (εἰ+άν) and the Subjunctive in the protasis:

ἐάν μόνον ἀψῶμαι τοῦ ἱματίου αὐτοῦ, σωθήσομαι (Matt. 9. 21)
If I only touch his garment, I shall be made well.²

The Subjunctive is appropriate because of the element of doubt in most future conditions.

Conditions contrary to fact

In these sentences a statement is made on the recognition that the given condition is not or was not fulfilled.

Conditions contrary to fact have εἰ in the protasis and άν in the apodosis.

(4) Past uses Aorist:

εἰ ἐπίστευσατε αὐτῷ, ἐπίστευσατε ἂν ἐμοί
If you had believed him, you would have believed me.

(5) Present uses Imperfect:

εἰ ἐπίστευετε αὐτῷ, ἐπίστευετε ἂν ἐμοί
If you believed him (now), you would believe me.

¹ In a sentence like: 'If you are the son of God, command', the verb in the apodosis will of course be imperative.

² Note this common meaning of σωζω.

A sentence can refer to past action in one clause and present action in the other:

εἰ ἐπιστευσατε αὐτῷ, ἐπιστευετε ἂν ἐμοί

If you had believed him, you would believe me.

It will be observed that with conditions contrary to fact, the form of the English sentence is no guide whatever to the way in which it should be translated into Greek. The rules given above must be learnt and applied.

THE OPTATIVE MOOD

The Optative mood, though considerably used in classical times, is rare in the New Testament. It can be described roughly as the mood of more doubtful assertion.

Optatives can often be recognised by the presence of the diphthongs οι, ει or αι in or before the personal endings.

There are only two common forms in the New Testament, γενοιτο and εἴη, and these represent the two commonest uses:

- (1) To express a wish.
- (2) In dependent (indirect) questions.

Expressing a wish γενοιτο is the third person singular of the Second Aorist Optative Middle of γινομαι, and is found sixteen times in the expression beloved of Paul:

μη γενοιτο May it not happen! God forbid! (A.V.)

Dependent questions

εἴη (third person singular, occurring eleven times) is the only form of the optative of εἶμι to be found in the New Testament.

και αὐτοι ἤρξαντο συζητεῖν πρὸς ἑαυτοὺς το τίς ἄρα εἴη ἐξ αὐτῶν ὁ τοῦτο μελλῶν πράσσειν (Luke 22. 23)

And they began to discuss among themselves which of them it was (N.E.B.: could possibly be) who would do this.

1. Ἐὰν γὰρ εὖ ποιήτε τοῖς εὖ ποιοῦσιν ὑμῖν, τίνα μισθὸν ἔχετε;
 2. ἐφώνησεν δὲ Παῦλος μεγάλη φωνῇ λέγων Μηδὲν πράξης σεαυτῷ κακόν, ἅπαντες γὰρ ἑσμεν ἐνθαδὲ. 3. ἐὰν μὴ περισσεύσῃ ὑμῶν ἡ δικαιοσύνη πλεον τῶν γραμματέων καὶ Φαρισαίων, οὐ μὴ εἰσελθῆτε εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τῶν οὐρανῶν. 4. εἰ θέλεις εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τὴν ζωὴν, τηρεῖ τὰς ἐντολάς. 5. εἰ κακῶς ἐλάλησα, μαρτυρη-σον περὶ τοῦ κακοῦ. 6. εἰ ἐτι ἀνθρώποις ἡρεσκον, Χριστοῦ δούλος οὐκ ἂν ἤμην. 7. ἐὰν τις θελῇ το θελημα αὐτοῦ ποιεῖν, γνωσεται περὶ τῆς διδαχῆς. 8. μὴ λέγετε Τί φαγώμεν; ἢ Τί πινώμεν; 9. εἰ τοῦ κόσμου τούτου ἡν ἡ βασιλεία ἡ ἐμῇ, οἱ ὑπηρετοὶ ἂν οἱ ἐμοὶ ἡγωνίζοντο. 10. εἰ ἡμεθα ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις τῶν πατέρων ἡμῶν, οὐκ ἂν ἡμεθα κοινωνοὶ ἐν τῷ αἵματι τῶν προφητῶν.
 11. καὶ πάντες διελογίζοντο ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις αὐτῶν περὶ τοῦ Ἰωάννου μὴ ποτε αὐτὸς εἴη ὁ Χριστός. 12. ἐὰν ᾗδῃ ὁ οἰκοδεσποτὴς ποῖα φυλακὴ ὁ κλεπτὴς ἔρχεται, ἐγγηγορήσεν ἂν. 13. ἐὰν ᾗ ἐξ ἀνθρώπων ἡ βουλὴ αὕτη, καταλυθῇσεται· εἰ δὲ ἐκ Θεοῦ ἐστίν, οὐ δυνήσεσθε καταλῦσαι αὐτήν. 14. τὸ ἀργυρίον σου συν σοὶ εἴη εἰς ἀπωλείαν.
 15. εἰ γὰρ ἐγνώκετε τί ἐστὶν Ἐλεος θέλω καὶ οὐ θυσίαν, οὐκ ἂν κατεδικάσατε τοὺς ἀναιτίους. 16. ἐὰν δὲ εἰπώμεν Ἐξ ἀνθρώπων, ὁ λαὸς ἅπας καταλιθασεῖ ἡμᾶς, πιστεύει γὰρ Ἰωάννην προφήτην εἶναι.
 17. μὴ νομίσῃτε ὅτι ἦλθον καταλῦσαι τὸν νόμον ἢ τοὺς προφήτας.
 18. ἴδου ἡ δουλὴ Κυρίου· γενοιτο μοι κατὰ τὸ ῥῆμα σου. 19. οὐαὶ σοὶ Χοραζεῖν· οὐαὶ σοὶ Βηθσαῖδαν· ὅτι εἰ ἐν Τυρῷ καὶ Σιδωνὶ ἐγένοντο αἱ δυνάμεις αἱ γενομέναι ἐν ὑμῖν, παλαὶ ἂν ἐν σακκῷ καὶ σποδῷ μετενοήσαν. 20. τί οὖν ἐρούμεν; ἐπιμενῶμεν τὴν ἁμαρτίαν, ἵνα ἡ χάρις πλεονασῇ; μὴ γενοιτο. 21. Κυριε, εἰ ἥς ὥδε, οὐκ ἂν ἀπεθάνεν ὁ ἀδελφός μου. 22. εἰ ἐγὼ ἤμην ὁ υἱὸς αὐτοῦ, αὐτὸς ἂν ἦν ὁ πατήρ μου. 23. εἰ ἡπιστήσαν τινες, μὴ ἡ ἀπιστία αὐτῶν τὴν πίστιν τοῦ Θεοῦ καταργήσῃ; μὴ γενοιτο· γινεσθῶ δὲ ὁ Θεὸς ἀληθής, πᾶς δὲ ἄνθρωπος ψευστής. 24. πάντα γὰρ ὑμῶν ἐστίν, εἴτε Παῦλος εἴτε Ἀπολλῶς εἴτε Κηφᾶς, εἴτε κόσμος εἴτε ζωὴ εἴτε θάνατος, πάντα ὑμῶν, ὑμεῖς δὲ Χριστοῦ, Χριστὸς δὲ Θεοῦ.

B

1. Lord, if you will, you can cleanse me. 2. Do not bring the Gentiles into the temple. 3. Let us not seek the things of this age. 4. Is the law then against the promises of God? God forbid. 5. If you were my mother, he was my brother. 6. If you were my mother, he would be my brother. 7. If you had known me, you would have known my Father also. 8. Do not continue to receive the enemies of the gospel. 9. May it happen to us according to thy will. 10. If you were blind, you would not have sin. 11. If dead men are not raised, neither has Christ been raised. 12. Sin no longer. 13. Do not carry wine to the slaves. 14. If the enemy draws near, I will send the soldiers against him. 15. Do not continue to judge, lest you be judged.

LESSON 40

Contracted verbs in -αω and -οω

In addition to contracted verbs like φιλεω, which have stems ending in ε, there are contracted verbs like τιμαω, 'I honour', which have stems ending in α, and φανερωω, 'I make clear', which have stems ending in ο.

Their principal parts follow the pattern of φιλεω:

φιλεω	φιλησω	ἐφιλησα	πεφιληκα	πεφιλημαι	ἐφιληθην
τιμαω	τιμησω	ἐτιμησα	τετιμηκα	τετιμημαι	ἐτιμηθην

In all the parts except the present,

α lengthens to η,¹ ο lengthens to ω,

and the tenses are formed as for λυω.

¹ For this lengthening of α to η, cf. p. 53. There are some -αω verbs (including all in which the final α of the stem is preceded by ε, ι or ρ) which do not

Therefore contractions only take place in the tenses of the Present system, i.e. in the Present and Imperfect.

As with φιλεω, there are in each case three rules of contraction:

α + O-sound (ο, ω or ου) → ω

α + E-sound (ε or η) → α

α + any combination containing ι (whether subscript or not) → α ο + long vowel → ω

ο + short vowel or ου → ου

ο + combination containing ι (whether subscript or not) → οι

To these rules there is only one exception, and that is an exception only in appearance. The Present Infinitive Active formed from α + ειν and ο + ειν are τιμαν and φανερουν (not τιμαν and φανεροιν). These endings contain no ι because -ειν was itself originally a contraction of -εεν. τιμα-εν becomes τιμαν and φανερο-εν becomes φανερουν in strict accordance with the rules.

The conjugations of the tenses of the Present system are set out on pp. 238-41 for the purpose of reference. These need not be learnt. It is only necessary to learn the principal parts, the six rules of contraction and the infinitive exception, after which any form may be deduced from λυω.

The peculiarity of ζω, 'I live' (see p. 239), should be noted. η replaces α in the contracted forms.

10. Give four uses of the participle, other than its use in periphrastic tenses. [4]
11. Give two uses of the Optative. [2]
12. Explain how the five main types of conditional clause are translated into Greek. [5]

LESSON 41

-μι verbs: τιθημι

Besides the verbs in -ω there is a small group of verbs which are called verbs in -μι, from the ending of the first person singular of the Present Indicative Active.

These verbs have endings differing from those of the verbs in -ω in the Present, Imperfect and Second Aorist tenses. In the other tenses their endings are the same as those of the verbs in -ω.

It is especially important, in the case of the verbs in -μι, to remember the distinction laid down in Lesson 22 between the verbal stem, from which most of the tenses of the verb are formed, and the Present stem, from which the Present and Imperfect tenses are formed.

The stems of the three principal verbs in -μι are as follows:

		Verbal stem	Present stem
τιθημι	I place	θε	τιθε
διδωμι	I give	δο	διδο
ίστημι	I cause to stand	στα	ίστα

It will be noticed that the Present stem is a reduplicated form of the verbal stem in all three cases. ίστα stands for σιστα, the rough breathing taking the place of the σ.

The principal parts of τιθημι are:

τιθημι θησω έθηκα τεθεικα τεθειμαι έτεθην

When λυω is known and the principal parts have been learnt, there remain only quite a small number of new forms to be mastered. The following should be learnt:

PRESENT

Active

Indicative	Subjunctive	Participle	Imperative	Infinitive
τιθημι	τιθω	τιθεις -εισα -εν
τιθης	τιθης	τιθεντα	τιθει
τιθησι(ν)	τιθη		τιθew	τιθεναι
τιθεμεν	τιθωμεν
τιθετε	τιθητε		τιθετε
τιθεασι(ν)	τιθωσι(ν)		τιθετωσαν

It will be noticed that in the Indicative the stem τιθε is lengthened to τιθη in the singular. (This same lengthening is found in διδωμι and ιστημι.)

Middle and Passive

The tenses are formed throughout from the Present stem and the endings of the Perfect Passive system of λυω:

τιθε-μαι	τιθε-μενος	τιθε-σθαι
----------	------------	-----------

AORIST

Aorist Active

The First Aorist ἐθηκα is found only in the Indicative. In the other moods there are Second Aorist forms.

The Second Aorist of course drops the τι. Otherwise, with the two exceptions given in heavy type, it follows the Present exactly:

Second Aorist Active

Indicative	Subjunctive	Participle	Imperative	Infinitive
Use First	θω	θεις θεισα θεν
Aorist	θης	θεντα	θες
	θη		θετω	θειναι
	θωμεν
	θητε		θετε
	θωσι(ν)		θετωσαν

Second Aorist Middle

This tense is indistinguishable in meaning from the Active:

ἐθεμην	ἐθεμεθα
ἐθου ← ε(σ)ο	ἐθεσθε
ἐθετο	ἐθεντο

EXERCISE 41

1. Οὐ καιουσιν λυχνον και τιθεασιν αὐτον ἐξω της θυρας. 2. και λαβων το σωμα ὁ Ἰωσηφ ἐθηκεν αὐτο ἐν τῷ καινῷ μνημειῷ αὐτου. 3. μητι ἐρχεται ὁ λυχνος ἵνα ἐξω τεθῇ; 4. και τα παιδια κατευλογει τιθεις τας χειρας ἐπ' αὐτα. 5. ὁ ποιμην ὁ καλος την ψυχην αὐτου τιθσιν ὑπερ των προβατων. 6. ἦραν τον κυριον ἐκ του μνημειου, και οὐκ οἶδαμεν που ἐθηκαν αὐτον. 7. οὐχ ὑμων ἐστιν γνωμαι χρονους ἢ καιρους οὓς ὁ πατηρ ἐθετο ἐν τη ἰδιᾳ ἐξουσιᾳ. 8. και ἐζητουν αὐτον εἰσενεγκειν και θειναι αὐτον ἐνωπιον αὐτου. 9. και αὐτος θεις τα γονατα προσηυχето. 10. την ψυχην μου ὑπερ σου θησω. 11. παντοτε προσευχου ἕως ἂν θω τους ἐχθρους σου ὑποποδιον των ποδων σου. 12. οὗτος ἐστιν ὁ θρονος ὁ τεθεις ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ. 13. καταβησομαι ἵνα θω τας χειρας ἐπ' αὐτην και ζησει. 14. τα δικτυα ἐτεθη παρα το πλοιον. 15. χειρας μηδενι ἐπιτιθει. 16. ἐθεωρουν που τεθειται. 17. μνημειον καινον, ἐν ᾧ οὐδεπω οὐδεις ἦν τεθειμενος. 18. τί ὅτι ἐθου ἐν τη καρδια σου το πραγμα τουτο; 19. και τον Πετρον ἐθεντο εἰς φυλακην. 20. κατα μιαν σαββατου ἕκαστος ὑμων παρ' ἑαυτῷ τιθετω. 21. ἡ μαχαιρα τιθεται ἐν τη χειρι του βασιλεως.

τιθημι (or ἐπιτιθημι) is to be used for 'place', 'lay',
'lay down', 'put'.

1. We must place the law of love in our hearts daily. 2. Place joy there similarly. 3. Where have you laid him? 4. How shall we place our daughter at¹ his feet? 5. They put² their books in the synagogue. 6. We shall put them there also. 7. You have placed me in a good land. 8. Lay down your lives for the brethren. 9. Do not place this writing upon the cross. 10. Put the body in the tomb. 11. Laying their hands upon us, the apostles blessed us. 12. But the sick man was brought in and placed before him. 13. Come and put your hand upon her.

LESSON 42

διδωμι

Principal parts:

διδωμι δασω ἔδωκα δέδωκα δεδομαι ἔδοθην

When θε is replaced by δο the Present and Aorist forms of διδωμι are identical with those of τιθημι, except that:

(1) ου must be written for ει;

(2) there is an ω in all Subjunctive endings. (The ο of the stem prevails over an η in the endings. But the iota subscripts remain.)

He who gives bread to the sick will have his reward. 11. The king has given us this city; let us not betray it to his enemies. 12. Forgiveness is being given to us.

ἵστημι

ἵστημι and its compounds have two peculiarities in the use of tenses.

(1) They have one set of transitive and one set of intransitive tenses.

(2) The Perfect tense is Present in meaning and the Pluperfect is Imperfect in meaning.

The transitive tenses of the principal parts are:

Present Active	ἵστημι	I cause to stand
Future Active	στήσω	I shall cause to stand
First Aorist Active	έστησα	I caused to stand

ἵστημι has two Aorists which are distinct in meaning. The Second Aorist is intransitive.

The intransitive tenses of the principal parts are:

Second Aorist Active	έστην	I stood
Perfect Active	έστηκα	I stand (N.B. Present in meaning)
First Aorist Passive	έσταθην	I stood (usually indistinguishable in meaning from έστην)

This use of tenses can easily be remembered if the principal parts of the verb are carefully set out in two lines:

Transitive: ἵστημι στήσω έστησα

Intransitive: έστην έστηκα — έσταθην

In the Present and Second Aorist, when θε is replaced by στα, the needed forms of ἵστημι are identical with those of τιθημι, except that:

(1) the Active Participles end in -ας -ασα -αν;

(2) there is a Second Aorist Indicative Active έστην (like -εβην, έλυθην);

(3) the Second Aorist Infinitive is σθηναι.

PRESENT

Active

Indicative	Subjunctive	Participle	Infinitive
ἵστημι	ἵστω
ἵστης	ἵστης	ἵστας ἵστασα ἵσταν
ἵστησι(ν)	ἵστη	ἵσταντα	ἵσταναι
ἵσταμεν	ἵστωμεν
ἵστατε	ἵστητε
ἵστασι(ν)	ἵστωσι(ν)

Middle and Passive

ἵσταμαι	ἵσταμενος	ἵστασθαι
---------	-----------	----------

AORIST

Second Aorist Active

ἔστην	στω
ἔστης	στης	στας στασα σταν
ἔστη	στη	σταντα	στηναι
ἔστημεν	στωμεν
ἔστητε	στητε
ἔστησαν	στωσι(ν)

Note. (1) The third person plural of the First and Second Aorists are the same: ἔστησαν. When this word is met its meaning must be inferred from the context. Examples are given in Exercise 43A22, 23, 24.

(2) The Perfect Participle Active has two forms:

First Perfect: ἑστήκως -υια -ος ἑστήκοτα

Second Perfect: ἑστώς -ωσα -ος ἑστώτα

ἑστώς is the commoner of the two. Both are Present in meaning: 'standing'.

(3) The Pluperfect Active, which is Imperfect in meaning, 'I was standing', is εἰστήκειν.

But his mother was standing outside.

LESSON 44

Other -μι verbs

ἀφίημι, συνιημι

The verb ίημι, meaning 'I send', occurs in the New Testament only in compounds, the most common of which are:

ἀφίημι I send away, I forgive.

συνιημι lit. I send together; hence, I understand.

The verbal stem of ίημι is έ.

The Present stem of ίημι is ιέ.

With few exceptions its forms follow τιθημι exactly. The principal parts of ἀφίημι are:

ἀφίημι ἀφίησω ἀφίηκα — ἀφεωνται ἀφεθην ἀφεωνται (third person plural) is the only Perfect Passive form in the New Testament.

δεικνυμι: I SHOW

Verbs in -νυμι tend generally in the New Testament to assimilate themselves to verbs in -ω. Such -μι forms as do occur are almost always the same as those of τιθημι allowing for the stem vowel υ instead of ε.

φημι: I SAY

The following forms are found in the New Testament:

Present: φημι I say φησι(ν) he says φασι(ν) they say
Imperfect: ἔφη he said.

We have now given all the common forms of the -μι verbs. For a complete list reference must be made to the larger works. But some of the less common forms can be easily recognised. For example,

Future Middles will always follow the Future Actives:

θησομαι δωσομαι στησομαι¹

Future Passives will always follow the First Aorist Passives:

τεθησομαι δοθησομαι σταθησομαι ἀφεθησομαι

Imperfects will have the Present stem together with an augment:

ἐ-τιθε ἐ-διδω ἴστα²

EXERCISE 44

1. Τότε ἀφίησιν αὐτον ὁ διαβολος.

THE NEXT STEP

The student has now traversed the elements of New Testament Greek and is in a position to tackle the text of the New Testament with confidence. What further help does he need?

VOCABULARY

He may, if he wishes, extend his vocabulary by the use of B. M. Metzger's Lexical Aids for Students of New Testament Greek (obtainable from Blackwell's, Oxford). This gives all words which occur ten or more times. In any case he will add to his store of words by the use of a lexicon as he works through his chosen passages.

The fullest and most up-to-date lexicon is A Greek-English Lexicon of the New Testament by W. Bauer, translated by Arndt and Gingrich (Cambridge). For the student who expects to do advanced work, this is unquestionably the best lexicon. The beginner may find it rather overwhelming.

G. Abbott-Smith's A Manual Greek Lexicon of the New Testament (T. and T. Clark) is the ideal lexicon at this stage. It has two most useful appendices: Irregular Verbs and an Alphabetical List of Verbal Forms. Even for advanced students it has one advantage over Arndt-Gingrich, in that it gives not only the Septuagint uses of Greek words, but also the Hebrew words which they translate.

A. Souter, A Pocket Lexicon to the Greek New Testament is concise and good, but not helpful to a beginner in difficulties.

Grimm-Thayer, A Greek-English Lexicon of the New Testament, though old, is worth picking up second-hand.

MORPHOLOGY

From time to time the student will meet rare forms of words which he has not learnt. They can almost always be identified with the help of Abbott-Smith, but for serious work it is more satisfactory to have a text-book which sets out the complete morphology. The advanced book is Moulton and Howard, A Grammar of New Testament Greek, vol. 2 (T. and T. Clark). J. H. Moulton, An Introduction to the Study of New Testament Greek (Epworth) gives a concise, but adequate, summary.

THE NEXT STEP

SYNTAX

The syntax covered so far has been rather slight. It would probably be wise to study H. P. V. Nunn's A Syntax of New Testament Greek (Cambridge) or Moulton's Introduction (see above) or A. C. M. Hargreaves' Notes on the Translation and Text of St Mark's Gospel in Greek and on New Testament Greek Syntax (Christian Literature Society, Madras), before going on to C. F. D. Moule's An Idiom Book of New Testament Greek (Cambridge) and the large standard works: A Grammar of New Testament Greek by J. H. Moulton, vol. 3, 'Syntax', by N. Turner (T. and T. Clark), Blass-Debrunner-Funk, A Greek Grammar of the New Testament (Cambridge) and A. T. Robertson, A Grammar of the Greek New Testament in the Light of Historical Research (Hodder and Stoughton, out of print).

The author is at work on a short Second Book of New Testament Greek, designed to bridge the gap between The Elements of New Testament Greek and the more advanced works. It will give a fuller vocabulary, a fairly complete treatment of morphology (for reference purposes) and a more systematic arrangement of elementary syntax.

VOCABULARIES

VOCABULARIES 6, 7

Three feminine nouns

ἐρημος (47)	desert. [hermite = hermit]
ὁδος (101)	way. [exodus; ἐξ 'out of' (Vocab. 10)]
παρθενος (15)	virgin. [parthenogenesis: virgin birth]

LESSON 7

ἀργυριον (21)	silver, money. [Cf. French and heraldic 'argent']
βιβλιον (34)	book. [Bible]
δαιμονιον (63)	demon.
δενδρον (25)	tree. [rhododendron: lit. rose-tree]
ἐργον (169)	work. [energy; erg is the physical unit of work]
εὐαγγελιον (76)	gospel. [evangel]
ἱερον (70)	temple. [A hierarchy is a system of sacred rulers (cf. ἀρχω 'I rule', Vocab. 23)] Usually ναος would refer to the sanctuary, whereas ἱερον would include the precincts as a whole. Note that the breathing is on the ι not on the ε. Whereas αι, ει, οι are diphthongs (pronounced as a single syllable), ια, ιε, ιο form two separate syllables. Hence σοφ-ι-α (Vocab. 9), ἱματ-ι-ον, ἱ-ερ-ον.
ἱματιον (60)	garment; pl. clothes.
μνημειον (37)	tomb. [Thought of as something by which to remember (μνημονευω) the dead. A mnemonic is an aid to memory]
μυστηριον (27)	mystery.
παιδιον (52) }	child. [paediatrics, Paedo-baptist] In origin the -ιον ending was a diminutive, so that ἀργυριον was a small piece of silver, δαιμονιον a lesser demon, παιδιον a little παῖς ('child', Vocab. 28). But in many cases the diminutive force has disappeared. παιδιον and τεκνον are used of children of all ages. [A pedagogue is one who leads (ἀγω, Vocab. 13) a child] τεκνον (99) }
πλοιον (66)	boat.
ποτηριον (31)	cup.
προβατον (37)	sheep.
προσωπον (74)	face.
σημειον (77)	sign. [semaphore carries (φέρω, Vocab. 13) a sign]
συνεδριον (22)	council, the Sanhedrin. (Sanhedrin is one of the rare instances of Hebrew borrowing a Greek word.)

VOCABULARIES. 7, 8

σαββατον (68) Sabbath. (The Aramaic for Sabbath was 'Shabbata'. So the plural form σαββαρα (as well as the singular form σαββατον) is often used with singular meaning.)
The Greek form of the word for 'Jerusalem' is also Second Declension neuter plural:

(τα) 'Ιεροσολυμα (63)

There is also a Hebrew form which is feminine singular and indeclinable:

(ή) 'Ιερουσαλημ (76)

LESSON 8

ὁ ἡ το (19,734)	the.
ἀγάπη (116)	love. [The Agape in the Early Church was a love feast]
ἀρχη (55)	beginning. [archaic]
γη (248)	earth, land. [geography, geology]
γραφη (50)	writing, Scripture (cf. γραφω). [autograph: writing of the man 'himself', αὐτος (Vocab. 15)]
διαθηκη (33)	covenant (ἡ καινη διαθηκη : 'The New Testament').
διδαχη (30)	teaching (cf. διδασκαλος). ['The Didache' is the name by which an early Christian writing, The Teaching of the Twelve Apostles , is generally known.]
δικαιοσυνη (91)	righteousness.
εἰρηνη (91)	peace. [eirenical]
ἐντολη (68)	commandment.
ἐπιστολη (24)	letter. [epistle]

θύσια (28)	sacrifice.
καρδία (156)	heart. [cardiac]
μαρτυρία (37)	witness (cf. μαρτυρεῶ). The neuter form μαρτυριον is also common: 20 times.
μετανοία (22)	repentance (cf. μετανοεῶ).
οἰκία (94)	house. (οἶκ-ι-α is in form a diminutive of οἶκος, but there is now no sharp distinction between the two words. Cf. note on παιδ-ι-ον, Vocab. 7.)
παρουσία (24)	coming.
πέτρα (15)	rock. [petrify. Cf. Πέτρος below]
σοφία (51)	wisdom. [philosophy]
σωτηρία (45)	salvation (cf. σωζῶ). [soteriology]
χαρά (59)	joy.
χήρα (26)	widow.
χρεία (49)	need.
ώρα (106)	hour. [ώρα and 'hour' come from the same root. Horoscope: prediction based on person's hour of birth]
Γαλιλαία (61)	Galilee.
Ἰουδαία (44)	Judaea.

Stems ending in consonant other than ρ

γλῶσσα (50)	tongue. [glossolalia: speaking with tongues]
δοξα (165)	glory. [doxology]
θαλάσσα (91)	sea.

Names (Second Declension)

Παυλος (158)	Paul.
Πετρος (154)	Peter.

LESSON 10

Nouns ending in ης

Ἰωαννης (134)	John (sometimes spelt Ἰωαννης).
βαπτιστης (12)	baptist.
ἐργατης (16)	workman (cf. ἐργον).
κριτης (19)	judge [critic] (cf. κρινω).
μαθητης (262)	disciple (cf. μαθανω, 'I learn' (Vocab. 25)). [Mathematics is a basic form of learning]
προφητης (144)	prophet.
στρατιωτης (26)	soldier. [Strategy is concerned with the way in which an army (στρατος) is led (ἄγω, Vocab. 13)]
τελωνης (21)	tax-collector.
ὑποκριτης (18)	hypocrite.

Nouns ending in -ας: -ε -ι or -ρ stem, Genitive in -ου

νεανias -ου (4)	young man (cf. νεος, 'new', 'young', Vocab. 12).
Ἀνδρεας -ου (13)	Andrew.
Ἡλειας -ου (29)	Elijah. 'Elijah' comes from the Hebrew; 'Elias' (the New Testament form in the Authorised Version) from the Greek.

Nouns ending in -ας: consonant stem, 'Doric' Genitive in -α

Σατανas -α (36)	Satan.
Ἰουδas -α (44)	Judas, Judah.

Prepositions

taking accusative

εἰς (1753)	to, into.
προς (696)	to, towards.

taking genitive

ἀπο, ἀπ', ἀφ' (645)	from, away from. [Apocalypse = Revelation, i.e. taking the veil away from] It is usually written ἀπ' when the word which follows begins with a vowel which has a smooth breathing; ἀφ' before a rough breathing.
---------------------	--

VOCABULARIES 10, 11

ἐκ, ἐξ (915)	from, out of [Exodus] (ἐξ is used before a vowel).
taking dative
ἐν (2713)	in.

Adverb

οὐ, οὐκ, οὐχ (1619) not (οὐκ before smooth, οὐχ before rough breathing).

Conjunctions

ἀλλὰ (635) but (often written ἀλλ' before a vowel).

The three small conjunctions (often called particles) which follow never stand as the first word of a sentence or clause. They are usually written second.

γάρ (1036)	for. (The conjunction 'for', which is virtually equivalent to 'because', must be distinguished from the preposition 'for', which represents the dative.)
οὖν (493)	therefore, then (in a logical, not a temporal, sense).
δε (2771)	but, and (lighter than ἀλλὰ and καί).

In Greek, particles and conjunctions are used to bind one sentence to another more frequently than in English. It is the exception rather than the rule to start a sentence without one. So much so that it is a matter for note if two sentences are not-bound-together. There is said to be an asyndeton. (See δεῶ, Vocab. 14.) καί and δε in particular are lavishly used, sometimes with very little force. As a discipline in accuracy the beginner should always translate these words, though an expert might at times be justified in considering it more idiomatic to leave such a word untranslated.

οὐ and δε combine to make:

οὐδε (139)	and not, not even, neither, nor. (It can stand first in the sentence.)
ἀρα (49)	also means 'therefore, then'. It is a little lighter than οὖν and is sometimes found first in the sentence.

LESSON 11

Adjectives with consonant stems (other than ρ), declined like ἀγαθός -η -ον

ἀγαθός (104)	good.
ἀγαπητός (61)	beloved (cf. ἀγαπή).
δυνατός (32)	powerful, possible. [dynamite]

ἐκαστος (81)	each, every.
ἐσχατος (52)	last. [eschatology]
ἱκανος (40)	sufficient.
καινος (42)	new ('Η ΚΑΙΝΗ ΔΙΑΘΗΚΗ: 'The New Testament').
κακος (50)	bad. [cacophony: bad sound (φωνη)]
καλος (99)	beautiful, good. [calligraphy is beautiful writing, though notice that καλος has only one λ.]
λοιπος (55)	remaining; as a noun in the plural, '(the) rest'.
μεσος (56)	middle. The commonest expression is ἐν μεσῳ, 'in the midst'. [Mesopotamia; mesolithic: belonging to the Middle Stone Age]
μονος (112)	alone, only. [monologue; monolith] The neuter accusative μονον is frequently used as an adverb.

Examples of the use of μονος

Adjectivally

Attributive position: ὁ μονος Θεος or ὁ Θεος ὁ μονος the-only-God

Predicative position: μονος ὁ Θεος or ὁ Θεος μονος { God-only, (see further next Lesson). { God-alone

Adverbially

μονον πιστευει he only-believes οὐ μονον . . . ἀλλὰ καὶ not only . . . but also ὀλιγος (40)	little, pl. few. [oligarchy: rule of a few. See ἀρχω, Vocab. 23]

πιστος (67)	believing, faithful.
πρωτος (152)	first. [prototype] The neuter accusative πρωτον is frequently used as an adverb.
τριτος (48)	third. [Deutero- and Trito-Isaiah are the hypothetical second and third prophets held to be responsible for the later parts of the Book of Isaiah. For δευτερος see next vocabulary.]
πτωχος (34)	poor.
σοφος (20)	wise (cf. σοφια).
τυφλος (50)	blind.

Adjectives with no separate feminine endings

Compound adjectives use λογος endings for feminine as well as masculine. Among these are all adjectives with the negative prefix ἀ-, including:

ἀπιστος ον (23)	unbelieving, faithless.
ἀκαθαρτος ον (31)	unclean [catharsis] (cf. καθαρος, 'clean' (Vocab. 12) and καθαριζω, 'I cleanse' (Vocab. 22)).

VOCABULARIES 11, 12

Though not a compound adjective, also of this type is:

αἰώνιος ον (70) eternal, everlasting. [aeon] 'Eternal life' is αἰώνιος ζωῇ.¹

LESSON 12

Adjectives with vowel or ρ stems, declined like ἅγιος -α -ον

ἅγιος (233)	holy; as noun, saint. [hagiographer: writer of lives of saints] ἄξιος (41)	worthy.
δεξιός (54)	right, as distinguished from left. [Cf. dexterous]
δεύτερος (44)	second. [Deuteronomy; Deutero-Isaiah]
δικαίος (79)	just, righteous (cf. δικαιοσύνη, ἀδικία).
ἐλεύθερος (23)	free.
ἕτερος (98)	different, other. [heterodox]
ἴδιος (113)	one's own. [idiosyncrasy]. Normally it is used with the article and without a personal pronoun. Thus ὁ ἴδιος means 'my own', 'your own', etc., according to the context.
ἰσχυρός (28)	strong.
καθαρός (26)	clean, pure [catharsis] (cf. ἀκαθάρτος, Vocab. 11).
μακάριος (50)	blessed, happy.
μικρός (30)	small. [microscope; omicron is a short (small) 'o']
νεκρός (128)	dead. [A necropolis is a cemetery, a city, πόλις (Vocab. 31), of the dead; necromancy is prediction through communication with the dead]
νεός (23)	new, young (cf. νεανίας). [neolithic: belonging to New Stone Age; neo-orthodox]
παλαιός (19)	old. [palaeolithic: belonging to Old Stone Age]
πλούσιος (28)	rich. [plutocrat]
πονηρός (78)	evil.
ὅμοιος (45)	like (takes dative. This word was famous in the Arian controversy. Was the Son of 'like' (ὅμοιος) substance with or of the 'same' (ὁμός) substance as the Father?)
εἰμι (1556)	I am.

¹ With αἰώνιος, however, separate feminine endings are occasionally found. As the stem αἰωνι- ends in a vowel, the feminines in these cases have -α endings, like ἅγιος -α -ον (next lesson).

LESSON 13

Verbs compounded with a preposition

- ἀγω (66) I lead, bring. Intransitive, I go.
 From the simple verb ἀγω are derived the following compound verbs:
 ἀπαγω (15) I lead away.
 συναγω (59) I bring or gather together (cf. συναγωγή).
 ὑπαγω (79) I depart (intransitive).
 φερω (68) I carry. [Christopher: carrying Christ. Cf. transfer, refer]

From φερω is derived:

- προσφερω (47) I bring, offer.
 ἀκουω (427) I hear. [acoustics] Usually takes accusative of thing heard, but genitive of the person heard.

From ἀκουω is derived:

- ὑπακουω (21) I obey (takes dative).

Other compound verbs:

- ἀναγινωσκω (32) I read.
 ἐπιγινωσκω (44) I perceive, recognise.
 ἀποθνήσκω (113) I die.
 ἀπολυω (65) I release.
 ἐκβαλλω (81) I throw out, send out.
 ἐνδυω (28) I put on, clothe. [Cf. endue] παραλαμβάνω (49) I receive.

Other verbs

- ἀνοιγω (78) I open.
 διδασκω (95) I teach (cf. διδαχή).
 διωκω (44) I pursue, persecute.
 κλαιω (38) I weep.
 πειθω (52) I persuade.
 περισσευω (39) I abound.
 πιστευω (241) I believe (takes dative. Cf. πιστος, ἀπιστος).
 προφητευω (28) I prophesy.
 χαίρω (74) I rejoice (cf. χαρά).

We are now familiar with more than half the words in the New Testament.

LESSON 14

-εω verbs compounded with a preposition

- κατοικεω (44) I inhabit, dwell (followed by accusative or ἐν with dative; from οἶκος).
 παρακαλεω (109) I beseech, exhort, encourage. [Paraclete] περιπατεω (95) I walk. [peripatetic]
 προσκυνεω (59) I worship (usually takes dative; sometimes accusative).

Other -εω verbs

- ἀδικεω (27) I do wrong to, injure (cf. δικαίος, ἀδικία).
 ἀκολουθεω (90) I follow (takes dative). [An 'acolyte' is one who follows (the priest?). The grammatical term 'anacolouthon' is made up of the negative prefix ἀ and ἀκολουθεω (bound together with the help of a ν). It is used of a sentence which does not follow on properly; for instance, when a new construction is begun before the old one is completed, e.g. Exod. 32. 32: 'But now, if thou wilt forgive their sin—and if not. . . .' See also Mark 7. 19 (R.V.)] ἀσθενεω (33) I am weak, ill. [neurasthenia: nervous debility] γαμεω (28) I marry. [monogamy] δεω (41) I bind. [asyndeton: ἀ + συν ('with', Vocab. 16) + δεω: where a sentence has no conjunction or particle to bind it with the previous sentence. Cf. Vocab. 10] διακονεω (36) I wait upon, serve, minister. (Takes dative. Cf. διηκονουν διηκονουν (Imperf.) διακονος. The δι- of διακονεω is not in fact a preposition, but the augment is inserted as though it were.) δοκεω (62) I think, seem. [Docetism taught that Christ was only seemingly human.] ἐλεεω (32) I have mercy on. [eleemosynary, which is derived from the same root as 'alms'] εὐχαριστεω (38) I give thanks. [Eucharist] (The prefix εὐ, 'well' (Vocab. 33) has already been met in εὐλογεω; and the stem in χαρά and χαίρω.)
 κρατεω (47) I take hold of, hold.
 οἰκοδομεω (40) I build (cf. οἶκος).
 φωνεω (42) I call (cf. φωνή).

VOCABULARIES 14, 15, 16

The following three words are put in the predicative position:

οὗτος (1388)	this. }	Occasionally these are used for 'he', 'she', 'it'.
ἐκεῖνος (243)	that. }
ὅλος -η -ον (108)	whole. [holocaust: a whole burnt-offering]

We saw in Lesson 10 that the dative is the case of personal interest. We have now had five verbs which usually take the dative:

ὕπακουω	I obey
πιστεύω	I believe
προσκυνεω	I worship
ἀκολουθεω	I follow
διακονεω	I serve

It will be noticed that they all involve a close personal relationship between the subject and the person referred to in the dative case.

We have had one verb which often takes the genitive: ἀκουω, 'I hear'.

LESSON 15

ἄλλος -η -ο (155)	other, another. [allotropic: another form of the same substance. Diamond is an allotropic form of ordinary carbon]
ἄλληλους (100)	one another. [parallel: lines beside (παρά, Vocab. 16) one another]
αὐτός -η -ο (5534)	personal pronoun: he; emphasising pronoun: himself; identical adjective: same. [autograph]
ἑαυτον -ην -ο (320)	reflexive pronoun: himself.

LESSON 16

Prepositions with three cases

With most prepositions elision usually takes place before a vowel. There are, however, many exceptions, e.g. ὑπο ἐξουσιαν is the form always found in the New Testament. In the case of ἐπι, μετα, ὑπο, κατα (like ἀπο, Vocab. 10), there are different forms before the smooth and the rough breathing. περι and προ never elide. Cf. p. 55 n. 1.

παρά, παρ'	beside. [parallel] (παράβολη, putting (βαλλω) two things side by side.)
(acc. 60)	to beside, alongside, beside.
(gen. 79)	from beside, from. (Used of persons.)
(dat. 52)	(rest) beside, with.

- ἐπι, ἐπ', ἐφ' (878) upon, on. [epitaph: inscription upon a tomb (ταφος); epiclesis: calling (καλεω) down the Holy Spirit upon the sacramental elements or upon the worshippers]
(One meaning of genitive: in the time of.)

Prepositions with two cases

- δια, δι' (acc. 280) because of.
(gen. 386) through. [diameter: measure through centre]
μετα, μετ', μεθ' (acc. 103) after. (usually of time) (gen. 364) with.
ὑπερ (acc. 19) above. [hypersensitive]
(gen. 130) on behalf of, for.
ὑπο, ὑπ', ὑφ' (acc. 50) under. [hypodermic: under the skin]
(gen. 167) by. (Used for an agent, not an instrument.)
κατα, κατ', καθ' (acc. 398) according to.
(gen. 73) against.

(Note two other common phrases in the accusative:

κατ' ἰδιαν privately.

καθ' ἡμέραν daily.)

- περι (acc. or gen. 331) about. [perimeter; periphrasis: roundabout way of saying something] περι is used in all the three English senses of 'about': 'concerning' (accusative or genitive), 'around' (or 'round'), 'approximately' (accusative only).

Prepositions with one case: taking genitive

- προ (47) before (of place or time). [prologue] ἐνωπιον (93) } before (usually of place).
ἐμπροσθεν (48) }
ὀπισω (35) after (usually of place).
ἐξω (62) outside, out of (from ἐκ).
χωρίς (41) apart from.
ἄχρι (48) } until, as far as.
ἕως (145) }

ἐνωπιον, ἐμπροσθεν, ὀπισω, ἐξω, χωρίς are usually classified as adverbs, but they are frequently used as prepositions.

ἄχρι, ἕως are sometimes prepositions, sometimes conjunctions.

Prepositions with one case: taking dative

συν (127) with (closely similar in use to μετα with genitive).
 [There are many words transliterated 'syn-' or 'sym-', e.g. sympathy, suffering with.]

It will be useful to collect the examples so far met of English prepositions which can have more than one Greek translation.

After: μετα + accusative (usually time)
 ὀπισω + genitive (usually place)

Before: προ (time or place) } ἐνωπιον } (usually place) } + genitive
 ἐμπροσθεν }

By: instrument—dative agent—ὑπο + genitive time during which—genitive

For: indirect object—dative on behalf of—ὑπερ + genitive length of time—accusative

From: ἀπο (away from) } ἐκ (out of) } genitive/ablative παρὰ (from beside—but only of persons) }

On: ἐν—all cases: accusative, genitive or dative time at which—dative/locative, with or without ἐν

Out of: ἐκ, ἐξ—genitive/ablative

To: indirect object—dative εἰς (into) } προς (towards) } accusative

With: instrument—dative παρὰ (rest beside)—dative/locative μετα + genitive }
 συν + dative } (in company with)

LESSON 18

ὅς, ἥ, ὅ (1369) who, which, that (relative).
διό (53) therefore (i.e. δι' ὅ 'because of which').

VOCABULARIES 18, 19

μη (1055) not (with all moods except the Indicative).

Questions expecting the answer 'no' and hesitant questions use μη or:

μητι (16)

Questions expecting the answer 'yes' use οὐ or:

οὐχι (53)

δε may be added to μη (as to οὐ, Vocab. 10) giving:

οὐδε (with Indicative) } μηδε (57) (with other moods) } and not, neither, nor, not even.

Another common particle (also never coming first in a sentence) is τε (201) and (but denoting a closer connection than καί) (cf. Latin -que).

This too forms a pair of conjunctions similar in meaning to οὐδε and μηδε:

οὐτε (91) (with Indicative) } μητε (34) (with other moods) } and not, neither, nor.

They never mean 'not even' and are most common in the form οὐτε... οὐτε and μητε...μητε meaning 'neither...nor'.

We are now familiar with more than 60 per cent of the words of the New Testament.

With ὅς ἢ ὅ we have now had seven words with the -ο ending in the neuter singular:

ὁ ἢ το	the
ἐκεῖνος -η -ο	that
οὗτος αὕτη τουτο	this
ἄλλος -η -ο	other
αὐτός -η -ο	he, etc.
ἐαυτον -ην -ο	himself, etc.
ὅς ἢ ὅ	who, etc.

LESSON 19

ὥς (505) as. (This very common word has various other meanings.)

καθώς (178) as, even as (= κατά ὥς: slightly stronger in feeling than ὥς).

ὥσπερ (36) just as, even as (περ is a suffix which can add force to a word).

μεν (181) For meaning, see Lesson. Like δε never the first, usually the second, word in the sentence.

First and second person personal pronouns

ἐγώ (1713) I. [egoist]

ἐγώ provides the commonest example of crasis, i.e. of two words being joined together, a smooth breathing being placed over the vowel at the point of union:

καὶ ἐγώ = καὶ ἐγώ (84) and I.

καὶ ἐκεῖνος = καὶ ἐκεῖνος (22) and that.

σύ (1057) you (singular).

ἡμεῖς (856) we.

ὕμεῖς (1830) you (plural).

First and second person singular possessive adjectives and pronouns ἐμός (76) my, mine.

σός (27) your, yours.

First and second person singular reflexive pronouns ἐμαυτὸν (37) myself.

σεαυτὸν (43) yourself.

LESSON 20

δυναμῆναι (209) I am able, can (cf. δυνατός).

θελῶ (207) I will, wish. [A monothelite believes that Christ has Imperf. ἠθέλον only one will] μελλῶ (110) I am about.

δεῖ (Impf. εἰδεῖ) (102) it is necessary. (δεῖ as an impersonal verb is usually treated separately from δεῶ, but the meanings 'it is binding' and 'it is necessary' probably come from the same root.)

ἐξεστίν (ν) (31) it is lawful (takes dative).

ὥστε (84) with the result that, so that.

LESSON 22

-πτω verbs with labial (π) stem

ἀπο-καλυπτῶ (26) I reveal. [apocalypse]

κρυπτῶ (19) I hide. [crypt, cryptic]

-ιζω verbs (all have dental (δ) stems)

βαπτίζω (77)	I baptise.
ἐγγίζω (42)	I draw near (usually takes dative).
ἐλπίζω (31)	I hope.
καθαρίζω (31)	I cleanse (cf. καθαρος, ἀκαθαρτος).
καθίζω (45)	I seat, sit.
σκανδαλίζω (29)	I cause to stumble. [scandalise] (σκανδαλον, which occurs 15 times, is a 'stumbling-block'.)

-αζω verbs with dental (δ) stem

ἀγιαζω (27)	I sanctify (cf. ἅγιος).
ἀγοράζω (30)	I buy.
βάσταζω (27)	I carry.
δοξάζω (61)	I glorify (cf. δοξα).
ἐτοιμαζω (41)	I prepare.
θαυμάζω (42)	I wonder at. [thaumaturge: a wonder-worker]
πειραζω (38)	I test, tempt (cf. πειρασμος).

-αζω verb with guttural (γ) stem

κραζω (55)	I cry out.
------------	------------

-σσω verbs with guttural (γ or κ) stem

κηρυσσω (61)	I proclaim, preach.
πρασσω (39)	I do, practise.
φυλασσω (31)	I guard (cf. φυλακη).

LESSON 23

Verb with an important Middle use ἄρχω (2)	I rule (takes genitive). The Indicative is very rare, but the Present Participle ἄρχων, 'ruler' (Vocab. 28), which is used and regarded as a noun, is common. [Patriarch: father and ruler of a family (πατήρ, Vocab. 31); monarchy: rule by only one person; oligarchy: rule by a few.]

ἀρχομαι (83)	I begin (cf. ἀρχη).

ἄρχω has one common compound:

- ὑπαρχω (60) I am, exist, belong to. ὑπαρχω, when it means 'I am' or 'I exist', and γινομαι, 'I become' (see below), take the same case before and after, like εἰμι.

Deponent Middle verbs

- ἄπτομαι (39) I take hold of, touch (takes genitive).
 ἄρνεομαι (32) I deny.
 ἀσπάζομαι (59) I greet.
 δεχομαι (56) I receive. (δεχομαι and παραλαμβάνω are similar in use, but (as its form suggests) παραλαμβάνω can mean 'I take with me'.)
 ἐργάζομαι (41) I work (cf. ἔργον, ἐργατης).
 ἔρχομαι, Fut. ἔλευσομαι (631) I come (I go) (cf. πορευομαι below).
 ἀπερχομαι (116) I go away.
 διερχομαι (42) I go through.
 εἰσερχομαι (192) I go into, come into.
 ἐξέρχομαι (216) I go out.
 προσέρχομαι (87) I come to (takes dative).
 συνέρχομαι (30) I come together.
 εὐαγγελίζομαι (54) I bring good news, preach the gospel (cf. εὐαγγέλιον) [evangelise].
 Impf. εὐηγγελίζομην: note the augment.
 εὖ 'well' is treated like a compounding preposition.
 λογιζομαι (40) I reckon (i.e. make a λογος, λογος sometimes meaning 'an account'). [Cf. logic, logistics, logarithm] προσευχομαι (86) I pray (cf. προσευχη).

Deponent Passive verbs

- βουλομαι (37) I will, wish. (It is doubtful whether any distinction in meaning from θελω can be maintained.)
 φοβεομαι (95) I fear, am afraid (cf. φοβος).

Deponent verbs with some Middle and some Passive forms

- ἀποκρίνομαι (231) I answer (usually takes dative; cf. κρινω: an answer is made after the matter has been judged).
 γινομαι, Fut. γενησομαι (667) I become; sometimes, I am.
 παραγινομαι (36) I am beside, I come.
 πορευομαι (150) I go (I come).
 ἐκπορευομαι (33) I go out.

In Greek the distinction between coming and going is not as clear as in English, but έρχομαι more often means 'come' than 'go' and πορευομαι more often means 'go' than 'come'. In compounds, however, έρχομαι is often more readily translated 'go'.

There are three possible ways of expressing compound verbs, such as 'go through':

- (1) The compound verb followed by the accusative, e.g.

διηρχοντο την τε Φοινικην και Σαμαριαν (Acts 15. 3)

They went through both Phoenicia and Samaria.

- (2) The compound verb with its preposition repeated after the verb, e.g.

εδει δε αυτον διερχεσθαι δια της Σαμαριας (John 4. 4)

And it was necessary for him to go through Samaria.

- (3) In the case of εις and προς the simple verb is often used, and the only preposition follows the verb, e.g.

και συ ερχη προς με; (Matt. 3. 14) And do you come to me?

The use varies somewhat from verb to verb.

προσερχομαι, it will be noticed, takes the dative.

Note. This classification of Deponent verbs into Middle and Passive must be taken on trust for the time being. Whether a Deponent verb is Middle or Passive is discovered by looking at the forms of the Aorist, which are different for the two voices. They are dealt with in Lessons 27 and 35.

In the following table of verbs the Aorist Infinitive has been added in those cases where there may be doubt about the form of the Aorist stem. The beginner might not know, for instance, whether ηγαγον was derived from αγαγ- or εγαγ-. The Aorist stem (without augment) is needed in order to form the infinitive and the Imperative.

Verbs whose first three principal parts should now be learnt

Present	Future	Aorist
αγω	αξω	ηγαγον	I lead, bring. Intr. I go.
		Inf. αγαγειν
-βαινω	-βησομαι	-εβην	I go (used only in compounds):
αναβαινω (81) ¹			I go up.
καταβαινω (81)			I go down.
γνωσκω	γνωσομαι	εγνω	I know.

¹ The numbers in brackets refer to the occurrences of new words, or (in the case of εσθιω and λεγω) to the occurrences of the new Aorist (and Future) forms.

VOCABULARIES 25, 26

έρχομαι	ἐλευσομαι	ἦλθον	I come (I go).
		Inf. ἐλθειν
ἐσθιω (94)	φαγομαι	ἐφαγον	I eat. [anthropophagous: man-eating].
εὕρισκω	εὕρησω	εὕρον	I find. (The Aorist is εὕρον, the Imperfect is ηὕρισκον. Cf. p. 53 n. 2)
έχω	έξω	έσχον	I have.
Imperf. εἶχον
λαμβάνω	λημψομαι	έλαβον	I take.
όραω (450)	όψομαι	είδον	I see. (With όψομαι, cf. Inf. ιδειν όφθαλμος. For όραω, see further Lesson 40.)
πινω (73)	πιομαι	έπιον	I drink.
φέρω	οἶσω	ήνεγκον	I carry.
		Inf. ένεγκειν

Verbs whose Second Aorists should now be learnt

άμαρτανω (42)	ήμαρτον	I sin (cf. άμαρτωλος, άμαρτια).
άποθνήσκω	άπεθανον	I die.
βαλλω	έβαλον	I throw.
καταλείπω (23)	κατελιπον	I leave.
λέγω (925)	είπον	I say.
	Inf. εἰπειν
μανθάνω (25)	έμαθον	I learn (cf. μαθητης).
πάσχω (40)	έπαθον	I suffer [sympathy].
πιπτω (90)	έπεσον	I fall.
φευγω (29)	έφυγον	I flee [cf. fugitive].
ιδε (29)	} behold, lo.	Though regarded as an interjection, rather than a verb, ιδε is in fact the second person singular of the Imperative Active and ιδου of the Imperative Middle of εἶδον. For Second Aorist Imperative Middle, see Lesson 27.
ιδου (200)

We are now familiar with 70 per cent of the words of the New Testament.

LESSON 26

αἶρω (101)	άρω	ήρα	I lift up, I take away.
σπείρω (52)	(σπερω)	έσπειρα	I sow. (The Future is not actually found in the New Testament.)
έγειρω	έγερω	ήγειρα	I raise, rouse (cf. Ex. 17 B 12).

VOCABULARY 27

ἀποκτείνω (74)	ἀποκτείνω	ἀπεκτεῖνα	I kill.
ἀποστελλῶ (131)	ἀποστελῶ	ἀπέστειλα	I send (with a commission, cf. ἀποστολος).
ἀγγέλλω (1)	ἀγγέλω	ἡγγείλα	I announce.
ἀπαγγέλλω (46)
παραγγέλλω (30)
			I command (takes dative; see Lesson 20).
μένω	μένῳ	ἔμεινα	I remain.
κρίνω	κρινῶ	έκρινα	I judge.
βάλλω	βάλω	έβαλον	I throw.
ἀποθνήσκω	ἀποθάνομαι	ἀπεθάνον	I die.
πίπτω	πέσσομαι	έπεσον	I fall.
λέγω (96)	έρω	είπον	I say. (Has a Future with a liquid stem.)
ὀφείλω (35)	—	—	I owe, ought. (Only found in Present and Imperfect.)
ὅτι (1285)	because; that; recitative (introducing a direct statement).

To be carefully distinguished from:

ὅτε (102)	when.
έως	as a conjunction can mean 'while' as well as 'until'.

Verbs which take dative

We have now had ten verbs which usually take the dative:

ἀκολουθεῶ	I follow	παραγγέλλω	I command
ἀποκρίνομαι	I answer	πίστευω	I believe διακονεῶ	I serve	προσερχομαι	I come to έγγιζῶ	I draw near	προσκυνεῶ	I worship
έξεστιν	it is lawful	ὕπακουω	I obey

(One more: ἐπιτιμῶ, 'I rebuke', 'warn' will be found in Vocab. 40.)

Verbs which take genitive

ἄρχω	I rule	ἅπτομαι	I touch
ἀκούω	I hear (usually takes genitive of the person heard).

LESSON 27

δέχομαι	δεξομαι	έδεξαμην	I receive γίνομαι	γενησομαι	έγενομην	I become
(ἀπολλυμι) (90)		ἀπωλομην	I perish
(Lesson 44)		Inf. ἀπολεσθαι

LESSON 28

Nouns declined like ἀστηρ

ἀνὴρ ἀνδρὸς ὁ (216) dat. pl.: ἀνδρασιν	man, husband. [polyandry: culture where women may have more than one husband] (ἀνὴρ is man as opposed to woman, ἄνθρωπος man as opposed to beast.)
ἀστηρ ἀστερος ὁ (23)	star. [aster, asteroid, asterisk, astronomy, astronaut]
μαρτυς μαρτυρὸς ὁ (35)	witness (cf. μαρτυρεῶ; μαρτυρία and μαρτυριον refer to witness in the abstract, whereas a μαρτυς is a person).
σωτήρ σωτηρὸς ὁ (24)	saviour (cf. σωτηρία, σωζω).
χειρ χειρὸς ἡ (176) dat. pl. χερσιν	hand. [chiropodist: strictly, one who treats defects of hands and feet. See πους below]

Nouns with stems ending in a guttural

γυνή γυναῖκος ἡ (209) voc. sing. γυναῖ	woman, wife. [gynaecology, misogynist]
σαρξ σαρκὸς ἡ (147)	flesh. [sarcophagus: a coffin which 'eats' the flesh within; sarcasm is from σαρκαζω, 'I eat flesh', i.e. I speak bitterly]

Nouns with stems ending in a dental or in νDentals

ἐλπίς ἐλπίδος ἡ (53)	hope (cf. ἐλπίζω).
νύξ νυκτὸς ἡ (61)	night. [cf. nocturnal]
παῖς παιδὸς ὁ or ἡ (24)	boy, girl, child, servant (cf. παιδιον).
πούς ποδὸς ὁ (93)	foot. [chiropodist; tripod: see τρεῖς, τρία, 'three', Vocab. 32]
χάρις χαρίτος ἡ (155) acc. sing. χάριν	grace. [Grace is bestowed on those in whom the giver finds joy, χάρα]

ν endings

αἰὼν αἰῶνος ὁ (123) εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα	age [aeon] (cf. αἰώνιος). for ever.
εἰς τοὺς αἰῶνας τῶν αἰώνων	for ever and ever.
ἀμπελὼν ἀμπελωνὸς ὁ (23)	vineyard.
εἰκὼν εἰκονὸς ἡ (23)	image. [ikon; iconoclasm: breaking of images]

VOCABULARIES 28, 29

Ἕλλην Ἕλληνας ὁ (26)	(a) Greek. [King of the Hellenes; Hellenistic Greek]
μην μηνος ὁ (18)	month. [Cf. menstrual]
Σίμων Σιμωνος ὁ (75)	Simon.

Noun with -οντ- stem

ἄρχων -οντος ὁ (37)	ruler (cf. ἄρχω of which ἄρχων is a Present Participle. See Vocab. 23 and Lesson 36).
---------------------	---

Nouns like πατήρ πατρος

θυγάτηρ ἡ (28)	daughter.
μητήρ ἡ (84)	mother. [metropolis, cf. maternal; but, note, this word is μητήρ, not ματήρ like the Latin]
πατήρ ὁ (415) voc. πατερ	father. [Cf. paternal, Patristics]

LESSON 29

Neuter nouns declined like σῶμα σωματος το

There is a big group of words with nominative singular in -μα and genitive singular in -ματος:¹

αἷμα (97)	blood. [anaemic, without blood; leukaemia, white blood; haemorrhage] βαπτισμα (20)	baptism.
θελημα (62)	will (cf. θελω).
κριμα (27)	judgement (cf. κρινω, κριτης).
ὄνομα (228)	name. [An onomatopoeic word is one which is 'named' after, i.e. it imitates, the natural sound denoted (e.g. moo, phizz)]
πνευμα (379)	spirit. [pneumatic]
ῥημα (68)	word. [rhetoric]
σπερμα (44)	seed [sperm] (cf. σπειρω).
στομα (78)	mouth. [Stomach was used of the mouth of the digestive organ, and then of the organ itself]

¹ The declension of nouns with nominative singular ending in -a may be determined by the following rules. Those in which the -a is preceded by a vowel or ρ	are declined like ἡμερα -as ἡ

μ	„ „ „ σωμα -ατος το
any other consonant	„ „ „ δοξα -ης ἡ

σωμα (142) body. [psycho-somatic treatment deals with mind and body together]

There are a few third declension neuter nouns with consonant stems of which both nominative and genitive singular have to be separately learnt. But in all of them the case endings from the genitive singular onwards are exactly the same as those of σωμα:

οὖς ὠτος¹ (36) ear. [otitis; inflammation of the ear]
 πυρ πυρος (71) fire. [pyre; pyrotechnics; fireworks] τερας τερατος (16) a wonder.
 ὕδωρ ὕδατος (76) water. [hydrant, hydro-electric] φως φωτος (73) light. [phosphorus: a light-bearing substance; photograph]

Neuter nouns declined like γένος γένους το γένος (20) race, kind. [cf. genus] A large number of words are derived from the root γεν which means 'beget', 'become'; e.g. γινομαι, γειησομαι; γενεα. Those of one race or kind have a common begetting. See also γενναω Vocab. 40.

 ἔθνος (162) nation; pl. τα ἔθνη: the Gentiles. [ethnology] ἔλεος (27) mercy, compassion (cf. ἐλεεω).
 ἔτος (49) year. [There are Etesian winds in the Mediterranean which blow from the North-west annually] μέλος (34) member.
 μέρος (42) part. [In botany -merous is a suffix indicating the number of parts. Pentamerous: having five parts.]
 ὄρος (62) mountain. [orology: study of mountains] πλεθος (31) multitude. [plethora] σκευος (23) vessel (a utensil, not a ship).
 σκοτος (30) darkness. [scotoscope: instrument for seeing in the dark] τέλος (41) end. [teleology: view that developments are due to the ends which they serve]

Indeclinable nouns

πασχα το (29) Passover. [Paschal] Ἀβρααμ ὁ (73) Abraham.

¹ The full declension is: οὖς ὠτος ὡτι ὠτα ὠτων ὠσιν.

LESSON 30

Like πλειων

κρεισσων (19)	better.	} Where English uses 'than' after a comparative, Greek normally uses a genitive: the Genitive of Comparison, e.g. μειζων τουτων ἀλλη ἐντολη οὐκ ἐστιν (Mark 12. 31) 'There is no other commandment greater than these'.
μειζων (48)	greater.
πλειων (55)	more.
χειρων (11)	worse.

Like ἀληθης

ἀληθης (26)	true (cf. ἀληθεια).
ἀσθενης (25)	weak, ill, sick (cf. ἀσθενεω).
πληρης (16)	full (cf. πληθος).

Pronouns

τίς τί (552)	who? (masculine and feminine); what? (neuter). τί also means 'why?'
τις τι (518)	someone, anyone, a certain one, something, etc. (τις is never the first word of a sentence.)
ὅστις ἥτις ὅτι (154)	who, whoever.

LESSON 31

ἰχθυς -υος ὁ (20) fish. [ichthyology] The fish was a favourite Christian symbol, representing the acrostic:

Ἰησους	Jesus
Χριστος	Christ
Θεου	God's
Υἱος	Son
Σωτηρ	Saviour

Feminine nouns like πολις πολεως ἡ

ἀναστασις (42)	resurrection (ἀνα, 'up'; ἵστημι, 'I cause to stand', Vocab. 43).
ἀποκαλυψις (18)	revelation [Apocalypse] (cf. ἀποκαλυπτω).
ἀφεσις (17)	forgiveness.
γνωσις (29)	knowledge (cf. γνωσκω).
δυναμις (118)	power [dynamic, dynamite] (cf. δυναμαι, δυνατος).

VOCABULARY 31

θλιψις (45)	tribulation, trouble, hardship.
κρισις (47)	judgement [crisis] (cf. κρινω, κριτης, κριμα').
παραδοσις (13)	tradition.
πιστις (243)	faith (cf. πιστευω, πιστος, απιστος).
πολις (161)	city. [necropolis; politics, originally concerned with the government of the Greek city-state]
συνειδησις (30)	conscience.

Masculine nouns like βασιλευς βασιλεως ο

βασιλευς (115)	king.
voc. βασιλευ
γραμματευς (62)	scribe (cf. γραφω).
ιερευς (31)	priest (cf. ιερον).
αρχιερευς (122)	high-priest, chief priest (cf. αρχω).

We can now collect the Third Declension forms which have merited special mention:

Vocative singular

πατερ γυναι βασιλευ

Accusative singular

χαριν

Dative plural

ανδρασιν χερσιν

IMPORTANT NOTE

From this point a lexicon will be needed to look up the less common words in the Greek-to-English exercises. The vocabularies will continue to give all the common words, and only these will be used in the English-to-Greek exercises. It is not intended that the less common words should be systematically memorised, but if they stick in the memory so much the better. The recitation of the Greek alphabet should be revised at this point.

When translating from Greek, difficulty may sometimes be found in identifying a verb, because verbs are given in a lexicon under the first person singular Present Indicative. If a verb begins with ε', it probably means that there is an augment to subtract. If it begins with a long vowel, ¹ Often -σις is an action ending and -μα a result ending. κρισις would then be the act of judging and κριμα the judicial verdict. But this distinction is not always maintained.

VOCABULARY 32

it probably means that an initial vowel has been lengthened. In this case the table in Lesson 13 can be put into reverse, thus:

$\eta \leftarrow \alpha \text{ or } \epsilon$	$\eta \leftarrow \alpha\iota \text{ or } \epsilon\iota$	$\eta\nu \leftarrow \alpha\nu \text{ or } \epsilon\nu$
$\omega \leftarrow \omicron$	$\omega \leftarrow \omicron\iota$

Therefore a word beginning (for example) with η may have to be looked for under α or ϵ .

For guidance in the choice of a lexicon, see p. 191.

Greater use will now be made of sentences direct from the New Testament. The student will be able to observe for himself various idioms and turns of phrase which are not of sufficient difficulty or importance to require comment, yet which will increase his knowledge of the forms of the living language. It will also be found that from now on rather greater freedom will be needed in translating Greek words. The vocabularies give the most generally useful translations, but often there is a better, idiomatic English rendering, which will usually be clear enough from the context. The 'Key' will of course help to check your translations.

LESSON 32

$\pi\alpha\varsigma \ \pi\alpha\sigma\alpha \ \pi\alpha\nu$ (1226)	every, all. [Pan-African]
$\acute{\alpha}\pi\alpha\varsigma \ \acute{\alpha}\pi\alpha\sigma\alpha \ \acute{\alpha}\pi\alpha\nu$ (32)	all (a slightly more literary word, found chiefly in Luke and Acts).

Note. There is a good deal of overlap in the meanings of $\acute{\omicron}\lambda\omicron\varsigma$, $\pi\alpha\varsigma$ and $\acute{\alpha}\pi\alpha\varsigma$. $\acute{\omicron}\lambda\omicron\varsigma$ (Vocab. 14) is often translated 'all'; $\pi\alpha\varsigma$ and $\acute{\alpha}\pi\alpha\varsigma$ are occasionally translated 'whole'. $\pi\alpha\varsigma$ and $\acute{\alpha}\pi\alpha\varsigma$ are often used without an article. When used with the article they are usually put in the predicative position.

We have now had five adjectives which normally stand in the predicative position:

$\acute{\epsilon}\kappa\epsilon\iota\omega\varsigma$
 $\acute{\omicron}\acute{\upsilon}\tau\omicron\varsigma$
 $\acute{\omicron}\lambda\omicron\varsigma$
 $\pi\alpha\varsigma$
 $\acute{\alpha}\pi\alpha\varsigma$

$\pi\omicron\lambda\upsilon\varsigma \ \pi\omicron\lambda\lambda\eta \ \pi\omicron\lambda\upsilon$ (353)	much; pl. many. [polytheism]
$\mu\epsilon\gamma\alpha\varsigma \ \mu\epsilon\gamma\alpha\lambda\eta \ \mu\epsilon\gamma\alpha$ (194)	great. [megaphone, megalomania. Omega is long (great) 'o'.]

Numerals

$\epsilon\iota\varsigma \ \mu\iota\alpha \ \acute{\epsilon}\nu$ (337)	one. [henotheism: belief in one tribal God without denying the existence of other gods]
$\omicron\upsilon\delta\epsilon\iota\varsigma$ (226)	no one (with Indicative);
$\mu\eta\delta\epsilon\iota\varsigma$ (85)	no one (with other moods).

VOCABULARIES 32, 33

- δυο (136) two. (Cf. δευτερος, dual. Apart from the dative plural, δυο is indeclinable.)
 dat. δυοιν
 τρεις τρια (67) three (cf. τριτος, tripod).
 The complete declension of τρεις is as follows:

	M.F.	N.
N.A.	τρεις	τρια
G.	τριων
D.	τρισι(ν)

- τεσσαρες -α (41) four. [Tatian's Diatessaron was a second-century harmony of the gospels. Lit. 'through four']

The numbers 5 to 100 are indeclinable:

- πεντε (38) five. [Pentateuch, pentagon, pentameter, pentathlon, pentamorous] εξ (13) six. [hexagon, hexameter. Origen's six-column Old Testament was called the Hexapla] επτα (87) seven. [heptagon; heptane is C₇H₁₆] δεκα (25) ten. [decathlon; Decapolis: region with 10 cities S.E. of Sea of Galilee; Decalogue] δωδεκα (75) twelve. [Dodecanese: group of 12 Aegean islands] τεσσαρακοντα (22) forty.
 εκατον (17) hundred.
 χιλιοι -αι -α (11) or } thousand. [Chiliasm: belief in a reign of Christ on χιλιας -αδος η (23) } earth of literally 1000 years]

From εκατον and χιλιοι we get the military terms:

- εκατονταρχης -ου ο (20) centurion. Roughly, sergeant-major.
 χιλιαρχος -ου ο (21) military tribune, commander of a cohort, chiliarch.
 (A.V. usually 'chief captain'.) Roughly, colonel.

LESSON 33

Superlative adjective

- μικρος small, little.
 ελαχιστος (14) smallest, least.

Comparative and superlative adverbs of degree

- μαλλον (80) more, rather.
 μαλιστα (12) most, most of all, specially.

Adverbs of manner

ἀληθως (18)	truly.
καλως (37)	well.
ὁμοιως (31)	in like manner, similarly.
οὕτως (208)	in this manner, thus, so.
ἀμην (126)	truly, Amen.
εὖ (6)	well. (Many compounds: εὐαγγελιον, εὐλογεω, εὐχα- ριστω.)
ναι (34)	yes.

Interjection

οὐαι (45)	alas, woe.
-----------	------------

Comparative and disjunctive particle

ἢ (342)	than (comparative); or (disjunctive).
---------	---------------------------------------

We are now familiar with more than 80 per cent of the words of the New Testament.

LESSON 34

Three important verbs which are Perfect in form, but Present in meaning:

Active

οἶδα (321)	I know. (The Old English wot comes from the same root. οἶδα originally contained the now obsolete Greek letter Digamma (written F), which is equivalent to w . Cf. Foinos , wine.)
------------	---

Pluperfect	ᾔδew	I knew
Infinitive	εἶδewαι	to know

(For future reference)

Participle	εἶδως	εἰδwια	εἶδος
	εἰδwτα

Subjunctive	εἰδw
-------------	------

In the New Testament there is no sharp distinction in meaning between γινωσκω and οἶδα. The full range of uses can be seen in the lexicon.

Deponent

καθῆμαι (91) ¹	I sit.
κειμαι (24)	I lie. (The compounds of κειμαι are often used for reclining at meals, so that the A.V. translates 'I sit at meat'. But in fact it is καθῆμαι that means 'I sit' and κειμαι 'I lie'. Reclining may be thought of as lying down on to one's elbow, κατα-κειμαι (12), or as propping oneself up on one's elbow, ἀνα-κειμαι (14). συν-ανα-κειμαι (7) is 'I sit at table with'.)

Learn the principal parts (pp. 227-8) of the following verbs:

λυω and φιλεω; κηρυσσω to -θνησκω

The Aorist Passives should be learnt along with the other parts. Their forms are dealt with in the next lesson.

LESSON 35

στρεφω (21)	} I turn. The Aorist Passive is deponent: I turned. [Cf. catastrophe. Καταστροφή is an overturning; lit. a turning down]
2nd Aor. Pass. ἐστραφην
ἐπιστρεφω (36)
ὑποστρεφω (35)	I return.
φαινω (31)	I shine. Passive, I appear. [phantom]
2nd Aor. Pass. ἐφανην

Learn the principal parts (p. 228): καλεω to φερω.

LESSON 36

Note again the participle of οἶδα referred to in Vocab. 34:

εἰδως εἰδνua εἶδος
εἶδοτα

LESSON 37

ὅσος -η -ον (110)	as much as; pl., as many as.
τοιουτος (56)	of such a kind, such. (The last two syllables are declined like οὗτος , except that any initial τ in the declension of οὗτος is omitted.)
-αυτη -ουτο
ποιος -α -ον (32)	of what sort? what?

¹ For purposes of parsing οἶδα is regarded as Perfect and ᾔδειν as Pluperfect, but καθῆμαι } are regarded as Present and ἐκαθημην } as Imperfect.

κειμαι }

Adverbs of Place

ὧδε (61)	here.
ἐκεῖ (95)	there.
ὅπου (82)	where, whither.
ἐγγυς (31)	near (cf. ἐγγιζω).

Adverbs of Time

νυν (148), νυνι (18)	now, at the present time.
ἤδη (60)	now, already, by this time.
ἄρτι (36)	now, just now.
τοτε (159)	then.
παντοτε (41)	always (cf. πας πασα παν).
παλιν (139)	again. [palimpsest: a manuscript which has been used again]
ἔτι (92)	yet, still.
οὐκετι (48) } μηκετι (21) }	no longer { with Indicative; with other moods.
εὐθὺς (54) } εὐθὺς (33) }	at once. (As an adjective, εὐθὺς means 'straight', cf. 'straightway'.)
σημερον (41)	today.

Interrogative adverbs

$\pi\omega\varsigma$ (104)	how?
$\pi\omicron\upsilon$ (47)	where?

LESSON 38

iva (673) }	in order that, etc.
ὅπως (53) }
ἄν (166)	A particle which usually adds an element of indefiniteness to a clause.
ὅταν (ὅτε + ἄν) (123)	whenever, when.

Note again the subjunctive of οἶδα referred to in Vocab. 34: εἰδω, εἰδῆς, etc.

LESSON 39

$\epsilon\dot{\iota}$ (513) if.
 $\epsilon\dot{\alpha}\nu$ ($\epsilon\dot{\iota} + \dot{\alpha}\nu$) (343) if (but less definite than $\epsilon\dot{\iota}$). Sometimes $\epsilon\dot{\alpha}\nu$ is equivalent to $\dot{\alpha}\nu$. See Lesson 38, p. 161 n. 1.)
 $\epsilon\dot{\iota}\tau\epsilon$ ($\epsilon\dot{\iota} + \tau\epsilon$) (65) $\epsilon\dot{\iota}\tau\epsilon \dots \epsilon\dot{\iota}\tau\epsilon$: 'whether...or'.

VOCABULARIES 40-3

LESSON 40

-αω verbs

ἀγαπαω (141)	I love (cf. ἀγάπη, ἀγαπητός).
γενναω (97)	I beget, bear. Passive, am born (cf. γινομαι). [Hydrogen (with oxygen) begets water, ὕδωρ]
ἔρωταω (62)	} I ask, question. (αἰτέω is not used of asking questions.)
ἐπερωταω (56)
ὁραω	I see (met already in Vocab. 25).
πλαναω (39)	I cause to wander, lead astray. [A 'planet' is a wandering star]
τιμαω (21)	I honour (cf. τιμή).
ἐπιτιμαω (29)	I rebuke, warn. ¹ (Takes dative. With those listed at the end of Vocab. 26, this completes eleven verbs which take the dative.)
καυχασμαι (37)	I boast (deponent Middle).
ζαω (140)	I live.

-οω verbs

δικαιοω (39)	I justify (cf. δίκαιος).
πληρωω (86)	I fill, fulfil (cf. πλήρης, πλήθος).
σταυρωω (46)	I crucify (cf. σταυρός).
φανερωω (49)	I make clear, make known (cf. φαίνω, ἐφάνην).

LESSON 41

τιθημι (101)	I place.
ἐπιτιθημι (40)	I place upon.

LESSON 42

διδωμι (416)	I give.
ἀποδιδωμι (47)	I give back, pay; Middle, sell.
παραδιδωμι (120)	I hand over, betray (cf. παραδοσις).

LESSON 43

ίστημι (152)	Trans., I cause to stand. Intrans., I stand.
ἀνίστημι (107)	Trans., I raise up. Intrans., I rise (cf. ἀνάστασις).
ἐφίστημι (21)	Intrans., I stand over, come upon.

¹ Note the sharp difference in meaning between τιμαω and ἐπιτιμαω. τιμή can be used of a price paid as a penalty. ἐπιτιμαω is used with regard to someone judged worthy of a penalty.

VOCABULARY 44

καθίστημι (21) Trans., I appoint.

παρίστημι (41) Trans., I cause to stand beside, present. Intrans., I stand by.

Note that with words like ἐφίστημι, καθίστημι and ἀφίημι (below), it is the rough breathing which gives the aspirated forms ἐφ-, καθ- and ἀφ-. (Cf. Vocab. 16.) When the preposition is prefixed to a form with a smooth breathing, e.g. -έστη, we get forms like ἐπέστη. When it is prefixed to a form with no initial vowel, e.g. -στασα, we get ἐπιστασα, ἀναστασα (cf. Luke 2. 9, 38; 1. 39).

LESSON 44

ἀφίημι (142) I forgive, leave, allow (cf. ἀφέεις).

συνιημι (26) I understand.

δεικνυμι (32) I show.

φημι (66) I say.

ἀπ-ολλυμι I destroy, lose; Middle and Perfect Active, perish (cf. Vocab. 27).

The principal parts of ἀφίημι and ἀπολλυμι, which are given on p. 228, should be learnt. Those parts of ἀπολλυμι which mean 'destroy' or 'lose' and those parts which mean 'perish' have been set out on separate lines. It is probably best to learn the ἀπολλυμι and ἀπολλυμαι lines separately.

PRINCIPAL PARTS

Except for those in brackets, the parts given below are those which actually occur in the New Testament. In the case of the bracketed words, it seems easier to learn the word than the blank. A hyphen before a word indicates that it is only found in a compound form of the verb.

Present Future Aorist A. Perfect A. Perfect P. Aorist P.

The following are the principal parts of the standard regular verbs:

λυω	λυσω	ἔλυσα	λελυκα	λελυμαι	ἐλύθην	loose
φιλεω	φιλησω	ἔφιλησα	πεφιληκα	πεφιλημαι	ἐφιληθην	love
τιμαω	τιμησω	ἔτιμησα	τετιμηκα	τετιμημαι	ἐτιμηθην	honour
φανερωω	φανερωσω	ἐφανερωσα	πεφανερωκα	πεφανερωμαι	ἐφανερωθην	make clear

Apart from the 'aspirated Perfect' (χ instead of κ) the following are also quite regular:

κηρυσσω	κηρυξω	ἔκηρυξα	(κεκηρυχα)	-κεκηρυγμαι	ἔκηρυχθην	proclaim
πρασσω	πραξω	ἔπραξα	πεπραχα	πεπραγμαι	(ἐπραχθην)	do

The following have various irregularities:

ἀγγελλω	-ἀγγελω	-ἡγγειλα	-ἡγγελκα	-ἡγγελμαι	-ἡγγελην	announce
ἄγω	ἄξω	ἡγαγον ¹	—	-ἡγμαι	ἦχθην	lead
αἶρω	ἄρω	ἦρα	ἦρκα	ἦρμαι	ἦρθην	lift up ἀκουω	ἀκουσω	ἤκουσα	ἄκηκοα	—	ἤκουσθην	hear ἀνοιγω	ἀνοιξω	ἤνοιξα	ἀνεωγα	ἀνεωγμαι	ἤνοιχθην	open ²
-βαινω	-βησομαι	-ἔβην	-βεβηκα	—	—	go
βαλλω	βαλω	ἔβαλον	βεβληκα	βεβλημαι	ἐβληθην	throw γίνομαι	γενησομαι	ἐγενομην	γεγονα ³	γεγενημαι	ἐγενηθην	become γινωσκω	γινωσομαι	ἐγνων	ἐγνωκα	ἐγνωσμαι	ἐγnowsθην	know γραφω	γραψω	ἔγραψα	γεγραφα	γεγραμμαι	ἐγραψην	write δεχομαι	δεξομαι	ἔδεξαμην	—	δεδεγμαι	-ἐδεχθην	receive ἐγείρω	ἐγερω	ἤγειρα	—	ἐγηγερμαι	ἤγερθην	raise

² A number of other forms are found: Aorist Active, ἡνεωξα, ἀνεωξα; Perfect Passive, ἡνεωγμαι, ἡνοιγμαι; Aorist Passive, ἀνεωχθην, ἡνεωχθην, ἡνοιγθην. These are easily recognised when the six forms above are known.

³ Note this Second Perfect Active form. The other forms, Middle and Passive, are deponent. Therefore all the forms are Active in meaning; both Aorists mean 'I became' and both Perfects 'I have become'.

PRINCIPAL PARTS

εὕρισκω	εὕρησω	εὔρον	εὔρηκα	—	εὔρεθην	find θελω	θελήσω	ἤθελησα	—	—	—	will
-θνησκω	-θανουμαι	-έθανον	τεθνηκα	—	—	die ¹
καλεω	καλέσω	έκαλεσα	κεκληκα	κεκλημαι	έκληθην	call
κραζω	κραξω	έκραξα	κεκραγα	—	—	cry out
κρινω	κρινῶ	έκρινα	κεκρικα	κεκριμαι	έκριθην	judge λαμβάνω	λημψομαι	έλαβον	είληφα	-είλημμαι	έλημφθην	take πειθω	πεισω	έπεισα	πεποιθα ²	πεπεισμαι	έπεισθην	persuade πινω	πιομαι	έπιον	πεπωκα	—	-έποθην	drink
πιπτω	πεσουμαι	έπεσον	πεπτωκα	—	—	fall
σπειρω	(σπερω)	έσπειρα	—	έσπαρμαι	έσπαρην	sow
-στελλω	-στελω	-έστειλα	-έσταλκα	-έσταλμαι	-έσταλην	send ³
σωζω	σωσω	έσωσα	σεσωκα	σεσωσμαι	έσωθην	save

The following have stems derived from more than one verb:

έρχομαι	έλευσομαι	ήλθον	έληλυθα	—	—	come
έσθιω	φαγομαι	έφαγον	—	—	—	eat
έχω	έξω	έσχον	έσχηκα	—	—	have
λεγω	έρω	είπον	είρηκα	είρημαι	έρρηθην έρρεθην	say ⁴
όραω	όψομαι	είδον	έωρακα έορακα	—	ώφθην	see φέρω	οίσω	ήνεγκον	-ένηνοχα	—	ήνεχθην	carry

-μι verbs

τιθημι	θησω	έθηκα	τεθεικα	τεθειμαι	έτεθην	place διδωμι	δωσω	έδωκα	δεδωκα	δεδομαι	έδοθην	give
-ίστημι	στησω	έστησα	—	—	—	cause to stand
άφιημι	άφησω	άφηκα	—	άφεωνται	άφεθην	forgive
άπολλυμι	άπολεσω	άπωλεσα	—	—	—	destroy
άπολλυ-μαι	άπολου-μαι	άπωλομην	άπολωλα	—	—	perish

¹ θνησκω is used in Perf. and Pluperf., άποθνησκω in all other tenses. Cf. Mk. 15. 44.

² πεποιθα has a present sense, and it means 'I trust', not 'I have persuaded'. It takes dative.

³ -στελλω is never found as a simple verb. But there are various other compounds in addition to άποστελλω.

⁴ The forms -λεξω -έλεξα -λελεγμαι -έλεχθην are also found, but only in compounds.

SUMMARY OF MORPHOLOGY : VERB CHANGES

VOWEL AND CONSONANT CHANGES IN THE VERB

Initial vowel changes in formation of Past Tenses

$a \rightarrow \eta$	$αι \rightarrow \eta$	$αυ \rightarrow \etaυ$
$ε \rightarrow \eta$	$ει \rightarrow \eta$	$ευ \rightarrow \etaυ$ (or $ευ$)
$ο \rightarrow \omega$	$οι \rightarrow \omega$
	$ι \rightarrow \bar{\iota}$

With compound verbs, prepositions (except $\piερι$ and $\piρο$) drop final vowel.

Rules of reduplication

- (1) Initial consonant is repeated + ϵ , e.g. $\lambdaελυ-$.
- (2) $\chi \phi \theta \rightarrow \kappa\epsilon\chi, \pi\epsilon\phi, \tau\epsilon\theta$.
- (3) But vowel lengthens, and σ, ζ or ξ merely add ϵ .

Addition of σ to Mutes

$\kappa \gamma \chi + \sigma \rightarrow \xi$
$\pi \beta \phi + \sigma \rightarrow \psi$
$\tau \delta \theta + \sigma \rightarrow \sigma$

Addition of θ to Mutes

$\kappa \gamma \chi + \theta \rightarrow \chi\theta$
$\pi \beta \phi + \theta \rightarrow \phi\theta$
$\tau \delta \theta + \theta \rightarrow \sigma\theta$

GREEK INDEX OF WORDS GIVEN IN THE VOCABULARIES

An index, rather than a general Greek-English Vocabulary, has been provided for two reasons. On the one hand, it encourages an effort of memory by making the meanings slightly less accessible. On the other, by directing the reader back to the vocabularies, it helps to impress groups of words on the mind.

This index covers all the words needed for the English-Greek exercises, but after Lesson 31 the student is expected to use a lexicon for the less common words in the Greek-English exercises.

The number after the Greek word refers to the Vocabulary in which it will be found. p. or pp. refers to the page or pages on which further information is to be found. When the principal parts of a verb are set out in full on pp. 227 f., the appropriate page reference is given in heavy type.

AN IDIOM-BOOK OF NEW TESTAMENT GREEK

BY

C. F. D. MOULE

SECOND EDITION

The student or translator of the New Testament will often find difficulties which can only be solved by considering the syntax of the passage concerned. Professor Moule here provides a reference book which gives guidance on such problems of exegesis.

It is a work which presupposes a knowledge of Greek and makes frequent allusions to the standard works; it is intended primarily for theological students.

After an introductory section on 'The Language of the New Testament' Professor Moule considers in turn particular syntactical divisions (tenses, moods, voices, cases), certain parts of speech and types of clauses, and idiosyncrasies in usage. The last four chapters are on 'The order of words', 'Semitisms', 'Latinisms', and 'Miscellaneous notes on style'. In each section New Testament usages are defined and distinguished. A number of examples of each type of problem are discussed. They were chosen as being sufficiently representative to provide a guide to the treatment of similar difficulties.
